PREFACE.

THE present work is a modest effort to reproduce approximately, in modern measures, the venerable epic, Beowulf. Approximately, I repeat; for a very close reproduction of Anglo-Saxon verse would, to a large extent, be prose to a modern ear.

The Heyne-Socin text and glossary have been closely followed. Occasionally a deviation has been made, but always for what seemed good and sufficient reason. The translator does not aim to be an editor. Once in a while, however, he has added a conjecture of his own to the emendations quoted from the criticisms of other students of the poem.

This work is addressed to two classes of readers. From both of these alike the translator begs sympathy and co-operation. The Anglo-Saxon scholar he hopes to please by adhering faithfully to the original. The student of English literature he aims to interest by giving him, in modern garb, the most ancient epic of our race. This is a bold and venturesome undertaking; and yet there must be some students of the Teutonic past willing to follow even a daring guide, if they may read in modern phrases of the sorrows of Hrothgar, of the prowess of Beowulf, and of the feelings that stirred the hearts of our forefathers in their primeval homes.

In order to please the larger class of readers, a regular cadence has been used, a measure which, while retaining the essential characteristics of the original, permits the reader to see ahead of him in reading.

Perhaps every Anglo-Saxon scholar has his own theory as to how Beowulf should be translated. Some have given us prose versions of what we believe to be a great poem. Is it any reflection on our honored Kemble and Arnold to say that their translations fail to show a layman that Beowulf is justly called our first epic? Of those translators who have used verse, several have written from what would seem a mistaken point of view. Is it proper, for instance, that the grave and solemn speeches of Beowulf and Hrothgar be put in ballad measures, tripping lightly and airily along? Or, again, is it fitting that the rough martial music of Anglo-Saxon verse be interpreted to us in the smooth measures of modern blank verse? Do we hear what has been beautifully called "the clanging tread of a warrior in mail"?

[viii]

Of all English translations of Beowulf, that of Professor Garnett alone gives any adequate idea of the chief characteristics of this great Teutonic epic.

The measure used in the present translation is believed to be as near a reproduction of the original as modern English affords. The cadences closely resemble those used by Browning in some of his most striking poems. The four stresses of the Anglo-Saxon verse are retained, and as much thesis and anacrusis is allowed as is consistent with a regular cadence. Alliteration has been used to a large extent; but it was thought that modern ears would hardly tolerate it on every line. End-rhyme has been used occasionally; internal rhyme, sporadically. Both have some warrant in Anglo-Saxon poetry. (For end-rhyme, see 1 53, 1 54; for internal rhyme, 2 21, 6 40.)

What Gummere¹ calls the "rime-giver" has been studiously kept; viz., the first accented syllable in the second half-verse always carries the alliteration; and the last accented syllable alliterates only sporadically. Alternate alliteration is occasionally used as in the original. (See 7 61, 8 5.)

No two accented syllables have been brought together, except occasionally after a cæsural pause. (See 2 19 and 12 1.) Or, scientifically speaking, Sievers's C type has been avoided as not consonant with the plan of translation. Several of his types, however, constantly occur; e.g. A and a variant (/ x | / x) (/ x x | / x); B and a variant (x / | x /) (x x / | x /); a variant of D (/ x | / x x); E (/ x x | /). Anacrusis gives further variety to the types used in the translation.

The parallelisms of the original have been faithfully preserved. (E.g., 1 16 and 1 17: "Lord" and "Wielder of Glory"; 1 30, 1 31, 1 32; 2 12 and 2 13; 2 27 and 2 28; 3 5 and 3 6.) Occasionally, some loss has been sustained; but, on the other hand, a gain has here and there been made.

The effort has been made to give a decided flavor of archaism to the translation. All words not in keeping with the spirit of the poem have been avoided. Again, though many archaic words have been used, there are none, it is believed, which are not found in standard modern poetry.

With these preliminary remarks, it will not be amiss to give an outline of the story of the poem.

THE STORY.

Hrothgar, king of the Danes, or Scyldings, builds a great mead-hall, or palace, in which he hopes to feast his liegemen and to give them presents. The joy of king and retainers is, however, of short duration. Grendel, the monster, is seized with hateful jealousy. He cannot brook the sounds of joyance that reach him down in his fen-dwelling near the hall. Oft and anon he goes to the joyous building, bent on direful mischief. Thane after thane is ruthlessly carried off and devoured, while no one is found strong enough and bold enough to cope with the monster. For twelve years he persecutes Hrothgar and his vassals.

Over sea, a day's voyage off, Beowulf, of the Geats, nephew of Higelac, king of the Geats, hears of Grendel's doings and of Hrothgar's misery. He resolves to crush the fell monster and relieve the aged king. With fourteen chosen companions, he sets sail for Dane-land. Reaching that country, he soon persuades Hrothgar of his ability to help him. The hours that elapse before night are spent in beer-drinking and conversation. When Hrothgar's bedtime comes he leaves the hall in charge of Beowulf, telling him that never before has he given to another the absolute wardship of his palace. All retire to rest, Beowulf, as it were, sleeping upon his arms.

Grendel comes, the great march-stepper, bearing God's anger. He seizes and kills one of the sleeping warriors. Then he advances towards Beowulf. A fierce and desperate hand-to-hand struggle ensues. No arms are used, both combatants trusting to strength and hand-grip. Beowulf tears Grendel's shoulder from its socket, and the monster retreats to his den, howling and yelling with agony and fury. The wound is fatal.

The next morning, at early dawn, warriors in numbers flock to the hall Heorot, to hear the news. Joy is boundless. Glee runs high. Hrothgar and his retainers are lavish of gratitude and of gifts.

Grendel's mother, however, comes the next night to avenge his death. She is furious and raging. While Beowulf is sleeping in a room somewhat apart from the quarters of the other warriors, she seizes one of Hrothgar's favorite counsellors, and carries him off and devours him. Beowulf is called. Determined to leave Heorot entirely purified, he arms himself, and goes down to look for the female monster. After traveling through the waters many hours, he meets her near the sea-bottom. She drags him to her den. There he sees Grendel lying dead. After a desperate and almost fatal struggle with the woman, he slays her, and swims upward in triumph, taking with him Grendel's head.

Joy is renewed at Heorot. Congratulations crowd upon the victor. Hrothgar literally pours treasures into the lap of Beowulf; and it is agreed among the vassals of the king that Beowulf will be their next liegeland.

Beowulf leaves Dane-land. Hrothgar weeps and laments at his departure.

When the hero arrives in his own land, Higelac treats him as a distinguished guest. He is the hero of the hour.

Beowulf subsequently becomes king of his own people, the Geats. After he has been ruling for fifty years, his own neighborhood is wofully harried by a fire-spewing dragon. Beowulf determines to kill him. In the ensuing struggle both Beowulf and the dragon are slain. The grief of the Geats is inexpressible. They determine, however, to leave nothing undone to honor the memory of their lord. A great funeral-pyre is built, and his body is burnt. Then a memorial-barrow is made, visible from a great distance, that sailors afar may be constantly reminded of the prowess of the national hero of Geatland.

The poem closes with a glowing tribute to his bravery, his gentleness, his goodness of heart, and his generosity.

It is the devout desire of this translator to hasten the day when the story of Beowulf shall be as familiar to English-speaking peoples as that of the Iliad. Beowulf is our first great epic. It is an epitomized history of the life of the Teutonic races. It brings vividly before us our forefathers of pre-Alfredian eras, in their love of war, of sea, and of adventure.

My special thanks are due to Professors Francis A. March and James A. Harrison, for advice, sympathy, and assistance.

GLOSSARY OF PROPER NAMES.

[The figures refer to the divisions of the poem in which the respective names occur. The large figures refer to fitts, the small, to lines in the fitts.]

Ælfhere.—A kinsman of Wiglaf.—36 3.

Æschere.—Confidential friend of King Hrothgar. Elder brother of Yrmenlaf. Killed by Grendel.—21 3; 30 89.

Beanstan.—Father of Breca.—9 26.

Beowulf.—Son of Scyld, the founder of the dynasty of Scyldings. Father of Healfdene, and grandfather of Hrothgar.—1 18; 2 1.

Beowulf.—The hero of the poem. Sprung from the stock of Geats, son of Ecgtheow. Brought up by his maternal grandfather Hrethel, and figuring in manhood as a devoted liegeman of his uncle Higelac. A hero from his youth. Has the strength of thirty men. Engages in a swimming-match with Breca. Goes to the help of Hrothgar against the monster Grendel. Vanquishes Grendel and his mother. Afterwards becomes king of the Geats. Late in life attempts to kill a fire-spewing dragon, and is slain. Is buried with great honors. His memorial mound.—6 26; 7 2; 7 9; 9 3; 9 8; 12 28; 12 43; 23 1, etc.

Breca.—Beowulf's opponent in the famous swimming-match.—9 8; 9 19; 9 21; 9 22.

Brondings.—A people ruled by Breca.—9 23.

Brosinga mene.—A famous collar once owned by the Brosings.—19 7.

Cain.—Progenitor of Grendel and other monsters.—2 56; 20 11.

Dæghrefn.—A warrior of the Hugs, killed by Beowulf.—35 40.

Danes.—Subjects of Scyld and his descendants, and hence often called Scyldings. Other names for them are Victory-Scyldings, Honor-Scyldings, Armor-Danes, Bright-Danes, East-Danes, West-Danes, North-Danes, South-Danes, Ingwins, Hrethmen.—1 1; 2 1; 3 2; 5 14; 7 1, etc.

Ecglaf.—Father of Unferth, who taunts Beowulf.—9 1.

Ecgtheow.—Father of Beowulf, the hero of the poem. A widely-known Wægmunding warrior. Marries Hrethel's daughter. After slaying Heatholaf, a Wylfing, he flees his country.—7 3; 5 6; 8 4.

Ecgwela.—A king of the Danes before Scyld.—25 60.

Elan.—Sister of Hrothgar, and probably wife of Ongentheow, king of the Swedes.—2 10.

Eagle Cape.—A promontory in Geat-land, under which took place Beowulf's last encounter.—41 87.

Eadgils.—Son of Ohthere and brother of Eanmund.—34 2.

Eanmund.—Son of Ohthere and brother of Eadgils. The reference to these brothers is vague, and variously understood. Heyne supposes as follows: Raising a revolt against their father, they are obliged to leave Sweden. They go to the land of the Geats; with what intention, is not known, but probably to conquer and plunder. The Geatish king, Heardred, is slain by one of the brothers, probably Eanmund.—36 10; 31 54 to 31 60; 33 66 to 34 6.

Eofor.—A Geatish hero who slays Ongentheow in war, and is rewarded by Hygelac with the hand of his only daughter.—41 18; 41 48.

Eormenric.—A Gothic king, from whom Hama took away the famous Brosinga mene.—19 9.

Eomær.—Son of Offa and Thrytho, king and queen of the Angles.—28 69.

Finn.—King of the North-Frisians and the Jutes. Marries Hildeburg. At his court takes place the horrible slaughter in which the Danish general, Hnæf, fell. Later on, Finn himself is slain by Danish warriors.—17 18; 17 30; 17 44; 18 4; 18 23.

- Fin-land.—The country to which Beowulf was driven by the currents in his swimming-match.—10 22.
- Fitela.—Son and nephew of King Sigemund, whose praises are sung in XIV.—14 42; 14 53.
- Folcwalda.—Father of Finn.—17 38.
- Franks.—Introduced occasionally in referring to the death of Higelac.—19 19; 40 21; 40 24.
- Frisians.—A part of them are ruled by Finn. Some of them were engaged in the struggle in which Higelac was slain.—17 20; 17 42; 17 52; 40 21.
- Freaware.—Daughter of King Hrothgar. Married to Ingeld, a Heathobard prince.—29 60; 30 32.
- Froda.—King of the Heathobards, and father of Ingeld.—29 62.
- Garmund.—Father of Offa.—28 71.
- Geats, Geatmen.—The race to which the hero of the poem belongs. Also called Weder-Geats, or Weders, War-Geats, Sea-Geats. They are ruled by Hrethel, Hæthcyn, Higelac, and Beowulf.—4 7; 7 4; 10 45; 11 8; 27 14; 28 8.
- Gepids.—Named in connection with the Danes and Swedes.—35 34.
- Grendel.—A monster of the race of Cain. Dwells in the fens and moors. Is furiously envious when he hears sounds of joy in Hrothgar's palace. Causes the king untold agony for years. Is finally conquered by Beowulf, and dies of his wound. His hand and arm are hung up in Hrothgar's hall Heorot. His head is cut off by Beowulf when he goes down to fight with Grendel's mother.—2 50; 3 1; 3 13; 8 19; 11 17; 12 2; 13 27; 15 3.
- Guthlaf.—A Dane of Hnæf's party.—18 24.
- Half-Danes.—Branch of the Danes to which Hnæf belonged.—17 19.
- [xv] Halga.—Surnamed the Good. Younger brother of Hrothgar.—2 9.
- Hama.—Takes the Brosinga mene from Eormenric.—19 7.
- Hæreth.—Father of Higelac's queen, Hygd.—28 39; 29 18.
- Hæthcyn.—Son of Hrethel and brother of Higelac. Kills his brother Herebeald accidentally. Is slain at Ravenswood, fighting against Ongentheow.—34 43; 35 23; 40 32.
- Helmings.—The race to which Queen Wealhtheow belonged.—10 63.
- Heming.—A kinsman of Garmund, perhaps nephew.—28 54; 28 70.
- Hengest.—A Danish leader. Takes command on the fall of Hnæf.—17 33; 17 41.
- Herebeald.—Eldest son of Hrethel, the Geatish king, and brother of Higelac. Killed by his younger brother Hæthcyn.—34 43; 34 47.
- Heremod.—A Danish king of a dynasty before the Scylding line. Was a source of great sorrow to his people.—14 64; 25 59.
- Hereric.—Referred to as uncle of Heardred, but otherwise unknown.—31 60.
- Hetwars.—Another name for the Franks.—33 51.
- Healfdene.—Grandson of Scyld and father of Hrothgar. Ruled the Danes long and well.—2 5; 4 1; 8 14.
- Heardred.—Son of Higelac and Hygd, king and queen of the Geats. Succeeds his father, with Beowulf as regent. Is slain by the sons of Ohthere.—31 56; 33 63; 33 75.
- Heathobards.—Race of Lombards, of which Froda is king. After Froda falls in battle with the Danes, Ingeld, his son, marries Hrothgar's daughter, Freaware, in order to heal the feud.—30 1; 30 6.
- Heatholaf.—A Wylfing warrior slain by Beowulf's father.—8 5.
- Heathoremes.—The people on whose shores Breca is cast by the waves during his contest with Beowulf.—9 21.
- Heorogar.—Elder brother of Hrothgar, and surnamed 'Weoroda Ræswa,' Prince of the Troopers.—2 9; 8 12.
- Hereward.—Son of the above.—31 17.
- Heort, Heorot.—The great mead-hall which King Hrothgar builds. It is invaded by Grendel for twelve years. Finally cleansed by Beowulf, the Geat. It is called Heort on account of the hart-antlers which decorate it.—2 25; 3 32; 3 52.
- Hildeburg.—Wife of Finn, daughter of Hoce, and related to Hnæf,—probably his sister.—17 21; 18 34.
- Hnæf.—Leader of a branch of the Danes called Half-Danes. Killed in the struggle at Finn's castle.—17 19; 17 61.
- Hondscio.—One of Beowulf's companions. Killed by Grendel just before Beowulf grappled with that monster.—30 43.
- Hoce.—Father of Hildeburg and probably of Hnæf.—17 26.
- Hrethel.—King of the Geats, father of Higelac, and grandfather of Beowulf.—7 4; 34 39.
- Hrethla.—Once used for Hrethel.—7 82.
- Hrethmen.—Another name for the Danes.—7 73.
- Hrethric.—Son of Hrothgar.—18 65; 27 19.
- [xvi] Hreosna-beorh.—A promontory in Geat-land, near which Ohthere's sons made plundering raids.—35 18.
- Hrothgar.—The Danish king who built the hall Heort, but was long unable to enjoy it on account of Grendel's persecutions. Marries Wealhtheow, a Helming lady. Has two sons and a daughter. Is a typical Teutonic king, lavish of gifts. A devoted liegeland, as his lamentations over slain liegemen prove. Also very appreciative of kindness, as is shown by his loving gratitude to Beowulf.—2 9; 2 12; 4 1; 8 10; 15 1; etc., etc.

- Hrothmund.—Son of Hrothgar.—18 65.
- Hrothulf.—Probably a son of Halga, younger brother of Hrothgar. Certainly on terms of close intimacy in Hrothgar's palace.—16 26; 18 57.
- Hrunting.—Unferth's sword, lent to Beowulf.—22 71; 25 9.
- Hugs.—A race in alliance with the Franks and Frisians at the time of Higelac's fall.—35 41.
- Hun.—A Frisian warrior, probably general of the Hetwars. Gives Hengest a beautiful sword.—18 19.
- Hunferth.—Sometimes used for Unferth.
- Higelac, Higelac.—King of the Geats, uncle and liegelord of Beowulf, the hero of the poem.—His second wife is the lovely Hygd, daughter of Hæreth. The son of their union is Heardred. Is slain in a war with the Hugs, Franks, and Frisians combined. Beowulf is regent, and afterwards king of the Geats.—4 6; 5 4; 28 34; 29 9; 29 21; 31 56.
- Hygd.—Wife of Higelac, and daughter of Hæreth. There are some indications that she married Beowulf after she became a widow.—28 37.
- Ingeld.—Son of the Heathobard king, Froda. Marries Hrothgar's daughter, Freaware, in order to reconcile the two peoples.—29 62; 30 32.
- Ingwins.—Another name for the Danes.—16 52; 20 69.
- Jutes.—Name sometimes applied to Finn's people.—17 22; 17 38; 18 17.
- Lafing.—Name of a famous sword presented to Hengest by Hun.—18 19.
- Merewing.—A Frankish king, probably engaged in the war in which Higelac was slain.—40 29.
- Nægling.—Beowulf's sword.—36 76.
- Offa.—King of the Angles, and son of Garmund. Marries the terrible Thrytho who is so strongly contrasted with Hygd.—28 59; 28 66.
- Ohthere.—Son of Ongentheow, king of the Swedes. He is father of Eanmund and Eadgils.—40 35; 40 39.
- Onela.—Brother of Ohthere.—36 15; 40 39.
- Ongentheow.—King of Sweden, of the Scylding dynasty. Married, perhaps, Elan, daughter of Healfdene.—35 26; 41 16.
- Oslaf.—A Dane of Hnæf's party.—18 24.
- Ravenswood.—The forest near which Hæthcyn was slain.—40 31; 40 41.
- Scefing.—Applied (1 4) to Scyld, and meaning 'son of Scef.'
- Scyld.—Founder of the dynasty to which Hrothgar, his father, and grandfather belonged. He dies, and his body is put on a vessel, and set adrift. He goes from Daneland just as he had come to it—in a bark.—1 4; 1 19; 1 27.
- Scyldings.—The descendants of Scyld. They are also called Honor-Scyldings, Victory-Scyldings, War-Scyldings, etc. (See 'Danes,' above.)—2 1; 7 1; 8 1.
- Scydfings.—A Swedish royal line to which Wiglaf belonged.—36 2.
- Sigemund.—Son of Wæls, and uncle and father of Fitela. His struggle with a dragon is related in connection with Beowulf's deeds of prowess.—14 38; 14 47.
- Swerting.—Grandfather of Higelac, and father of Hrethel.—19 11.
- Swedes.—People of Sweden, ruled by the Scydfings.—35 13.
- Thrytho.—Wife of Offa, king of the Angles. Known for her fierce and unwomanly disposition. She is introduced as a contrast to the gentle Hygd, queen of Higelac.—28 42; 28 56.
- Unferth.—Son of Ecglaf, and seemingly a confidential courtier of Hrothgar. Taunts Beowulf for having taken part in the swimming-match. Lends Beowulf his sword when he goes to look for Grendel's mother. In the MS. sometimes written Hunferth. 9 1; 18 41.
- Wæls.—Father of Sigemund.—14 60.
- Wægmunding.—A name occasionally applied to Wiglaf and Beowulf, and perhaps derived from a common ancestor, Wægmund.—36 6; 38 61.
- Weders.—Another name for Geats or Wedergeats.
- Wayland.—A fabulous smith mentioned in this poem and in other old Teutonic literature.—7 83.
- Wendels.—The people of Wulfgar, Hrothgar's messenger and retainer. (Perhaps = Vandals.)—6 30.
- Wealhtheow.—Wife of Hrothgar. Her queenly courtesy is well shown in the poem.—10 55.
- Weohstan, or Wihstan.—A Wægmunding, and father of Wiglaf.—36 1.
- Whale's Ness.—A prominent promontory, on which Beowulf's mound was built.—38 52; 42 76.
- Wiglaf.—Son of Wihstan, and related to Beowulf. He remains faithful to Beowulf in the fatal struggle with the fire-drake. Would rather die than leave his lord in his dire emergency.—36 1; 36 3; 36 28.
- Wonred.—Father of Wulf and Eofor.—41 20; 41 26.
- Wulf.—Son of Wonred. Engaged in the battle between Higelac's and Ongentheow's forces, and had a hand-to-hand fight with Ongentheow himself. Ongentheow disables him, and is thereupon slain by Eofor.—41 19; 41 29.
- Wulfgar.—Lord of the Wendels, and retainer of Hrothgar.—6 18; 6 30.
- Wylfings.—A people to whom belonged Heatholaf, who was slain by Ecgtheow.—8 6; 8 16.
- Yrmenlaf.—Younger brother of Æschere, the hero whose death grieved Hrothgar so deeply.—21 4.

BEOWULF.

I.

THE LIFE AND DEATH OF SCYLD.

	Lo! the Spear-Danes' glory through splendid achievements	The famous race of Spear-Danes.
	The folk-kings' former fame we have heard of,
	How princes displayed then their prowess-in-battle.
	Oft Scyld the Scefing from scathers in numbers	Scyld, their mighty king, in honor of
5	From many a people their mead-benches tore.	whom they are often called Scyldings. He
	Since first he found him friendless and wretched,	is the great-grandfather of
	The earl had had terror: comfort he got for it,	Hrothgar, so prominent in the
	Waxed 'neath the welkin, world-honor gained,	poem.
10	Till all his neighbors o'er sea were compelled to
	Bow to his bidding and bring him their tribute:	A son is born to him, who receives the
	An excellent atheling! After was borne him	name of Beowulf—a name afterwards
	A son and heir, young in his dwelling,	made so famous by the hero of the poem.
	Whom God-Father sent to solace the people.
	He had marked the misery malice had caused them,
15	¹ That reaved of their rulers they wretched had erstwhile ²
	Long been afflicted. The Lord, in requital,
	Wielder of Glory, with world-honor blessed him.
	Famed was Beowulf, far spread the glory
	Of Scyld's great son in the lands of the Danemen.	The ideal Teutonic king lavishes gifts on
[2]	So the carle that is young, by kindnesses rendered	his vassals.
20	The friends of his father, with fees in abundance
	Must be able to earn that when age approacheth
	Eager companions aid him requitingly,
	When war assaults him serve him as liegemen:
25	By praise-worthy actions must honor be got
	'Mong all of the races. At the hour that was fated
	Scyld then departed to the All-Father's keeping	Scyld dies at the hour appointed by Fate.
	Warlike to wend him; away then they bare him
	To the flood of the current, his fond-loving comrades,
30	As himself he had bidden, while the friend of the Scyldings
	Word-sway wielded, and the well-loved land-prince
	Long did rule them. ³ The ring-stemmed vessel,
	Bark of the atheling, lay there at anchor,
	Icy in glimmer and eager for sailing;
35	The beloved leader laid they down there,	By his own request, his body is laid on a vessel and wafted seaward.
	Giver of rings, on the breast of the vessel,
	The famed by the mainmast. A many of jewels,
	Of fretted embossings, from far-lands brought over,
	Was placed near at hand then; and heard I not ever
40	That a folk ever furnished a float more superbly
	With weapons of warfare, weeds for the battle,
	Bills and burnies; on his bosom sparkled
	Many a jewel that with him must travel
	On the flush of the flood afar on the current.
45	And favors no fewer they furnished him soothly,
	Excellent folk-gems, than others had given him
	Who when first he was born outward did send him	He leaves Daneland on the breast of a bark.
	Lone on the main, the merest of infants:
	And a gold-fashioned standard they stretched under heaven
[3]	High o'er his head, let the holm-currents bear him,
50	Seaward consigned him: sad was their spirit,
	Their mood very mournful. Men are not able
	Soothly to tell us, they in halls who reside, ⁴	No one knows whither the boat drifted.
	Heroes under heaven, to what haven he hied.

[1] For the 'Þæt' of verse 15, Sievers suggests 'þá' (= which). If this be accepted, the sentence 'He had ... afflicted' will read: He (i.e. God) had perceived the malice-caused sorrow which they, lordless, had formerly long endured.

[2] For 'aldor-léase' (15) Gr. suggested 'aldor-ceare': He perceived their distress, that they formerly had suffered life-sorrow a long while.

[3] A very difficult passage. 'Áhte' (31) has no object. H. supplies 'geweald' from the context; and our translation is based upon this assumption, though it is far from satisfactory. Kl. suggests 'lændagas' for 'lange': And the beloved land-prince enjoyed (had) his transitory days (i.e.

lived). B. suggests a dislocation; but this is a dangerous doctrine, pushed rather far by that eminent scholar.

[4] The reading of the H.-So. text has been quite closely followed; but some eminent scholars read 'séle-rædenne' for 'sele-rædenne.' If that be adopted, the passage will read: Men cannot tell us, indeed, the order of Fate, etc. 'Sele-rædenne' has two things to support it: (1) v. 1347; (2) it affords a parallel to 'men' in v. 50.

II.

SCYLD'S SUCCESSORS.—HROTHGAR'S GREAT MEAD-HALL.

5	In the boroughs then Beowulf, bairn of the Scyldings, Belovèd land-prince, for long-lasting season Was famed mid the folk (his father departed, The prince from his dwelling), till afterward sprang Great-minded Healfdene; the Danes in his lifetime He graciously governed, grim-mooded, agèd. 10	Heard I that Elan was Ongentheow's consort, The well-beloved bedmate of the War-Scylfing leader. Then glory in battle to Hrothgar was given, Waxing of war-fame, that willingly kinsmen Obeyed his bidding, till the boys grew to manhood, A numerous band. It burned in his spirit To urge his folk to found a great building, A mead-hall grander than men of the era Ever had heard of, and in it to share With young and old all of the blessings	He has three sons— one of them, Hrothgar—and a daughter named Elan. Hrothgar becomes a mighty king.
15	The Lord had allowed him, save life and retainers. Then the work I find afar was assigned To many races in middle-earth's regions, To adorn the great folk-hall. In due time it happened Early 'mong men, that 'twas finished entirely, The greatest of hall-buildings; Heorot he named it Who wide-reaching word-sway wielded 'mong earlmen. His promise he brake not, rings he lavished, Treasure at banquet. Towered the hall up High and horn-crested, huge between antlers:	He is eager to build a great hall in which he may feast his retainers The hall is completed, and is called Heort, or Heorot.
20	[4] It battle-waves bided, the blasting fire-demon; Ere long then from hottest hatred must sword-wrath Arise for a woman's husband and father. Then the mighty war-spirit¹ endured for a season, Bore it bitterly, he who bided in darkness, That light-hearted laughter loud in the building Greeted him daily; there was dulcet harp-music, Clear song of the singer. He said that was able To tell from of old earthmen's beginnings, That Father Almighty earth had created, The winsome wold that the water encircleth, Set exultingly the sun's and the moon's beams To lavish their lustre on land-folk and races, And earth He embellished in all her regions With limbs and leaves; life He bestowed too On all the kindreds that live under heaven. So blessed with abundance, brimming with joyance, The warriors abided, till a certain one gan to Dog them with deeds of direfullest malice, A foe in the hall-building: this horrible stranger² Was Grendel entitled, the march-stepper famous Who³ dwelt in the moor-fens, the marsh and the fastness; The wan-mooded being abode for a season	The Monster Grendel is madly envious of the Danemen's joy. [The course of the story is interrupted by a short reference to some old account of the creation.]
25	In the land of the giants, when the Lord and Creator Had banned him and branded. For that bitter murder, The killing of Abel, all-ruling Father The kindred of Cain crushed with His vengeance; In the feud He rejoiced not, but far away drove him From kindred and kind, that crime to atone for, Meter of Justice. Thence ill-favored creatures, Elves and giants, monsters of ocean, Came into being, and the giants that longtime	The glee of the warriors is overcast by a horrible dread. Cain is referred to as a progenitor of Grendel, and of monsters in general.

Grappled with God; He gave them requital.

[1] R. and t. B. prefer 'ellor-gæst' to 'ellen-gæst' (86): Then the stranger from afar endured, etc.

[2] Some authorities would translate 'demon' instead of 'stranger.'

[3] Some authorities arrange differently, and render: Who dwelt in the moor-fens, the marsh and the fastness, the land of the giant-race.

GRENDEL THE MURDERER.

	When the sun was sunken, he set out to visit	Grendel attacks the
	The lofty hall-building, how the Ring-Danes had used it	sleeping heroes
	For beds and benches when the banquet was over.
	Then he found there reposing many a noble
5	Asleep after supper; sorrow the heroes, ¹
	Misery knew not. The monster of evil
	Greedy and cruel tarried but little,
	Fell and frantic, and forced from their slumbers	He drags off thirty of
	Thirty of thanemen; thence he departed	them, and devours
10	Leaping and laughing, his lair to return to,	them
	With surfeit of slaughter sallying homeward.
	In the dusk of the dawning, as the day was just breaking,
	Was Grendel's prowess revealed to the warriors:
	Then, his meal-taking finished, a moan was uplifted,	A cry of agony goes
15	Morning-cry mighty. The man-ruler famous,	up, when Grendel's
	The long-worthy atheling, sat very woful,	horrible deed is fully
	Suffered great sorrow, sighed for his liegemen,	realized.
[6]	When they had seen the track of the hateful pursuer,
	The spirit accursèd: too crushing that sorrow,
20	Too loathsome and lasting. Not longer he tarried,	The monster returns
	But one night after continued his slaughter	the next night.
	Shameless and shocking, shrinking but little
	From malice and murder; they mastered him fully.
	He was easy to find then who elsewhere looked for 25	A pleasanter place of repose in the lodges,
	A bed in the bowers. Then was brought to his notice
	Told him truly by token apparent
	The hall-thane's hatred: he held himself after Further and faster who the foeman did baffle.
30	² So ruled he and strongly strove against justice
	Lone against all men, till empty uptowered
	The choicest of houses. Long was the season:	King Hrothgar's
	Twelve-winters' time torture suffered	agony and suspense
	The friend of the Scyldings, every affliction,	last twelve years.
35	Endless agony; hence it after ³ became
	Certainly known to the children of men
	Sadly in measures, that long against Hrothgar
	Grendel struggled:—his grudges he cherished,
40	Murderous malice, many a winter,
	Strife unremitting, and peacefully wished he

	'Twas a fearful affliction to the friend of the Scyldings
	Soul-crushing sorrow. Not seldom in private

The devil from hell would help them to lighten
 Their people's oppression. Such practice they used then,
 Hope of the heathen; hell they remembered
 65 In innermost spirit, God they knew not,
 Judge of their actions, All-wielding Ruler,
 No praise could they give the Guardian of Heaven,
 The Wielder of Glory. Woe will be his who Through furious hatred his spirit shall drive to 70 The clutch of the fire, no comfort shall look for,
 Wax no wiser; well for the man who,
 Living his life-days, his Lord may face
 And find defence in his Father's embrace!

The true God they do not know.

- [1] The translation is based on 'weras,' adopted by H.-So.—K. and Th. read 'wera' and, arranging differently, render 119(2)-120: They knew not sorrow, the wretchedness of man, aught of misfortune.—For 'unhælo' (120) R. suggests 'unfælo': The uncanny creature, greedy and cruel, etc.
- [2] S. rearranges and translates: So he ruled and struggled unjustly, one against all, till the noblest of buildings stood useless (it was a long while) twelve years' time: the friend of the Scyldings suffered distress, every woe, great sorrows, etc.
- [3] For 'syððan,' B. suggests 'sárcwidum': Hence in mournful words it became well known, etc. Various other words beginning with 's' have been conjectured.
- [4] The H.-So. glossary is very inconsistent in referring to this passage.—'Sibbe' (154), which H.-So. regards as an instr., B. takes as accus., obj. of 'wolde.' Putting a comma after Deniga, he renders: He did not desire peace with any of the Danes, nor did he wish to remove their life-woe, nor to settle for money.
- [5] Of this difficult passage the following interpretations among others are given: (1) Though Grendel has frequented Heorot as a demon, he could not become ruler of the Danes, on account of his hostility to God. (2) Hrothgar was much grieved that Grendel had not appeared before his throne to receive presents. (3) He was not permitted to devastate the hall, on account of the Creator; i.e. God wished to make his visit fatal to him.—Ne ... wisse (169) W. renders: Nor had he any desire to do so; 'his' being obj. gen. = danach.

BEOWULF GOES TO HROTHGAR'S ASSISTANCE.

So Healfdene's kinsman constantly mused on His long-lasting sorrow; the battle-thane clever
 Was not anywise able evils to 'scape from:
 Too crushing the sorrow that came to the people,
 5 Loathsome and lasting the life-grinding torture,
 Greatest of night-woes. So Higelac's liegeman,
 Good amid Geatmen, of Grendel's achievements
 Heard in his home:¹ of heroes then living
 He was stoutest and strongest, sturdy and noble.
 10 He bade them prepare him a bark that was trusty;
 He said he the war-king would seek o'er the ocean,
 The folk-leader noble, since he needed retainers.
 For the perilous project prudent companions
 Chided him little, though loving him dearly;
 15 They egged the brave atheling, augured him glory.
 The excellent knight from the folk of the Geatmen
 Had liegemen selected, likest to prove them
 Trustworthy warriors; with fourteen companions
 The vessel he looked for; a liegeman then showed them,
 20 A sea-crafty man, the bounds of the country.
 Fast the days fled; the float was a-water,
 The craft by the cliff. Clomb to the prow then
 Well-equipped warriors: the wave-currents twisted
 The sea on the sand; soldiers then carried 25 On the breast of the vessel bright-shining jewels,
 Handsome war-armor; heroes outshoved then,
 Warmen the wood-ship, on its wished-for adventure.
 The foamy-necked floater fanned by the breeze,
 Likest a bird, glided the waters,
 30 Till twenty and four hours thereafter
 The twist-stemmed vessel had traveled such distance
 That the sailing-men saw the sloping embankments,
 The sea cliffs gleaming, precipitous mountains,
 Nesses enormous; they were nearing the limits
 35 At the end of the ocean.² Up thence quickly
 The men of the Weders clomb to the mainland,
 Fastened their vessel (battle weeds rattled,

	War burnies clattered), the Wielder they thanked That the ways o'er the waters had waxen so gentle.
40	Then well from the cliff edge the guard of the Scyldings Who the sea-cliffs should see to, saw o'er the gangway Brave ones bearing beauteous targets, Armor all ready, anxiously thought he, Musing and wondering what men were approaching.	They are hailed by the Danish coast guard
45	High on his horse then Hrothgar's retainer Turned him to coastward, mightily brandished His lance in his hands, questioned with boldness. "Who are ye men here, mail-covered warriors Clad in your corslets, come thus a-driving	His challenge
50	A high riding ship o'er the shoals of the waters, ³ And hither 'neath helmets have hied o'er the ocean? I have been strand-guard, standing as warden, Lest enemies ever anyway ravage Danish dominions with army of war-ships.
55	More boldly never have warriors ventured Hither to come; of kinsmen's approval, Word-leave of warriors, I ween that ye surely Nothing have known. Never a greater one Of earls o'er the earth have I had a sight of	He is struck by Beowulf's appearance.
60	Than is one of your number, a hero in armor; No low-ranking fellow ⁴ adorned with his weapons, But launching them little, unless looks are deceiving, And striking appearance. Ere ye pass on your journey As treacherous spies to the land of the Scyldings
65	And farther fare, I fully must know now What race ye belong to. Ye far-away dwellers, Sea-faring sailors, my simple opinion Hear ye and hearken: haste is most fitting Plainly to tell me what place ye are come from."

[1] 'From hám' (194) is much disputed. One rendering is: Beowulf, being away from home, heard of Hrothgar's troubles, etc. Another, that adopted by S. and endorsed in the H.-So. notes, is: B. heard from his neighborhood (neighbors), i.e. in his home, etc. A third is: B., being at home, heard this as occurring away from home. The H.-So. glossary and notes conflict.

[2] 'Eoletes' (224) is marked with a (?) by H.-So.; our rendering simply follows his conjecture.—Other conjectures as to 'eolet' are: (1) voyage, (2) toil, labor, (3) hasty journey.

[3] The lacuna of the MS at this point has been supplied by various conjectures. The reading adopted by H.-So. has been rendered in the above translation. W., like H.-So., makes 'ic' the beginning of a new sentence, but, for 'helmas bæron,' he reads 'hringed stefnan.' This has the advantage of giving a parallel to 'brontne ceol' instead of a kenning for 'go.'—B puts the (?) after 'holmas', and begins a new sentence at the middle of the line. Translate: What warriors are ye, clad in armor, who have thus come bringing the foaming vessel over the water way, hither over the seas? For some time on the wall I have been coast guard, etc. S. endorses most of what B. says, but leaves out 'on the wall' in the last sentence. If W.'s 'hringed stefnan' be accepted, change line 51 above to, A ring-stemmed vessel hither o'ersea.

[4] 'Seld-guma' (249) is variously rendered: (1) housecarle; (2) home-stayer; (3) common man. Dr. H. Wood suggests a man-at-arms in another's house.

V.

THE GEATS REACH HEOROT.

	The chief of the strangers rendered him answer, War-troopers' leader, and word-treasure opened: "We are sprung from the lineage of the people of Geatland, And Higelac's hearth-friends. To heroes unnumbered	Beowulf courteously replies. We are Geats.
5	My father was known, a noble head-warrior Ecgtheow titled; many a winter He lived with the people, ere he passed on his journey, Old from his dwelling; each of the counsellors Widely mid world-folk well remembers him.	My father Ecgtheow was well-known in his day.
10	We, kindly of spirit, the lord of thy people, The son of King Healfdene, have come here to visit, Folk-troop's defender: be free in thy counsels! To the noble one bear we a weighty commission, The helm of the Danemen; we shall hide, I ween,	Our intentions towards King Hrothgar are of the kindest.
[11]	Naught of our message. Thou know'st if it happen, As we soothly heard say, that some savage despoiler, Some hidden pursuer, on nights that are murky By deeds very direful 'mid the Danemen exhibits Hatred unheard of, horrid destruction	Is it true that a monster is slaying Danish heroes?

20	And the falling of dead. From feelings least selfish I am able to render counsel to Hrothgar, How he, wise and worthy, may worst the destroyer, If the anguish of sorrow should ever be lessened, ¹ Comfort come to him, and care-waves grow cooler,	I can help your king to free himself from this horrible creature.
25	Or ever hereafter he agony suffer And troublous distress, while towereth upward The handsomest of houses high on the summit.” Bestriding his stallion, the strand-watchman answered, The doughty retainer: “The difference surely ’Twixt words and works, the warlike shield-bearer Who judgeth wisely well shall determine. This band, I hear, beareth no malice To the prince of the Scyldings. Pass ye then onward With weapons and armor. I shall lead you in person; To my war-trusty vassals command I shall issue To keep from all injury your excellent vessel, Your fresh-tarred craft, ’gainst every opposer Close by the sea-shore, till the curved-neckèd bark shall Waft back again the well-beloved hero O’er the way of the water to Weder dominions. To warrior so great ’twill be granted sure In the storm of strife to stand secure.” Onward they fared then (the vessel lay quiet, The broad-bosomed bark was bound by its cable, Firmly at anchor); the boar-signs glistened ² Bright on the visors vivid with gilding, Blaze-hardened, brilliant; the boar acted warden. The heroes hastened, hurried the liegemen, Descended together, till they saw the great palace, The well-fashioned wassail-hall wondrous and gleaming: ’Mid world-folk and kindreds that was widest reputed Of halls under heaven which the hero abode in; Its lustre enlightened lands without number. Then the battle-brave hero showed them the glittering Court of the bold ones, that they easily thither Might fare on their journey; the aforementioned warrior Turning his courser, quoth as he left them: “’Tis time I were faring; Father Almighty Grant you His grace, and give you to journey Safe on your mission! To the sea I will get me ’Gainst hostile warriors as warden to stand.”	The coast-guard reminds Beowulf that it is easier to say than to do. I am satisfied of your good intentions, and shall lead you to the palace. Your boat shall be well cared for during your stay here. He again compliments Beowulf. The land is perhaps rolling. Heorot flashes on their view. The coast-guard, having discharged his duty, bids them God- speed.

[1] ‘Edwendan’ (280) B. takes to be the subs. ‘edwenden’ (cf. 1775); and ‘bisigu’ he takes as gen. sing., limiting ‘edwenden’: If reparation for sorrows is ever to come. This is supported by t.B.

[2] Combining the emendations of B. and t.B., we may read: The boar-images glistened ... brilliant, protected the life of the war-mooded man. They read ‘ferh-wearde’ (305) and ‘gúðmódgum men’ (306).

VI.

BEOWULF INTRODUCES HIMSELF AT THE PALACE.

5	The highway glistened with many-hued pebble, A by-path led the liegemen together. ¹ Firm and hand-locked the war-burnie glistened, The ring-sword radiant rang ’mid the armor As the party was approaching the palace together In warlike equipments. ’Gainst the wall of the building Their wide-fashioned war-shields they weary did set then, Battle-shields sturdy; benchward they turned then; Their battle-sarks rattled, the gear of the heroes; The lances stood up then, all in a cluster, The arms of the seamen, ashen-shafts mounted With edges of iron: the armor-clad troopers Were decked with weapons. Then a proud-mooded hero Asked of the champions questions of lineage: “From what borders bear ye your battle-shields plated, Gilded and gleaming, your gray-colored burnies, Helmets with visors and heap of war-lances?— To Hrothgar the king I am servant and liegeman. ’Mong folk from far-lands found I have never	They set their arms and armor against the wall. 20	Men so many of mien more courageous. I ween that from valor, nowise as outlaws, But from greatness of soul ye sought for King Hrothgar.” Then the strength-famous earlman answer rendered, The proud-mooded Wederchief replied to his question,	He expresses no little admiration for the strangers. Beowulf replies.
25	Hardy 'neath helmet: “Higelac’s mates are we; Beowulf hight I. To the bairn of Healfdene, The famous folk-leader, I freely will tell To thy prince my commission, if pleasantly hearing He’ll grant we may greet him so gracious to all men.”	We are Higelac’s table-companions, and bear an important commission to your prince.
30	Wulfgar replied then (he was prince of the Wendels, His boldness of spirit was known unto many, His prowess and prudence): “The prince of the Scyldings, The friend-lord of Danemen, I will ask of thy journey, The giver of rings, as thou urgest me do it,	Wulfgar, the thane, says that he will go and ask Hrothgar whether he will see the strangers.
35	The folk-chief famous, and inform thee early What answer the good one mindeth to render me.” He turned then hurriedly where Hrothgar was sitting, ² Old and hoary, his earlmen attending him; The strength-famous went till he stood at the shoulder
40	Of the lord of the Danemen, of courteous thanemen The custom he minded. Wulfgar addressed then His friendly liegelord: “Folk of the Geatmen O’er the way of the waters are wafted hither, Faring from far-lands: the foremost in rank	He thereupon urges his liegelord to receive the visitors courteously.

[1] Instead of the punctuation given by H.-So, S. proposed to insert a comma after ‘scír’ (322), and to take ‘hring-íren’ as meaning ‘ring-mail’ and as parallel with ‘gúð-byrne.’ The passage would then read: The firm and hand-locked war-burnie shone, bright ring-mail, rang ’mid the armor, etc.

[2] Gr. and others translate ‘unhár’ by ‘bald’; old and bald.

VII.

HROTHGAR AND BEOWULF.

5	Hrothgar answered, helm of the Scyldings: “I remember this man as the merest of striplings. His father long dead now was Ecgtheow titled, Him Hrethel the Geatman granted at home his One only daughter; his battle-brave son Is come but now, sought a trustworthy friend. Seafaring sailors asserted it then, Who valuable gift-gems of the Geatmen ¹ carried As peace-offering thither, that he thirty men’s grapple Has in his hand, the hero-in-battle. The holy Creator usward sent him, To West-Dane warriors, I ween, for to render 'Gainst Grendel’s grimness gracious assistance: I shall give to the good one gift-gems for courage.	Hrothgar remembers Beowulf as a youth, and also remembers his father.
10	Hasten to bid them hither to speed them, ² To see assembled this circle of kinsmen; Tell them expressly they’re welcome in sooth to The men of the Danes.” To the door of the building Wulfgar went then, this word-message shouted: “My victorious liegelord bade me to tell you, The East-Danes’ atheling, that your origin knows he, And o’er wave-billows wafted ye welcome are hither, Valiant of spirit. Ye straightway may enter Clad in corslets, cased in your helmets, To see King Hrothgar. Here let your battle-boards, Wood-spears and war-shafts, await your conferring.” The mighty one rose then, with many a liegeman, An excellent thane-group; some there did await them, And as bid of the brave one the battle-gear guarded.	Beowulf is reported to have the strength of thirty men. God hath sent him to our rescue.
15	Together they hied them, while the hero did guide them,
20		Wulfgar invites the strangers in.

	'Neath Heorot's roof; the high-minded went then Sturdy 'neath helmet till he stood in the building. Beowulf spake (his burnie did glisten, His armor seamed over by the art of the craftsman):
35	"Hail thou, Hrothgar! I am Higelac's kinsman And vassal forsooth; many a wonder I dared as a stripling. The doings of Grendel, In far-off fatherland I fully did know of: Sea-farers tell us, this hall-building standeth, Excellent edifice, empty and useless	Beowulf salutes Hrothgar, and then proceeds to boast of his youthful achievements.
40	To all the earlmen after evenlight's glimmer 'Neath heaven's bright hues hath hidden its glory. This my earls then urged me, the most excellent of them, Carles very clever, to come and assist thee, Folk-leader Hrothgar; fully they knew of
45	The strength of my body. Themselves they beheld me When I came from the contest, when covered with gore Foes I escaped from, where five ³ I had bound, The giant-race wasted, in the waters destroying	His fight with the nickers.

55	Beg of thy bounty, Bright-Danish chieftain, Lord of the Scyldings, this single petition: Not to refuse me, defender of warriors, Friend-lord of folks, so far have I sought thee, That I may unaided, my earlmen assisting me,
60	This brave-mooded war-band, purify Heorot. I have heard on inquiry, the horrible creature From veriest rashness recks not for weapons; I this do scorn then, so be Higelac gracious, My liegelord beloved, lenient of spirit,	Since the monster uses no weapons,
65	To bear a blade or a broad-fashioned target, A shield to the onset; only with hand-grip The foe I must grapple, fight for my life then, Foeman with foeman; he fain must rely on The doom of the Lord whom death layeth hold of.	I, too, shall disdain to use any.
70	I ween he will wish, if he win in the struggle, To eat in the war-hall earls of the Geat-folk, Boldly to swallow ⁴ them, as of yore he did often The best of the Hrethmen! Thou needest not trouble A head-watch to give me; ⁵ he will have me dripping	Should he crush me, he will eat my companions as he has eaten thy thanes.
[17]	75 And dreary with gore, if death overtake me, ⁶ Will bear me off bleeding, biting and mouthing me, The hermit will eat me, heedless of pity, Marking the moor-fens; no more wilt thou need then Find me my food. ⁷ If I fall in the battle,	In case of my defeat, thou wilt not have the trouble of burying me.
80	Send to Higelac the armor that serveth To shield my bosom, the best of equipments, Richest of ring-mails; 'tis the relic of Hrethla, The work of Wayland. Goes Weird as she must go!"	Should I fall, send my armor to my lord, King Higelac. Weird is supreme

[1] Some render 'gif-sceattas' by 'tribute.'—'Géata' B. and Th. emended to 'Géatum.' If this be accepted, change 'of the Geatmen' to 'to the Geatmen.'

[2] If t.B.'s emendation of vv. 386, 387 be accepted, the two lines, 'Hasten ... kinsmen' will read:
Hasten thou, bid the throng of kinsmen go into the hall together.

[3] For 420 (b) and 421 (a), B. suggests: Ðær ic (on) fifelgeban ýðde eotena cyn = where I in the ocean destroyed the eoten-race.—t.B. accepts B.'s "brilliant" 'fifelgeban,' omits 'on,' emends 'cyn' to 'hám,' arranging: Ðær ic fifelgeban ýðde, eotena hám = where I desolated the ocean, the home of the eotens.—This would be better but for changing 'cyn' to 'hám.'—I suggest: Ðær ic fifelgeband (cf. nhd. Bande) ýðde, eotena cyn = where I conquered the monster band, the race of the eotens. This makes no change except to read 'fifel' for 'fife.'

[4] 'Unforhte' (444) is much disputed.—H.-So. wavers between adj. and adv. Gr. and B. take it as an adv. modifying etan: Will eat the Geats fearlessly.—Kl. considers this reading absurd, and proposes 'anforhte' = timid.—Understanding 'unforhte' as an adj. has this advantage, viz. that it gives a parallel to 'Geátena leóde': but to take it as an adv. is more natural. Furthermore, to call the Geats 'brave' might, at this point, seem like an implied thrust at the Danes, so long helpless; while to call his own men 'timid' would be befouling his own nest.

[5] For 'head-watch,' cf. H.-So. notes and cf. v. 2910.—Th. translates: Thou wilt not need my head to hide (i.e., thou wilt have no occasion to bury me, as Grendel will devour me whole).—Simrock imagines a kind of dead-watch.—Dr. H. Wood suggests: Thou wilt not have to bury so much as my head (for Grendel will be a thorough undertaker),—grim humor.

[6] S. proposes a colon after 'nimeð' (l. 447). This would make no essential change in the translation.

[7] Owing to the vagueness of 'feorme' (451), this passage is variously translated. In our translation, H.-So.'s glossary has been quite closely followed. This agrees substantially with B.'s translation (P. and B. XII. 87). R. translates: Thou needst not take care longer as to the consumption of my dead body. 'Líc' is also a crux here, as it may mean living body or dead body.

	Hrothgar discoursed, helm of the Scyldings:	Hrothgar responds.
	“To defend our folk and to furnish assistance, ¹
	Thou soughtest us hither, good friend Beowulf.
5	The fiercest of feuds thy father engaged in,	Reminiscences of
	Heatholaf killed he in hand-to-hand conflict	Beowulf's father,
	'Mid Wilfingish warriors; then the Wederish people	Ecgtheow.
	For fear of a feud were forced to disown him.
	Thence flying he fled to the folk of the South-Danes,
[18]	The race of the Scyldings, o'er the roll of the waters;
10	I had lately begun then to govern the Danemen,
	The hoard-seat of heroes held in my youth,
	Rich in its jewels: dead was Heregar,
	My kinsman and elder had earth-joys forsaken,
15	Healfdene his bairn. He was better than I am!
	That feud thereafter for a fee I compounded;
	O'er the weltering waters to the Wilfings I sent Ornaments old; oaths did he swear me.

	The building was bloody at breaking of daylight,
30	The bench-deals all flooded, dripping and bloodied,
	The folk-hall was gory: I had fewer retainers,
	Dear-beloved warriors, whom death had laid hold of.
	Sit at the feast now, thy intents unto heroes, ²	Sit down to the feast,
	Thy victor-fame show, as thy spirit doth urge thee!”	and give us comfort.
35	For the men of the Geats then together assembled,	A bench is made
	In the beer-hall blithesome a bench was made ready;	ready for Beowulf
	There warlike in spirit they went to be seated,	and his party.
	Proud and exultant. A liegeman did service,
[19]	Who a beaker embellished bore with decorum,
40	And gleaming-drink poured. The gleeman sang whilom	The gleeman sings
	Hearty in Heorot; there was heroes' rejoicing,	The heroes all rejoice
	A numerous war-band of Weders and Danemen.	together.

[1] B. and S. reject the reading given in H.-So., and suggested by Grtvg. B. suggests for 457-458:

wáere-ryhtum Dú, wine mín Béowulf, and for ár-stafum úsic sóhtest.

This means: From the obligations of clientage, my friend Beowulf, and for assistance thou hast sought us.—This gives coherence to Hrothgar's opening remarks in VIII., and also introduces a new motive for Beowulf's coming to Hrothgar's aid.

[2] Sit now at the feast, and disclose thy purposes to the victorious heroes, as thy spirit urges.—Kl. reaches the above translation by erasing the comma after 'meoto' and reading 'sige-hrèðsecgum.'—There are other and bolder emendations and suggestions. Of these the boldest is to regard 'meoto' as a verb (imperative), and read 'on sæl': Think upon gayety, etc.—All the renderings are unsatisfactory, the one given in our translation involving a zeugma.

IX.

UNFERTH TAUNTS BEOWULF.

Unferth spoke up, Ecglaf his son,	Unferth, a thane of
Who sat at the feet of the lord of the Scyldings,	Hrothgar, is jealous

Opened the jousting (the journey¹ of Beowulf,
 Sea-farer doughty, gave sorrow to Unferth
 5 And greatest chagrin, too, for granted he never
 That any man else on earth should attain to,
 Gain under heaven, more glory than he):
 “Art thou that Beowulf with Breca did struggle,
 10 On the wide sea-currents at swimming contended,
 Where to humor your pride the ocean ye tried,
 From vainest vaunting adventured your bodies
 In care of the waters? And no one was able Nor lief nor loth one, in the least to dissuade you
 Your difficult voyage; then ye ventured a-swimming,
 15 Where your arms outstretching the streams ye did cover,
 The mere-ways measured, mixing and stirring them,
 Glided the ocean; angry the waves were,
 With the weltering of winter. In the water’s possession,
 Ye toiled for a seven-night; he at swimming outdid thee,
 20 In strength excelled thee. Then early at morning
 On the Heathoremes’ shore the holm-currents tossed him,
 Sought he thenceward the home of his fathers,
 Beloved of his liegemen, the land of the Brondings,
 The peace-castle pleasant, where a people he wielded,
 25 Had borough and jewels. The pledge that he made thee
 The son of Beanstan hath soothly accomplished.
 Then I ween thou wilt find thee less fortunate issue,
 Though ever triumphant in onset of battle,
 A grim grappling, if Grendel thou darest
 30 For the space of a night near-by to wait for!”
 Beowulf answered, offspring of Ecgtheow:
 “My good friend Unferth, sure freely and wildly,
 Thou fuddled with beer of Breca hast spoken,
 Hast told of his journey! A fact I allege it,
 35 That greater strength in the waters I had then,
 Ills in the ocean, than any man else had.
 We made agreement as the merest of striplings Promised each other (both of us then were Younkers in years) that we yet would adventure
 40 Out on the ocean; it all we accomplished.
 While swimming the sea-floods, sword-blade unscabbarded
 Boldly we brandished, our bodies expected
 To shield from the sharks. He sure was unable To swim on the waters further than I could,
 45 More swift on the waves, nor would I from him go.
 Then we two companions stayed in the ocean
 Five nights together, till the currents did part us,
 The weltering waters, weathers the bleakest,
 And nethermost night, and the north-wind whistled
 50 Fierce in our faces; fell were the billows.
 The mere fishes’ mood was mightily ruffled:
 And there against foemen my firm-knotted corslet,
 Hand-jointed, hardy, help did afford me;
 My battle-sark braided, brilliantly gilded,
 55 Lay on my bosom. To the bottom then dragged me,
 A hateful fiend-scather, seized me and held me,
 Grim in his grapple: ’twas granted me, nathless,
 To pierce the monster with the point of my weapon,
 My obedient blade; battle offcarried
 60 The mighty mere-creature by means of my hand-blow.

of Beowulf, and undertakes to twit
 him.

Did you take part in a swimming-match with Breca?

’Twas mere folly that actuated you both to risk your lives on the ocean.

Breca outdid you entirely.

Much more will Grendel outdo you, if you vie with him in prowess.

Beowulf retaliates.

O friend Unferth, you are fuddled with beer, and cannot talk coherently.

We simply kept an engagement made in early life.

He could not excel me, and I would not excel him.

After five days the currents separated us.

A horrible sea-beast attacked me, but I slew him.

[1] It has been plausibly suggested that ‘síð’ (in 501 and in 353) means ‘arrival.’ If so, translate the bracket: (the arrival of Beowulf, the brave seafarer, was a source of great chagrin to Unferth, etc.).

BEOWULF SILENCES UNFERTH.—GLEE IS HIGH.

“So ill-meaning enemies often did cause me
 Sorrow the sorest. I served them, in quittance,
 With my dear-loved sword, as in sooth it was fitting;
 They missed the pleasure of feasting abundantly,
 5 Ill-doers evil, of eating my body,
 Of surrounding the banquet deep in the ocean;

My dear sword always served me faithfully.

	But wounded with edges early at morning They were stretched a-high on the strand of the ocean, Put to sleep with the sword, that sea-going travelers	I put a stop to the outrages of the sea- monsters.
10	No longer thereafter were hindered from sailing The foam-dashing currents. Came a light from the east, God's beautiful beacon; the billows subsided, That well I could see the nesses projecting, The blustering crags. Weird often saveth	Fortune helps the brave earl.
15	The undoomed hero if doughty his valor! But me did it fortune ¹ to fell with my weapon Nine of the nickers. Of night-struggle harder 'Neath dome of the heaven heard I but rarely, Nor of wight more woful in the waves of the ocean;
20	Yet I 'scaped with my life the grip of the monsters, Weary from travel. Then the waters bare me To the land of the Finns, the flood with the current, The weltering waves. Not a word hath been told me Of deeds so daring done by thee, Unferth,	After that escape I drifted to Finland. I have never heard of your doing any such bold deeds.
25	And of sword-terror none; never hath Breca At the play of the battle, nor either of you two, Feat so fearless performed with weapons Glinting and gleaming
[22] I utter no boasting; 30 Though with cold-blooded cruelty thou killedst thy brothers, Thy nearest of kin; thou needs must in hell get Direful damnation, though doughty thy wisdom. I tell thee in earnest, offspring of Ecglaf, Never had Grendel such numberless horrors,	You are a slayer of brothers, and will suffer damnation, wise as you may be.
35	The direful demon, done to thy liegelord, Harrying in Heorot, if thy heart were as sturdy, Thy mood as ferocious as thou dost describe them. He hath found out fully that the fierce-burning hatred, The edge-battle eager, of all of your kindred,
40	Of the Victory-Scyldings, need little dismay him: Oaths he exacteth, not any he spares Of the folk of the Danemen, but fighteth with pleasure, Killeth and feasteth, no contest expecteth From Spear-Danish people. But the prowess and valor	Had your acts been as brave as your words, Grendel had not ravaged your land so long. The monster is not afraid of the Danes, but he will soon learn to dread the Geats.
45	Of the earls of the Geatmen early shall venture To give him a grapple. He shall go who is able Bravely to banquet, when the bright-light of morning Which the second day bringeth, the sun in its ether-robos, O'er children of men shines from the southward!"
50	Then the gray-haired, war-famed giver of treasure Was blithesome and joyous, the Bright-Danish ruler Expected assistance; the people's protector Heard from Beowulf his bold resolution. There was laughter of heroes; loud was the clatter,	On the second day, any warrior may go unmolested to the mead-banquet. Hrothgar's spirits are revived. The old king trusts Beowulf. The heroes are joyful. Queen Wealhtheow plays the hostess.
55	The words were winsome. Wealhtheow advanced then, Consort of Hrothgar, of courtesy mindful, Gold-decked saluted the men in the building, And the freeborn woman the beaker presented To the lord of the kingdom, first of the East-Danes,	She offers the cup to her husband first.
60	Bade him be blithesome when beer was a-flowing, Lief to his liegemen; he lustily tasted Of banquet and beaker, battle-famed ruler. The Helmingish lady then graciously circled 'Mid all the liegemen lesser and greater:
[23]	65 Treasure-cups tendered, till time was afforded That the decorous-mooded, diademed folk-queen Might bear to Beowulf the bumper o'errunning; She greeted the Geat-prince, God she did thank, Most wise in her words, that her wish was accomplished, That in any of earlmen she ever should look for	She gives presents to the heroes. Then she offers the cup to Beowulf, thanking God that aid has come.
70	Solace in sorrow. He accepted the beaker, Battle-bold warrior, at Wealhtheow's giving, Then equipped for combat quoth he in measures, Beowulf spake, offspring of Ecgtheow: "I purposed in spirit when I mounted the ocean,	Beowulf states to the queen the object of his visit. I determined to do or die.
75	When I boarded my boat with a band of my liegemen, I would work to the fullest the will of your people Or in foe's-clutches fastened fall in the battle. Deeds I shall do of daring and prowess, Or the last of my life-days live in this mead-hall."
80	These words to the lady were welcome and pleasing, The boast of the Geatman; with gold trappings broidered

	Went the freeborn folk-queen her fond-lord to sit by.
	Then again as of yore was heard in the building	Glee is high.
85	Courtly discussion, conquerors' shouting,
	Heroes were happy, till Healfdene's son would Go to his slumber to seek for refreshing;
	For the horrid hell-monster in the hall-building knew he 90	A fight was determined, ² since the light of the sun they
	No longer could see, and lowering darkness
	O'er all had descended, and dark under heaven
	Shadowy shapes came shying around them.
	The liegemen all rose then. One saluted the other,	Hrothgar retires,
	Hrothgar Beowulf, in rhythmical measures,	leaving Beowulf in
95	Wishing him well, and, the wassail-hall giving	charge of the hall.
	To his care and keeping, quoth he departing:
[24]	"Not to any one else have I ever entrusted,
	But thee and thee only, the hall of the Danemen,
	Since high I could heave my hand and my buckler.
100	Take thou in charge now the noblest of houses;
	Be mindful of honor, exhibiting prowess,
	Watch 'gainst the foeman! Thou shalt want no enjoyments, Survive thou safely adventure so glorious!"

[1] The repetition of 'hwæðere' (574 and 578) is regarded by some scholars as a defect. B. suggests 'swá ðær' for the first: So there it befell me, etc. Another suggestion is to change the second 'hwæðere' into 'swá ðær': So there I escaped with my life, etc.

[2] Kl. suggests a period after 'determined.' This would give the passage as follows: Since they no longer could see the light of the sun, and lowering darkness was down over all, dire under the heavens shadowy beings came going around them.

XI.

ALL SLEEP SAVE ONE.

	Then Hrothgar departed, his earl-throng attending him,	Hrothgar retires.
	Folk-lord of Scyldings, forth from the building;
	The war-chieftain wished then Wealhtheow to look for,
	The queen for a bedmate. To keep away Grendel
5	The Glory of Kings had given a hall-watch,	God has provided a
	As men heard recounted: for the king of the Danemen	watch for the hall.
	He did special service, gave the giant a watcher:
	And the prince of the Geatmen implicitly trusted
10	His warlike strength and the Wielder's protection.	Beowulf is self-
	His armor of iron off him he did then,	confident
	His helmet from his head, to his henchman committed	He prepares for rest.
	His chased-handled chain-sword, choicest of weapons,
	And bade him bide with his battle-equipments.
	The good one then uttered words of defiance,
15	Beowulf Geatman, ere his bed he upmounted:	Beowulf boasts of his
	"I hold me no meaner in matters of prowess,	ability to cope with
	In warlike achievements, than Grendel does himself;	Grendel.
	Hence I seek not with sword-edge to sooth him to slumber,
	Of life to bereave him, though well I am able.
20	No battle-skill ¹ has he, that blows he should strike me,	We will fight with
	To shatter my shield, though sure he is mighty	nature's weapons

	On which hand soever to him seemeth proper."	shall conquer
	Then the brave-mooded hero bent to his slumber,
	The pillow received the cheek of the noble;
	And many a martial mere-thane attending	The Geatish warriors
30	Sank to his slumber. Seemed it unlikely	lie down.

That God Almighty hath governed for ages
 Kindreds and nations. A night very lurid
 The trav'ler-at-twilight came tramping and striding.
 The warriors were sleeping who should watch the horned-building,
 45 One only excepted. 'Mid earthmen 'twas 'stablished,
 Th' implacable foeman was powerless to hurl them
 To the land of shadows, if the Lord were unwilling;
 But serving as warder, in terror to foemen,
 He angrily bided the issue of battle.²

Grendel comes to Heorot.

Only one warrior is awake.

[1] Gr. understood 'gódra' as meaning 'advantages in battle.' This rendering H.-So. rejects. The latter takes the passage as meaning that Grendel, though mighty and formidable, has no skill in the art of war.

[2] B. in his masterly articles on Beowulf (P. and B. XII.) rejects the division usually made at this point, 'Ðá.' (711), usually rendered 'then,' he translates 'when,' and connects its clause with the foregoing sentence. These changes he makes to reduce the number of 'cóm's' as principal verbs. (Cf. 703, 711, 721.) With all deference to this acute scholar, I must say that it seems to me that the poet is exhausting his resources to bring out clearly the supreme event on which the whole subsequent action turns. First, he (Grendel) came in the wan night; second, he came from the moor; third, he came to the hall. Time, place from which, place to which, are all given.

GRENDL AND BEOWULF.

'Neath the cloudy cliffs came from the moor then Grendel going, God's anger bare he. Grendel comes from the fens.
 The monster intended some one of earthmen
 In the hall-building grand to entrap and make way with:
 5 He went under welkin where well he knew of
 The wine-joyous building, brilliant with plating,
 Gold-hall of earthmen. Not the earliest occasion
 He the home and manor of Hrothgar had sought:
 Ne'er found he in life-days later nor earlier
 10 Hardier hero, hall-thanes¹ more sturdy!
 Then came to the building the warrior marching,
 Bereft of his joyance. The door quickly opened
 On fire-hinges fastened, when his fingers had touched it;
 The fell one had flung then—his fury so bitter—
 15 Open the entrance. Early thereafter
 The foeman trod the shining hall-pavement,
 Strode he angrily; from the eyes of him glimmered
 A lustre unlovely likest to fire. He strides furiously into the hall.
 He beheld in the hall the heroes in numbers,
 20 A circle of kinsmen sleeping together,
 A throng of thanemen: then his thoughts were exultant,
 He minded to sunder from each of the thanemen
 The life from his body, horrible demon,
 Ere morning came, since fate had allowed him
 25 The prospect of plenty. Providence willed not
 To permit him any more of men under heaven
 To eat in the night-time. Higelac's kinsman
 Great sorrow endured how the dire-mooded creature
 In unlooked-for assaults were likely to bear him.
 30 No thought had the monster of deferring the matter,
 But on earliest occasion he quickly laid hold of
 A soldier asleep, suddenly tore him,
 Bit his bone-prison, the blood drank in currents,
 Swallowed in mouthfuls: he soon had the dead man's 35 Feet and hands, too, eaten entirely.
 Nearer he strode then, the stout-hearted warrior
 Snatched as he slumbered, seizing with hand-grip,
 Forward the foeman foined with his hand;
 Caught he quickly the cunning deviser,
 40 On his elbow he rested. This early discovered
 The master of malice, that in middle-earth's regions,
 'Neath the whole of the heavens, no hand-grapple greater
 In any man else had he ever encountered:
 Fearful in spirit, faint-mooded waxed he,
 45 Not off could betake him; death he was pondering,
 Would fly to his covert, seek the devils' assembly:
 His calling no more was the same he had followed
 Long in his lifetime. The liege-kinsman worthy
 Of Higelac minded his speech of the evening,

Grendel comes from the fens.

He goes towards the joyous building.

This was not his first visit there.

His horrid fingers
 tear the door open.

He strides furiously
 into the hall.

He exults over his supposed prey.

Fate has decreed that he shall devour no more heroes.
 Beowulf suffers from suspense.

Grendel immediately seizes a sleeping warrior, and devours
 him.

Beowulf and Grendel grapple.

The monster is amazed at Beowulf's strength.

He is anxious to flee.

50	Stood he up straight and stoutly did seize him. His fingers crackled; the giant was outward, The earl stepped farther. The famous one minded To flee away farther, if he found an occasion, And off and away, avoiding delay,	Beowulf recalls his boast of the evening, and determines to fulfil it.
55	To fly to the fen-moors; he fully was ware of The strength of his grapple in the grip of the foeman. 'Twas an ill-taken journey that the injury-bringing, Harrying harmer to Heorot wandered: The palace re-echoed; to all of the Danemen, Dwellers in castles, to each of the bold ones, Earlmen, was terror. Angry they both were, Archwarders raging. ² Rattled the building;	'Twas a luckless day for Grendel. The hall groans.
[28]	'Twas a marvellous wonder that the wine-hall withstood then The bold-in-battle, bent not to earthward, Excellent earth-hall; but within and without it Was fastened so firmly in fetters of iron, By the art of the armorer. Off from the sill there Bent mead-benches many, as men have informed me, Adorned with gold-work, where the grim ones did struggle.
65	The Scylding wise men weened ne'er before That by might and main-strength a man under heaven Might break it in pieces, bone-decked, resplendent, Crush it by cunning, unless clutch of the fire In smoke should consume it. The sound mounted upward
70	Novel enough; on the North Danes fastened A terror of anguish, on all of the men there Who heard from the wall the weeping and plaining, The song of defeat from the foeman of heaven, Heard him hymns of horror howl, and his sorrow	Grendel's cries terrify the Danes.
75	Hell-bound bewailing. He held him too firmly Who was strongest of main-strength of men of that era.

[1] B. and t.B. emend so as to make lines 9 and 10 read: Never in his life, earlier or later, had he, the hell-thane, found a braver hero.—They argue that Beowulf's companions had done nothing to merit such encomiums as the usual readings allow them.

[2] For 'réðe rén-weardas' (771), t.B. suggests 'réðe, rénhearde.' Translate: They were both angry, raging and mighty.

GRENDEL IS VANQUISHED.

5	For no cause whatever would the earlmen's defender Leave in life-joys the loathsome newcomer, He deemed his existence utterly useless To men under heaven. Many a noble Of Beowulf brandished his battle-sword old, Would guard the life of his lord and protector, The far-famous chieftain, if able to do so; While waging the warfare, this wist they but little, Brave battle-thaners, while his body intending	Beowulf has no idea of letting Grendel live.

[29]	Was willing to injure; but weapons of victory Swords and suchlike he had sworn to dispense with. His death at that time must prove to be wretched, And the far-away spirit widely should journey Into enemies' power. This plainly he saw then Who with mirth ¹ of mood malice no little Had wrought in the past on the race of the earthmen (To God he was hostile), that his body would fail him, But Higelac's hardy henchman and kinsman Held him by the hand; hateful to other

The comer-from-far-land had cleansed then of evil, Wise and valiant, the war-hall of Hrothgar, Saved it from violence. He joyed in the night-work, In repute for prowess; the prince of the Geatmen For the East-Danish people his boast had accomplished, Bettered their burdensome bale-sorrows fully, The craft-begot evil they erstwhile had suffered And were forced to endure from crushing oppression, Their manifold misery. [1] It has been proposed to translate 'myrðe' by with sorrow; but there seems no authority for such a rendering. To the present translator, the phrase 'módes myrðe' seems a mere padding for gladly; i.e., he who gladly harassed mankind.

Few of the warriors Who gazed on the foot-tracks of the inglorious creature His parting from life pained very deeply, How, weary in spirit, off from those regions In combats conquered he carried his traces, Fated and flying, to the flood of the nickers. There in bloody billows bubbled the currents, The angry eddy was everywhere mingled And seething with gore, welling with sword-blood;¹ He death-doomed had hid him, when reaved of his joyance He laid down his life in the lair he had fled to, His heathenish spirit, where hell did receive him. Thence the friends from of old backward turned them, And many a younker from merry adventure, Striding their stallions, stout from the seaward, Heroes on horses. 'Mid venomous haters	Sigemund was widely famed.
65	To the hands of foemen he was foully delivered, Offdriven early. Agony-billows Oppressed him too long, to his people he became then, To all the athelings, an ever-great burden;	Heremod, an unfortunate Danish king, is introduced by way of contrast.
70	And the daring one's journey in days of yore Many wise men were wont to deplore, Such as hoped he would bring them help in their sorrow, That the son of their ruler should rise into power, Holding the headship held by his fathers,	Unlike Sigemund and Beowulf, Heremod was a burden to his people.

[1] S. emends, suggesting 'déop' for 'déog,' and removing semicolon after 'wéol.' The two half-lines 'welling ... hid him' would then read: The bloody deep welled with sword-gore. B. accepts 'déop' for 'déog,' but reads 'déað-fæges': The deep boiled with the sword-gore of the death-doomed one.

[2] Another and quite different rendering of this passage is as follows: Oft a liegeman of the king, a fame-covered man mindful of songs, who very many ancient traditions remembered (he found other word-groups accurately bound together) began afterward to tell of Beowulf's adventure, skilfully to narrate it, etc.

[3] Might 'guma gilp-hladen' mean 'a man laden with boasts of the deeds of others'?

[4] t.B. accepts B.'s 'hé þæs áron þáh' as given by H.-So., but puts a comma after 'þáh,' and takes 'siððan' as introducing a dependent clause: He throve in honor since Heremod's strength ... had decreased.

HROTHGAR'S GRATITUDE.

5	Hrothgar discoursed (to the hall-building went he, He stood by the pillar, ¹ saw the steep-rising hall-roof Gleaming with gold-gems, and Grendel his hand there): "For the sight we behold now, thanks to the Wielder Early be offered! Much evil I bided, Snaring from Grendel: ² God can e'er 'complish Wonder on wonder, Wielder of Glory! But lately I reckoned ne'er under heaven Comfort to gain me for any of sorrows,	Hrothgar gives thanks for the overthrow of the monster.

Yet safety regarding	I could not keep the monster from escaping, as God did not will that I should.
45	He suffered his hand behind him to linger, His arm and shoulder, to act as watcher; No shadow of solace the woe-begone creature Found him there nathless: the hated destroyer Liveth no longer, lashed for his evils,	He left his hand and arm behind.

[1] B. and t.B. read 'staþole,' and translate stood on the floor.

[2] For 'snaring from Grendel,' 'sorrows at Grendel's hands' has been suggested. This gives a parallel to 'láðes.' 'Grynna' may well be gen. pl. of 'gymn,' by a scribal slip.

[3] The H.-So punctuation has been followed; but B. has been followed in understanding 'gehwylcne' as object of 'wíd-scofen (hæfde).' Gr. construes 'wéa' as nom abs.

[37]	55 In so manly a manner the mighty-famed chieftain, Hoard-ward of heroes, with horses and jewels War-storms requited, that none e'er condemneth Who willeth to tell truth with full justice.

[1] Kl. suggests 'hroden' for 'háten,' and renders: Then quickly was Heorot adorned within, with hands bedecked.—B. suggests 'gefrætwon' instead of 'gefrætwod,' and renders: Then was it commanded to adorn Heorot within quickly with hands.—The former has the advantage of affording a parallel to 'gefrætwod': both have the disadvantage of altering the text.

[2] The passage 1005-1009 seems to be hopeless. One difficult point is to find a subject for 'gesacan.' Some say 'he'; others supply 'each,' i.e., every soul-bearer ... must gain the inevitable place. The genitives in this case are partitive.—If 'he' be subj., the genitives are dependent on 'gearwe' (= prepared).—The 'he' itself is disputed, some referring it to Grendel; but B. takes it as involved in the parenthesis.

BANQUET (continued).—THE SCOP'S SONG OF FINN AND HNÆF.

	And the atheling of earlmen to each of the heroes Who the ways of the waters went with Beowulf, A costly gift-token gave on the mead-bench, Offered an heirloom, and ordered that that man	Each of Beowulf's companions receives a costly gift.
5	With gold should be paid for, whom Grendel had erstwhile Wickedly slaughtered, as he more of them had done Had far-seeing God and the mood of the hero The fate not averted: the Father then governed All of the earth-dwellers, as He ever is doing;	The warrior killed by Grendel is to be paid for in gold.
10	Hence insight for all men is everywhere fittest, Forethought of spirit! much he shall suffer Of lief and of loathsome who long in this present Useth the world in this woful existence.

15	There was music and merriment mingling together Touching Healfdene's leader; the joy-wood was fingered, Measures recited, when the singer of Hrothgar On mead-bench should mention the merry hall-joyance Of the kinsmen of Finn, when onset surprised them: "The Half-Danish hero, Hnæf of the Scyldings, On the field of the Frisians was fated to perish. Sure Hildeburg needed not mention approving The faith of the Jutemen: though blameless entirely, When shields were shivered she was shorn of her darlings, Of bairns and brothers: they bent to their fate With war-spear wounded; woe was that woman. Not causeless lamented the daughter of Hoce The decree of the Wielder when morning-light came and She was able 'neath heaven to behold the destruction Of brothers and bairns, where the brightest of earth-joys She had hitherto had: all the henchmen of Finn War had oftaken, save a handful remaining, That he nowise was able to offer resistance ¹ To the onset of Hengest in the parley of battle, Nor the wretched remnant to rescue in war from The earl of the atheling; but they offered conditions, Another great building to fully make ready, A hall and a high-seat, that half they might rule with The sons of the Jutemen, and that Folcwalda's son would Day after day the Danemen honor When gifts were giving, and grant of his ring-store To Hengest's earl-troop ever so freely, Of his gold-plated jewels, as he encouraged the Frisians On the bench of the beer-hall. On both sides they swore then A fast-binding compact; Finn unto Hengest With no thought of revoking vowed then most solemnly The woe-begone remnant well to take charge of, His Witan advising; the agreement should no one By words or works weaken and shatter, By artifice ever injure its value, Though reaved of their ruler their ring-giver's slayer They followed as vassals, Fate so requiring: Then if one of the Frisians the quarrel should speak of In tones that were taunting, terrible edges Should cut in requital. Accomplished the oath was, And treasure of gold from the hoard was uplifted. The best of the Scylding braves was then fully Prepared for the pile; at the pyre was seen clearly The blood-gory burnie, the boar with his gilding, The iron-hard swine, athelings many Fatally wounded; no few had been slaughtered. Hildeburg bade then, at the burning of Hnæf, The bairn of her bosom to bear to the fire, That his body be burned and borne to the pyre. The woe-stricken woman wept on his shoulder, ² In measures lamented; upmounted the hero. ³ The greatest of dead-fires curled to the welkin, On the hill's-front crackled; heads were a-melting, Wound-doors bursting, while the blood was a-coursing From body-bite fierce. The fire devoured them, Greediest of spirits, whom war had offcarried From both of the peoples; their bravest were fallen.	Hrothgar's scop recalls events in the reign of his lord's father. Hnæf, the Danish general, is treacherously attacked while staying at Finn's castle. Queen Hildeburg is not only wife of Finn, but a kinswoman of the murdered Hnæf. Finn's force is almost exterminated. Hengest succeeds Hnæf as Danish general. Compact between the Frisians and the Danes. Equality of gifts agreed on. No one shall refer to old grudges. Danish warriors are burned on a funeral- pyre. Queen Hildeburg has her son burnt along with Hnæf.

[1] For 1084, R. suggests 'wiht Hengeste wið gefeohtan.'—K. suggests 'wið Hengeste wiht gefeohtan.' Neither emendation would make any essential change in the translation.

[2] The separation of adjective and noun by a phrase (cf. v. 1118) being very unusual, some scholars have put 'earme on eaxle' with the foregoing lines, inserting a semicolon after 'eaxe.' In this case 'on eaxe' (i.e., on the ashes, cinders) is sometimes read, and this affords a parallel to 'on bæl.' Let us hope that a satisfactory rendering shall yet be reached without resorting to any tampering with the text, such as Lichtenheld proposed: 'earme ides on eaxe gnornode.'

[3] For 'gúð-rinc,' 'gúð-réc,' battle-smoke, has been suggested.

THE FINN EPISODE (continued).—THE BANQUET CONTINUES.

	“Then the warriors departed to go to their dwellings, Reaved of their friends, Friesland to visit, Their homes and high-city. Hengest continued Biding with Finn the blood-tainted winter, Wholly unsundered; ¹ of fatherland thought he Though unable to drive the ring-stemmed vessel O’er the ways of the waters; the wave-deeps were tossing, Fought with the wind; winter in ice-bonds Closed up the currents, till there came to the dwelling A year in its course, as yet it revolveth, If season propitious one always regardeth, World-cheering weathers. Then winter was gone, Earth’s bosom was lovely; the exile would get him, The guest from the palace; on grewsomest vengeance He brooded more eager than on oversea journeys, Whose onset-of-anger he were able to ’complish, The bairns of the Jutemen therein to remember. Nowise refused he the duties of liegeman When Hun of the Frisians the battle-sword Láfing, Fairest of falchions, friendly did give him: Its edges were famous in folk-talk of Jutland. And savage sword-fury seized in its clutches Bold-mooded Finn where he bode in his palace, When the grewsome grapple Guthlaf and Oslaf Had mournfully mentioned, the mere-journey over, For sorrows half-blamed him; the flickering spirit Could not bide in his bosom. Then the building was covered ² With corpses of foemen, and Finn too was slaughtered, The king with his comrades, and the queen made a prisoner. The troops of the Scyldings bore to their vessels All that the land-king had in his palace, Such trinkets and treasures they took as, on searching, At Finn’s they could find. They ferried to Daneland The excellent woman on oversea journey, Led her to their land-folk.” The lay was concluded, The gleeman’s recital. Shouts again rose then, Bench-glee resounded, bearers then offered Wine from wonder-vats. Wealhtheow advanced then Going ’neath gold-crown, where the good ones were seated Uncle and nephew; their peace was yet mutual, True each to the other. And Unferth the spokesman Sat at the feet of the lord of the Scyldings: Each trusted his spirit that his mood was courageous, Though at fight he had failed in faith to his kinsmen. Said the queen of the Scyldings: “My lord and protector, Treasure-bestower, take thou this beaker; Joyance attend thee, gold-friend of heroes, And greet thou the Geatmen with gracious responses! So ought one to do. Be kind to the Geatmen, In gifts not niggardly; anear and afar now Peace thou enjoyest. Report hath informed me Thou’lt have for a bairn the battle-brave hero. Now is Heorot cleansed, ring-palace gleaming; Give while thou mayest many rewards, And bequeath to thy kinsmen kingdom and people, On wending thy way to the Wielder’s splendor. I know good Hrothulf, that the noble young troopers He’ll care for and honor, lord of the Scyldings, If earth-joys thou endest earlier than he doth; I reckon that recompense he’ll render with kindness Our offspring and issue, if that all he remember, What favors of yore, when he yet was an infant, We awarded to him for his worship and pleasure.” Then she turned by the bench where her sons were carousing, Hrethric and Hrothmund, and the heroes’ offspring, The war-youth together; there the good one was sitting ’Twixt the brothers twain, Beowulf Geatman.	The survivors go to Friesland, the home of Finn. Hengest remains there all winter, unable to get away. He devises schemes of vengeance. Guthlaf and Oslaf revenge Hnæf’s slaughter. Finn is slain. The jewels of Finn, and his queen are carried away by the Danes. The lay is concluded, and the main story is resumed. Skinkers carry round the beaker. Queen Wealhtheow greet Hrothgar, as he sits beside Hrothulf, his nephew. Be generous to the Geats. Have as much joy as possible in thy hall, once more purified. I know that Hrothulf will prove faithful if he survive thee. Beowulf is sitting by the two royal sons.

[1] For 1130 (1) R. and Gr. suggest ‘elne unflitme’ as 1098 (1) reads. The latter verse is undisputed; and, for the former, ‘elne’ would be as possible as ‘ealles,’ and ‘unflitme’ is well supported. Accepting ‘elne unflitme’ for both, I would suggest ‘very peaceably’ for both places: (1) Finn to Hengest very peaceably vowed with oaths, etc. (2) Hengest then still the slaughter-stained winter remained there with Finn very peaceably. The two passages become thus correlatives, the second a sequel of the first. ‘Elne,’ in the sense of very (swíðe), needs no argument; and ‘unflitme’ (from ‘flitan’) can, it seems to me, be more plausibly rendered ‘peaceful,’ ‘peaceable,’ than ‘contestable,’ or ‘conquerable.’

[2] Some scholars have proposed 'roden'; the line would then read: Then the building was reddened, etc., instead of 'covered.' The 'h' may have been carried over from the three alliterating 'h's.'

BEOWULF RECEIVES FURTHER HONOR.

[42]	5	A beaker was borne him, and bidding to quaff it Graciously given, and gold that was twisted Pleasantly proffered, a pair of arm-jewels, Rings and corslet, of collars the greatest I've heard of 'neath heaven. Of heroes not any More splendid from jewels have I heard 'neath the welkin, Since Hama off bore the Brosingmen's necklace, The bracteates and jewels, from the bright-shining city, ¹ Eormenric's cunning craftiness fled from, Chose gain everlasting. Geatish Higelac, Grandson of Swerting, last had this jewel When tramping 'neath banner the treasure he guarded, The field-spoil defended; Fate offcarried him When for deeds of daring he endured tribulation, Hate from the Frisians; the ornaments bare he O'er the cup of the currents, costly gem-treasures, Mighty folk-leader, he fell 'neath his target; The ² corpse of the king then came into charge of The race of the Frankmen, the mail-shirt and collar: Warmen less noble plundered the fallen, When the fight was finished; the folk of the Geatmen The field of the dead held in possession. The choicest of mead-halls with cheering resounded. Wealhtheo discoursed, the war-troop addressed she: "This collar enjoy thou, Beowulf worthy, Young man, in safety, and use thou this armor, Gems of the people, and prosper thou fully, Show thyself sturdy and be to these liegemen Mild with instruction! I'll mind thy requital. Thou hast brought it to pass that far and near Forever and ever earthmen shall honor thee, Even so widely as ocean surroundeth The blustering bluffs. Be, while thou livest, A wealth-blessèd atheling. I wish thee most truly Jewels and treasure. Be kind to my son, thou Living in joyance! Here each of the nobles Is true unto other, gentle in spirit, Loyal to leader. The liegemen are peaceful, The war-troops ready: well-drunken heroes, ³ Do as I bid ye." Then she went to the settle. There was choicest of banquets, wine drank the heroes: Weird they knew not, destiny cruel, As to many an earlman early it happened, When evening had come and Hrothgar had parted Off to his manor, the mighty to slumber. Warriors unnumbered warded the building As erst they did often: the ale-settle bared they, 'Twas covered all over with beds and pillows. Doomed unto death, down to his slumber Bowed then a beer-thane. Their battle-shields placed they, Bright-shining targets, up by their heads then; O'er the atheling on ale-bench 'twas easy to see there Battle-high helmet, burnie of ring-mail, And mighty war-spear. 'Twas the wont of that people To constantly keep them equipped for the battle, ⁴ At home or marching—in either condition— At seasons just such as necessity ordered As best for their ruler; that people was worthy.	More gifts are offered Beowulf. A famous necklace is referred to, in comparison with the gems presented to Beowulf. Queen Wealhtheow magnifies Beowulf's achievements. May gifts never fail thee. They little know of the sorrow in store for them. A doomed thane is there with them. They were always ready for battle.

[1] C. suggests a semicolon after 'city,' with 'he' as supplied subject of 'fled' and 'chose.'

[2] For 'feorh' S. suggests 'feoh': 'corpse' in the translation would then be changed to 'possessions,' 'belongings.' This is a better reading than one joining, in such intimate syntactical relations, things so unlike as 'corpse' and 'jewels.'

[3] S. suggests 'wine-joyous heroes,' 'warriors elated with wine.'

[4] I believe this translation brings out the meaning of the poet, without departing seriously from the H.-So. text. 'Oft' frequently means 'constantly,' 'continually,' not always 'often.'—Why 'an

(on) wíg gearwe' should be written 'ánwíg-gearwe' (= ready for single combat), I cannot see. 'Gearwe' occurs quite frequently with 'on'; cf. B. 1110 (ready for the pyre), El. 222 (ready for the glad journey). Moreover, what has the idea of single combat to do with B. 1247 ff.? The poet is giving an inventory of the arms and armor which they lay aside on retiring, and he closes his narration by saying that they were always prepared for battle both at home and on the march.

THE MOTHER OF GRENDEL.

	They sank then to slumber. With sorrow one paid for His evening repose, as often betid them
	While Grendel was holding ¹ the gold-bedecked palace, Ill-deeds performing, till his end overtook him,
5	Death for his sins. 'Twas seen very clearly, Known unto earth-folk, that still an avenger Outlived the loathed one, long since the sorrow Caused by the struggle; the mother of Grendel, Devil-shaped woman, her woe ever minded,	Grendel's mother is known to be thirsting for revenge.
10	Who was held to inhabit the horrible waters, The cold-flowing currents, after Cain had become a Slayer-with-edges to his one only brother, The son of his sire; he set out then banished, Marked as a murderer, man-joys avoiding,	[Grendel's progenitor, Cain, is again referred to.]
15	Lived in the desert. Thence demons unnumbered Fate-sent awoke; one of them Grendel, Sword-cursèd, hateful, who at Heorot met with A man that was watching, waiting the struggle, Where a horrid one held him with hand-grapple sturdy;	The poet again magnifies Beowulf's valor.
20	Nathless he minded the might of his body, The glorious gift God had allowed him, And folk-ruling Father's favor relied on, His help and His comfort: so he conquered the foeman, The hell-spirit humbled: he unhappy departed then,
25	Reaved of his joyance, journeying to death-haunts, Foeman of man. His mother moreover Eager and gloomy was anxious to go on Her mournful mission, mindful of vengeance For the death of her son. She came then to Heorot	Grendel's mother comes to avenge her son.
[45]	30 Where the Armor-Dane earlmen all through the building Were lying in slumber. Soon there became then Return ² to the nobles, when the mother of Grendel Entered the folk-hall; the fear was less grievous By even so much as the vigor of maidens,
35	War-strength of women, by warrior is reckoned, When well-carved weapon, worked with the hammer, Blade very bloody, brave with its edges, Strikes down the boar-sign that stands on the helmet. Then the hard-edgèd weapon was heaved in the building, ³
40	The brand o'er the benches, broad-lindens many Hand-fast were lifted; for helmet he recked not, For armor-net broad, whom terror laid hold of. She went then hastily, outward would get her Her life for to save, when some one did spy her;
45	Soon she had grappled one of the athelings Fast and firmly, when fenward she hied her; That one to Hrothgar was liefest of heroes In rank of retainer where waters encircle, A mighty shield-warrior, whom she murdered at slumber,	She seizes a favorite liegemen of Hrothgar's.
50	A broadly-famed battle-knight. Beowulf was absent, But another apartment was erstwhile devoted To the glory-decked Geatman when gold was distributed. There was hubbub in Heorot. The hand that was famous She grasped in its gore; ⁴ grief was renewed then	Beowulf was asleep in another part of the palace.
[46]	55 In homes and houses: 'twas no happy arrangement In both of the quarters to barter and purchase With lives of their friends. Then the well-agèd ruler, The gray-headed war-thane, was woful in spirit, When his long-trusted liegeman lifeless he knew of, His dearest one gone. Quick from a room was Beowulf brought, brave and triumphant.	Beowulf is sent for.
60	As day was dawning in the dusk of the morning, Went then that earlman, champion noble, Came with comrades, where the clever one bided	He comes at Hrothgar's summons.

65 Whether God all gracious would grant him a respite
 After the woe he had suffered. The war-worthy hero
 With a troop of retainers trod then the pavement
 (The hall-building groaned), till he greeted the wise one,
 The earl of the Ingwins;⁵ asked if the night had 70 Fully refreshed him, as fain he would have it.

Beowulf inquires how Hrothgar had enjoyed his night's rest.

[1] Several eminent authorities either read or emend the MS. so as to make this verse read, While Grendel was wasting the gold-bedecked palace. So 20 15 below: ravaged the desert.

[2] For 'sóna' (1281), t.B. suggests 'sára,' limiting 'edhwyrft.' Read then: Return of sorrows to the nobles, etc. This emendation supplies the syntactical gap after 'edhwyrft.'

[3] Some authorities follow Grein's lexicon in treating 'heard ecg' as an adj. limiting 'sweord': H.-So. renders it as a subst. (So v. 1491.) The sense of the translation would be the same.

[4] B. suggests 'under hróf genam' (v. 1303). This emendation, as well as an emendation with (?) to v. 739, he offers, because 'under' baffles him in both passages. All we need is to take 'under' in its secondary meaning of 'in,' which, though not given by Grein, occurs in the literature. Cf. Chron. 876 (March's A.-S. Gram. § 355) and Oro. Amaz. I. 10, where 'under' = in the midst of. Cf. modern Eng. 'in such circumstances,' which interchanges in good usage with 'under such circumstances.'

[5] For 'néod-laðu' (1321) C. suggests 'néad-láðum,' and translates: asked whether the night had been pleasant to him after crushing-hostility.

HROTHGAR'S ACCOUNT OF THE MONSTERS.

	Hrothgar rejoined, helm of the Scyldings: "Ask not of joyance! Grief is renewed to The folk of the Danemen. Dead is Æschere, Yrmenlaf's brother, older than he,		Hrothgar laments the death of Æschere, his shoulder-companion.
5	My true-hearted counsellor, trusty adviser, Shoulder-companion, when fighting in battle Our heads we protected, when troopers were clashing, And heroes were dashing; such an earl should be ever, An erst-worthy atheling, as Æschere proved him.		He was my ideal hero.
10	The flickering death-spirit became in Heorot His hand-to-hand murderer; I can not tell whither The cruel one turned in the carcass exulting,
[47]	By cramming discovered. ¹ The quarrel she wreaked then, That last night igone Grendel thou killedst		This horrible creature came to avenge Grendel's death.
15	In grewsomest manner, with grim-holding clutches, Since too long he had lessened my liege-troop and wasted My folk-men so foully. He fell in the battle With forfeit of life, and another has followed, A mighty crime-worker, her kinsman avenging,
20	And henceforth hath 'stablished her hatred unyielding, ² As it well may appear to many a liegeman, Who mourneth in spirit the treasure-bestower, Her heavy heart-sorrow; the hand is now lifeless Which ³ availed you in every wish that you cherished.
25	Land-people heard I, liegemen, this saying, Dwellers in halls, they had seen very often A pair of such mighty march-striding creatures, Far-dwelling spirits, holding the moorlands: One of them wore, as well they might notice,		I have heard my vassals speak of these two uncanny monsters who lived in the moors.
30	The image of woman, the other one wretched In guise of a man wandered in exile, Except he was huger than any of earthmen; Earth-dwelling people entitled him Grendel In days of yore: they know not their father,
35	Whe'r ill-going spirits any were borne him Ever before. They guard the wolf-coverts, Lands inaccessible, wind-beaten nesses, Fearfullest fen-deeps, where a flood from the mountains 'Neath mists of the nesses netherward rattles,		The inhabit the most desolate and horrible places.
40	The stream under earth: not far is it henceward Measured by mile-lengths that the mere-water standeth, Which forests hang over, with frost-whiting covered, ⁴ A firm-rooted forest, the floods overshadow.
[48]	There ever at night one an ill-meaning portent A fire-flood may see; 'mong children of men None liveth so wise that wot of the bottom; Though harassed by hounds the heath-stepper seek for,
45

Fly to the forest, firm-antlered he-deer,
 Spurred from afar, his spirit he yieldeth,
 50 His life on the shore, ere in he will venture
 To cover his head. Uncanny the place is:
 Thence upward ascendeth the surging of waters,
 Wan to the welkin, when the wind is stirring
 The weathers unpleasing, till the air groweth gloomy, 55 And the heavens lower. Now is help to be gotten From thee and thee only! The abode thou know'st not,
 The dangerous place where thou'rt able to meet with
 The sin-laden hero: seek if thou darest!
 For the feud I will fully fee thee with money,
 60 With old-time treasure, as erstwhile I did thee,
 With well-twisted jewels, if away thou shalt get thee."

Even the hounded deer will not seek refuge in these uncanny regions.

To thee only can I look for assistance.

[1] For 'gefrægnod' (1334), K. and t.B. suggest 'gefægnod,' rendering 'rejoicing in her fill.' This gives a parallel to 'æse wlanc' (1333).

[2] The line 'And ... yielding,' B. renders: And she has performed a deed of blood-vengeance whose effect is far-reaching.

[3] 'Sé Ðe' (1345) is an instance of masc. rel. with fem. antecedent. So v. 1888, where 'sé Ðe' refers to 'yldo.'

[4] For 'hrimge' in the H.-So. edition, Gr. and others read 'hrinde' (=hrínende), and translate: which rustling forests overhang.

XXII.

BEOWULF SEEKS GRENDEL'S MOTHER.

Beowulf answered, Ecgtheow's son:

"Grieve not, O wise one! for each it is better,
 His friend to avenge than with vehemence wail him;
 Each of us must the end-day abide of 5 His earthly existence; who is able accomplish
 Glory ere death! To battle-thane noble
 Lifeless lying, 'tis at last most fitting.
 Arise, O king, quick let us hasten

Beowulf exhorts the old king to arouse himself for action.

To look at the footprint of the kinsman of Grendel!
 10 I promise thee this now: to his place he'll escape not,
 To embrace of the earth, nor to mountainous forest,
 Nor to depths of the ocean, wherever he wanders.

Practice thou now patient endurance
 Of each of thy sorrows, as I hope for thee soothly!"
 15 Then up sprang the old one, the All-Wielder thanked he,
 Ruler Almighty, that the man had outspoken.
 Then for Hrothgar a war-horse was decked with a bridle,
 Curly-maned courser. The clever folk-leader
 Stately proceeded: stepped then an earl-troop

Hrothgar rouses himself. His horse is brought.

20 Of linden-wood bearers. Her footprints were seen then Widely in wood-paths, her way o'er the bottoms,
 Where she faraway fared o'er fen-country murky,
 Bore away breathless the best of retainers
 Who pondered with Hrothgar the welfare of country.

They start on the track of the female monster.

25 The son of the athelings then went o'er the stony,
 Declivitous cliffs, the close-covered passes,
 Narrow passages, paths unfrequented,
 Nesses abrupt, nicker-haunts many;
 One of a few of wise-mooded heroes,

30 He onward advanced to view the surroundings,
 Till he found unawares woods of the mountain
 O'er hoar-stones hanging, holt-wood unjoyful;
 The water stood under, welling and gory.
 'Twas irksome in spirit to all of the Danemen,

35 Friends of the Scyldings, to many a liegeman
 Sad to be suffered, a sorrow unlittle
 To each of the earlmen, when to Æschere's head they Came on the cliff. The current was seething
 With blood and with gore (the troopers gazed on it).

The sight of Æschere's head causes them great sorrow.

40 The horn anon sang the battle-song ready.
 The troop were all seated; they saw 'long the water then
 Many a serpent, mere-dragons wondrous
 Trying the waters, nickers a-lying
 On the cliffs of the nesses, which at noonday full often 45 Go on the sea-deeps their sorrowful journey,

The water is filled with serpents and sea-dragons.

	Wild-beasts and wormkind; away then they hastened Hot-mooded, hateful, they heard the great clamor, The war-trumpet winding. One did the Geat-prince	One of them is killed by Beowulf.
[50]	50 Sunder from earth-joys, with arrow from bowstring, From his sea-struggle tore him, that the trusty war-missile Pierced to his vitals; he proved in the currents Less doughty at swimming whom death had offcarried. Soon in the waters the wonderful swimmer Was straitened most sorely with sword-pointed boar-spears, 55 Pressed in the battle and pulled to the cliff-edge; The liegemen then looked on the loath-fashioned stranger. Beowulf donned then his battle-equipments, Cared little for life; inlaid and most ample, The hand-woven corslet which could cover his body, 60 Must the wave-deeps explore, that war might be powerless To harm the great hero, and the hating one's grasp might Not peril his safety; his head was protected By the light-flashing helmet that should mix with the bottoms, Trying the eddies, treasure-emblazoned, 65 Encircled with jewels, as in seasons long past The weapon-smith worked it, wondrously made it, With swine-bodies fashioned it, that thenceforward no longer Brand might bite it, and battle-sword hurt it. And that was not least of helpers in prowess 70 That Hrothgar's spokesman had lent him when straitened; And the hilted hand-sword was Hrunting entitled, Old and most excellent 'mong all of the treasures; Its blade was of iron, blotted with poison, Hardened with gore; it failed not in battle 75 Any hero under heaven in hand who it brandished, Who ventured to take the terrible journeys, The battle-field sought; not the earliest occasion That deeds of daring 'twas destined to 'complish. Ecglaf's kinsman minded not soothly, 80 Exulting in strength, what erst he had spoken Drunken with wine, when the weapon he lent to A sword-hero bolder; himself did not venture 'Neath the strife of the currents his life to endanger, [51] To fame-deeds perform; there he forfeited glory, 85 Repute for his strength. Not so with the other When he clad in his corslet had equipped him for battle.	The dead beast is a poor swimmer Beowulf prepares for a struggle with the monster. He has Unferth's sword in his hand. Unferth has little use for swords.

BEOWULF'S FIGHT WITH GRENDEL'S MOTHER.

	Beowulf spake, Ecgtheow's son: "Recall now, oh, famous kinsman of Healfdene, Prince very prudent, now to part I am ready, Gold-friend of earlmen, what erst we agreed on, 5 Should I lay down my life in lending thee assistance, When my earth-joys were over, thou wouldst evermore serve me In stead of a father; my faithful thanemen, My trusty retainers, protect thou and care for, Fall I in battle: and, Hrothgar beloved, 10 Send unto Higelac the high-valued jewels Thou to me hast allotted. The lord of the Geatmen May perceive from the gold, the Hrethling may see it When he looks on the jewels, that a gem-giver found I Good over-measure, enjoyed him while able. 15 And the ancient heirloom Unferth permit thou, The famed one to have, the heavy-sword splendid ¹ The hard-edgèd weapon; with Hrunting to aid me, I shall gain me glory, or grim-death shall take me." The atheling of Geatmen uttered these words and 20 Heroic did hasten, not any rejoinder Was willing to wait for; the wave-current swallowed The doughty-in-battle. Then a day's-length elapsed ere He was able to see the sea at its bottom. Early she found then who fifty of winters 25 The course of the currents kept in her fury, Grisly and greedy, that the grim one's dominion Some one of men from above was exploring.	Beowulf makes a parting speech to Hrothgar. If I fail, act as a kind liegelord to my thanes, and send Higelac the jewels thou hast given me I should like my king to know how generous a lord I found thee to be. Beowulf is eager for the fray. He is a whole day reaching the bottom of the sea. Grendel's mother knows that some one

	Forth did she grab them, grappled the warrior	has reached her domains.
	With horrible clutches; yet no sooner she injured
30	His body unscathed: the burnie out-guarded,
	That she proved but powerless to pierce through the armor,
	The limb-mail locked, with loath-grabbing fingers.
	The sea-wolf bare then, when bottomward came she,
35	The ring-prince homeward, that he after was powerless	She grabs him, and bears him to her den.
	(He had daring to do it) to deal with his weapons,
	But many a mere-beast tormented him swimming,
	Flood-beasts no few with fierce-biting tusks did	Sea-monsters bite and strike him.
	Break through his burnie, the brave one pursued they.
	The earl then discovered he was down in some cavern
40	Where no water whatever anyway harmed him,
	And the clutch of the current could come not anear him,
	Since the roofed-hall prevented; brightness a-gleaming
	Fire-light he saw, flashing resplendent.
	The good one saw then the sea-bottom's monster,
45	The mighty mere-woman; he made a great onset	Beowulf attacks the mother of Grendel.
	With weapon-of-battle, his hand not desisted
	From striking, that war-blade struck on her head then
	A battle-song greedy. The stranger perceived then
	The sword would not bite, her life would not injure,	The sword will not bite.
50	But the falchion failed the folk-prince when straitened:
	Erst had it often onsets encountered,
	Oft cloven the helmet, the fated one's armor:
	'Twas the first time that ever the excellent jewel
	Had failed of its fame. Firm-mooded after,
55	Not heedless of valor, but mindful of glory,
	Was Higelac's kinsman; the hero-chief angry
	Cast then his carved-sword covered with jewels
	That it lay on the earth, hard and steel-pointed;
	He hoped in his strength, his hand-grapple sturdy.	The hero throws down all weapons, and again trusts to his hand-grip.
60	So any must act whenever he thinketh
	To gain him in battle glory unending,
	And is reckless of living. The lord of the War-Geats
[53]	(He shrank not from battle) seized by the shoulder ²
	The mother of Grendel; then mighty in struggle
65	Swung he his enemy, since his anger was kindled,
	That she fell to the floor. With furious grapple
	She gave him requital ³ early thereafter,	Beowulf falls.
	And stretched out to grab him; the strongest of warriors
	Faint-mooded stumbled, till he fell in his traces,
70	Foot-going champion. Then she sat on the hall-guest	The monster sits on him with drawn sword.
	And wielded her war-knife wide-bladed, flashing,
	For her son would take vengeance, her one only bairn.
	His breast-armor woven bode on his shoulder;	His armor saves his life.
	It guarded his life, the entrance defended
75	'Gainst sword-point and edges. Ecgtheow's son there
	Had fatally journeyed, champion of Geatmen,
	In the arms of the ocean, had the armor not given,
	Close-woven corslet, comfort and succor,
	And had God most holy not awarded the victory,	God arranged for his escape.
80	All-knowing Lord; easily did heaven's
	Ruler most righteous arrange it with justice; ⁴
	Uprose he erect ready for battle.

[1] Kl. emends 'wæl-sweord.' The half-line would then read, 'the battle-sword splendid.'—For 'heard-ecg' in next half-verse, see note to 20 39 above.

[2] Sw., R., and t.B. suggest 'feaxe' for 'eaxe' (1538) and render: Seized by the hair.

[3] If 'hand-léan' be accepted (as the MS. has it), the line will read: She hand-reward gave him early thereafter.

[4] Sw. and S. change H.-So.'s semicolon (v. 1557) to a comma, and translate: The Ruler of Heaven arranged it in justice easily, after he arose again.

XXIV.

BEOWULF IS DOUBLE-CONQUEROR.

	Then he saw mid the war-gems a weapon of victory,	Beowulf grasps a giant-sword,
	An ancient giant-sword, of edges a-doughty,
	Glory of warriors: of weapons 'twas choicest,
	Only 'twas larger than any man else was
[54]	Able to bear to the battle-encounter,

	The good and splendid work of the giants. He grasped then the sword-hilt, knight of the Scyldings, Bold and battle-grim, brandished his ring-sword, Hopeless of living, hotly he smote her,
10	That the fiend-woman's neck firmly it grappled, Broke through her bone-joints, the bill fully pierced her Fate-cursèd body, she fell to the ground then: The hand-sword was bloody, the hero exulted.	and fells the female monster.
15	The brand was brilliant, brightly it glimmered, Just as from heaven gemlike shineth The torch of the firmament. He glanced 'long the building, And turned by the wall then, Higelac's vassal Raging and wrathful raised his battle-sword Strong by the handle. The edge was not useless To the hero-in-battle, but he speedily wished to Give Grendel requital for the many assaults he Had worked on the West-Danes not once, but often, When he slew in slumber the subjects of Hrothgar, Swallowed down fifteen sleeping retainers Of the folk of the Danemen, and fully as many Carried away, a horrible prey.
25	He gave him requital, grim-raging champion, When he saw on his rest-place weary of conflict Grendel lying, of life-joys bereavèd, As the battle at Heorot erstwhile had scathed him; His body far bounded, a blow when he suffered, Death having seized him, sword-smiting heavy, And he cut off his head then. Early this noticed The clever carles who as comrades of Hrothgar Gazed on the sea-deeps, that the surging wave-currents Were mightily mingled, the mere-flood was gory: Of the good one the gray-haired together held converse, The hoary of head, that they hoped not to see again The atheling ever, that exulting in victory He'd return there to visit the distinguished folk-ruler:	Beowulf sees the body of Grendel, and cuts off his head.
30	Then many concluded the mere-wolf had killed him. ¹ The ninth hour came then. From the ness-edge departed The bold-mooded Scyldings; the gold-friend of heroes Homeward betook him. The strangers sat down then Soul-sick, sorrowful, the sea-waves regarding: They wished and yet weened not their well-loved friend-lord To see any more. The sword-blade began then, The blood having touched it, contracting and shriveling With battle-icicles; 'twas a wonderful marvel That it melted entirely, likest to ice when The Father unbindeth the bond of the frost and Unwindeth the wave-bands, He who wieldeth dominion Of times and of tides: a truth-firm Creator. Nor took he of jewels more in the dwelling, Lord of the Weders, though they lay all around him, Than the head and the handle handsome with jewels;	The waters are gory. Beowulf is given up for dead.
35	The brand early melted, burnt was the weapon: ² So hot was the blood, the strange-spirit poisonous That in it did perish. He early swam off then Who had bided in combat the carnage of haters, Went up through the ocean; the eddies were cleansèd, The spacious expanses, when the spirit from farland His life put aside and this short-lived existence. The seamen's defender came swimming to land then Doughty of spirit, rejoiced in his sea-gift, The bulky burden which he bore in his keeping. The excellent vassals advanced then to meet him, To God they were grateful, were glad in their chieftain, That to see him safe and sound was granted them.	The giant-sword melts.
40	From the high-minded hero, then, helmet and burnie Were speedily loosened: the ocean was putrid, The water 'neath welkin weltered with gore. Forth did they fare, then, their footsteps retracing, Merry and mirthful, measured the earth-way, The highway familiar: men very daring ³ Bare then the head from the sea-cliff, burdening Each of the earlmen, excellent-valiant. Four of them had to carry with labor The head of Grendel to the high towering gold-hall Upstuck on the spear, till fourteen most-valiant And battle-brave Geatmen came there going	The hero swims back to the realms of day.

Straight to the palace: the prince of the people

 The atheling of earlmen entered the building,

 Doughty shield-warrior, to address King Hrothgar:

 Was borne to the building, where beer-thaners were drinking,

[1] 'Ðæs monige gewearð' (1599) and 'hafað þæs geworden' (2027).—In a paper published some years ago in one of the Johns Hopkins University circulars, I tried to throw upon these two long-doubtful passages some light derived from a study of like passages in Alfred's prose.—The impersonal verb 'geweorðan,' with an accus. of the person, and a þæt-clause is used several times with the meaning 'agree.' See Orosius (Sweet's ed.) 178₇; 204₃₄; 208₂₈; 210₁₅; 280₂₀. In the two Beowulf passages, the þæt-clause is anticipated by 'þæs,' which is clearly a gen. of the thing agreed on.

The first passage (v. 1599 (b)-1600) I translate literally: Then many agreed upon this (namely), that the sea-wolf had killed him.

The second passage (v. 2025 (b)-2027): She is promised ...; to this the friend of the Scyldings has agreed, etc. By emending 'is' instead of 'wæs' (2025), the tenses will be brought into perfect harmony.

In v. 1997 ff. this same idiom occurs, and was noticed in B.'s great article on Beowulf, which appeared about the time I published my reading of 1599 and 2027. Translate 1997 then: Wouldst let the South-Danes themselves decide about their struggle with Grendel. Here 'Súð-Dene' is accus. of person, and 'gúðe' is gen. of thing agreed on.

With such collateral support as that afforded by B. (P. and B. XII. 97), I have no hesitation in departing from H.-So., my usual guide.

The idiom above treated runs through A.-S., Old Saxon, and other Teutonic languages, and should be noticed in the lexicons.

[2] 'Bróden-mæl' is regarded by most scholars as meaning a damaskeened sword. Translate: The damaskeened sword burned up. Cf. 25 16 and note.

[3] 'Cyning-balde' (1635) is the much-disputed reading of K. and Th. To render this, "nobly bold," "excellently bold," have been suggested. B. would read 'cyning-holde' (cf. 290), and render: Men well-disposed towards the king carried the head, etc. 'Cynebealde,' says t.B., endorsing Gr.

BEOWULF BRINGS HIS TROPHIES.— HROTHGAR'S GRATITUDE.

 Beowulf spake, offspring of Ecgtheow: "Lo! we blithely have brought thee, bairn of Healfdene, Prince of the Scyldings, these presents from ocean Which thine eye looketh on, for an emblem of glory. 5 I came off alive from this, narrowly 'scaping: In war 'neath the water the work with great pains I Performed, and the fight had been finished quite nearly, Had God not defended me. I failed in the battle Aught to accomplish, aided by Hrunting, 10 Though that weapon was worthy, but the Wielder of earth-folk Gave me willingly to see on the wall a Heavy old hand-sword hanging in splendor (He guided most often the lorn and the friendless), That I swung as a weapon. The wards of the house then 15 I killed in the conflict (when occasion was given me). Then the battle-sword burned, the brand that was lifted,¹ As the blood-current sprang, hottest of war-sweats; Seizing the hilt, from my foes I offbore it; I avenged as I ought to their acts of malignity, 20 The murder of Danemen. I then make thee this promise, Thou'lt be able in Heorot careless to slumber With thy throng of heroes and the thanes of thy people Every and each, of greater and lesser, And thou needest not fear for them from the selfsame direction 25 As thou formerly fearedst, oh, folk-lord of Scyldings, End-day for earlmen." To the age-hoary man then, [58] The gray-haired chieftain, the gold-fashioned sword-hilt, Old-work of giants, was thereupon given; Since the fall of the fiends, it fell to the keeping 30 Of the wielder of Danemen, the wonder-smith's labor, And the bad-mooded being abandoned this world then, Opponent of God, victim of murder, And also his mother; it went to the keeping 	Beowulf relates his last exploit. God was fighting with me. Heorot is freed from monsters. The famous sword is presented to Hrothgar.

HROTHGAR MORALIZES.—REST AFTER LABOR.

5	"Then bruised in his bosom he with bitter-toothed missile Is hurt 'neath his helmet: from harmful pollution He is powerless to shield him by the wonderful mandates Of the loath-cursèd spirit; what too long he hath holden Him seemeth too small, savage he hoardeth,	A wounded spirit.

		Nor boastfully giveth gold-plated rings, ¹ The fate of the future flouts and forgetteth Since God had erst given him greatness no little, Wielder of Glory. His end-day anear, 10 It afterward happens that the bodily-dwelling Fleetingly fadeth, falls into ruins; Another lays hold who doleth the ornaments, The nobleman's jewels, nothing lamenting, Heedeth no terror. Oh, Beowulf dear, 15 Best of the heroes, from bale-strife defend thee, And choose thee the better, counsels eternal; Beware of arrogance, world-famous champion! But a little-while lasts thy life-vigor's fulness; 'Twill after hap early, that illness or sword-edge 20 Shall part thee from strength, or the grasp of the fire, Or the wave of the current, or clutch of the edges, Or flight of the war-spear, or age with its horrors, Or thine eyes' bright flashing shall fade into darkness: 'Twill happen full early, excellent hero, 25 That death shall subdue thee. So the Danes a half-century I held under heaven, helped them in struggles 'Gainst many a race in middle-earth's regions, With ash-wood and edges, that enemies none On earth molested me. Lo! offsetting change, now, [61] 30 Came to my manor, grief after joyance, When Grendel became my constant visitor, Inveterate hater: I from that malice Continually travailed with trouble no little. Thanks be to God that I gained in my lifetime, 35 To the Lord everlasting, to look on the gory Head with mine eyes, after long-lasting sorrow! Go to the bench now, battle-adornèd Joy in the feasting: of jewels in common We'll meet with many when morning appeareth." 40 The Geatman was gladsome, ganged he immediately To go to the bench, as the clever one bade him. Then again as before were the famous-for-prowess, Hall-inhabiters, handsomely banqueted, Feasted anew. The night-veil fell then 45 Dark o'er the warriors. The courtiers rose then; The gray-haired was anxious to go to his slumbers, The hoary old Scylding. Hankered the Geatman, The champion doughty, greatly, to rest him: An earlman early outward did lead him, 50 Fagged from his faring, from far-country springing, Who for etiquette's sake all of a liegeman's Needs regarded, such as seamen at that time Were bounden to feel. The big-hearted rested; The building uptowered, spacious and gilded, 55 The guest within slumbered, till the sable-clad raven Blithely foreboded the beacon of heaven. Then the bright-shining sun o'er the bottoms came going; ² The warriors hastened, the heads of the peoples Were ready to go again to their peoples, 60 The high-mooded farer would faraway thenceward Look for his vessel. The valiant one bade then, ³ [62] Offspring of Ecglaf, off to bear Hrunting, To take his weapon, his well-beloved iron; He him thanked for the gift, saying good he accounted 65 The war-friend and mighty, nor chid he with words then The blade of the brand: 'twas a brave-mooded hero. When the warriors were ready, arrayed in their trappings, The atheling dear to the Danemen advanced then On to the dais, where the other was sitting, 70 Grim-mooded hero, greeted King Hrothgar.
			Be not over proud: life is fleeting, and its strength soon wasteth away.
			Hrothgar gives an account of his reign.
			Sorrow after joy.
			Beowulf is fagged, and seeks rest.
			The Geats prepare to leave Dane-land.
			Unferth asks Beowulf to accept his sword as a gift. Beowulf thanks him.

[1] K. says 'proudly giveth.'—Gr. says, 'And gives no gold-plated rings, in order to incite the recipient to boastfulness.'—B. suggests 'gyld' for 'gylp,' and renders: And gives no beaten rings for reward.

[2] If S.'s emendation be accepted, v. 57 will read: Then came the light, going bright after darkness: the warriors, etc.

[3] As the passage stands in H.-So., Unferth presents Beowulf with the sword Hrunting, and B. thanks him for the gift. If, however, the suggestions of Grdvtg. and M. be accepted, the passage will read: Then the brave one (i.e. Beowulf) commanded that Hrunting be borne to the son of Ecglaf (Unferth), bade him take his sword, his dear weapon; he (B.) thanked him (U.) for the loan, etc.

XXVII.

SORROW AT PARTING.

	Beowulf spake, Ecgtheow's offspring:	Beowulf's farewell.
	"We men of the water wish to declare now
	Fared from far-lands, we're firmly determined
	To seek King Higelac. Here have we fitly
5	Been welcomed and feasted, as heart would desire it;
	Good was the greeting. If greater affection
	I am anywise able ever on earth to Gain at thy hands, ruler of heroes,
	Than yet I have done, I shall quickly be ready
10	For combat and conflict. O'er the course of the waters	I shall be ever ready
	Learn I that neighbors alarm thee with terror,	to aid thee.
	As haters did whilom, I hither will bring thee
	For help unto heroes henchmen by thousands.
	I know as to Higelac, the lord of the Geatmen,	My liegelord will
15	Though young in years, he yet will permit me,	encourage me in
	By words and by works, ward of the people,	aiding thee.
	Fully to furnish thee forces and bear thee
	My lance to relieve thee, if liegemen shall fail thee,
	And help of my hand-strength; if Hrethric be treating,
[63]	20 Bairn of the king, at the court of the Geatmen,
	He thereat may find him friends in abundance:
	Faraway countries he were better to seek for
	Who trusts in himself." Hrothgar discoursed then, Making rejoinder: "These words thou hast uttered
25	All-knowing God hath given thy spirit!
	Ne'er heard I an earlman thus early in life	O Beowulf, thou art
	More clever in speaking: thou'rt cautious of spirit,	wise beyond thy

	I count on the hope that, happen it ever
30	That missile shall rob thee of Hrethel's descendant,
	Edge-horrid battle, and illness or weapon
	Deprive thee of prince, of people's protector,
	And life thou yet holdest, the Sea-Geats will never
	Find a more fitting folk-lord to choose them,	Should Higelac die,
35	Gem-ward of heroes, than thou mightest prove thee,	the Geats could find

	Thy mood-spirit likes me the longer the better,	than thou wouldst
	Beowulf dear: thou hast brought it to pass that	make.
	To both these peoples peace shall be common,
40	To Geat-folk and Danemen, the strife be suspended,	Thou hast healed the
	The secret assailings they suffered in yore-days;	ancient breach
	And also that jewels be shared while I govern	between our races.
	The wide-stretching kingdom, and that many shall visit
	Others o'er the ocean with excellent gift-gems:
45	The ring-adorned bark shall bring o'er the currents
	Presents and love-gifts. This people I know
	Tow'rd foeman and friend firmly established, ¹
	After ancient etiquette everywise blameless."
	Then the warden of earlmen gave him still farther,
50	Kinsman of Healfdene, a dozen of jewels,	Parting gifts
	Bade him safely seek with the presents
	His well-beloved people, early returning.
[64]	Then the noble-born king kissed the distinguished,	Hrothgar kisses
	Dear-loved liegeman, the Dane-prince saluted him,	Beowulf, and weeps.
55	And claspèd his neck; tears from him fell,
	From the gray-headed man: he two things expected,
	Agèd and reverend, but rather the second,
	² That bold in council they'd meet thereafter.
	The man was so dear that he failed to suppress the
60	Emotions that moved him, but in mood-fetters fastened
	The long-famous hero longeth in secret
	Deep in his spirit for the dear-beloved man	The old king is
	Though not a blood-kinsman. Beowulf thenceward,	deeply grieved to part
	Gold-splendid warrior, walked o'er the meadows	with his benefactor.
65	Exulting in treasure: the sea-going vessel
	Riding at anchor awaited its owner.
	As they pressed on their way then, the present of Hrothgar
	Was frequently referred to: a folk-king indeed that Everyway blameless, till age did debar him	Giving liberally is the 70	The joys of his might, which hath many oft injured.	true proof of kingship.

[1] For 'geworhte,' the crux of this passage, B. proposes 'geþóhte,' rendering: I know this people with firm thought every way blameless towards foe and friends.

[2] S. and B. emend so as to negative the verb 'meet.' "Why should Hrothgar weep if he expects to meet Beowulf again?" both these scholars ask. But the weeping is mentioned before the 'expectations': the tears may have been due to many emotions, especially gratitude, struggling for expression.

XXVIII.

THE HOMEWARD JOURNEY.—THE TWO QUEENS.

	Then the band of very valiant retainers Came to the current; they were clad all in armor, In link-woven burnies. The land-warder noticed The return of the earlmen, as he erstwhile had seen them;	The coast-guard again.
5	Nowise with insult he greeted the strangers From the naze of the cliff, but rode on to meet them; Said the bright-armored visitors ¹ vesselward traveled Welcome to Weders. The wide-bosomed craft then Lay on the sand, laden with armor,
[65]	10 With horses and jewels, the ring-stemmèd sailer: The mast uptowered o'er the treasure of Hrothgar. To the boat-ward a gold-bound brand he presented, That he was afterwards honored on the ale-bench more highly As the heirloom's owner. ² Set he out on his vessel, To drive on the deep, Dane-country left he. Along by the mast then a sea-garment fluttered, A rope-fastened sail. The sea-boat resounded, The wind o'er the waters the wave-floater nowise Kept from its journey; the sea-goer traveled, 20 The foamy-necked floated forth o'er the currents, The well-fashioned vessel o'er the ways of the ocean, Till they came within sight of the cliffs of the Geatmen, The well-known headlands. The wave-goer hastened Driven by breezes, stood on the shore.	Beowulf gives the guard a handsome sword.
15	25 Prompt at the ocean, the port-ward was ready, Who long in the past outlooked in the distance, ³ At water's-edge waiting well-lovèd heroes; He bound to the bank then the broad-bosomed vessel Fast in its fetters, lest the force of the waters Should be able to injure the ocean-wood winsome. Bade he up then take the treasure of princes, Plate-gold and fretwork; not far was it thence To go off in search of the giver of jewels:	The Geats see their own land again.
30	[66] 35 Hrethel's son Higelac at home there remaineth, ⁴ Himself with his comrades close to the sea-coast. The building was splendid, the king heroic, Great in his hall, Hygd very young was, Fine-mooded, clever, though few were the winters That the daughter of Hæreth had dwelt in the borough; 40 But she nowise was cringing nor niggard of presents, Of ornaments rare, to the race of the Geatmen. Thrytho nursed anger, excellent ⁵ folk-queen, Hot-burning hatred: no hero whatever 'Mong household companions, her husband excepted 45 Dared to adventure to look at the woman With eyes in the daytime; ⁶ but he knew that death-chains Hand-wreathed were wrought him: early thereafter, When the hand-strife was over, edges were ready, That fierce-raging sword-point had to force a decision, 50 Murder-bale show. Such no womanly custom For a lady to practise, though lovely her person, That a weaver-of-peace, on pretence of anger A belovèd liegeman of life should deprive. Soothly this hindered Heming's kinsman;	The port-warden is anxiously looking for them.
55	60 Other ale-drinking earlmen asserted That fearful folk-sorrows fewer she wrought them, Tracherous doings, since first she was given Adorned with gold to the war-hero youthful, For her origin honored, when Offa's great palace O'er the fallow flood by her father's instructions She sought on her journey, where she afterwards fully,	Hygd, the noble queen of Higelac, lavish of gifts. Offa's consort, Thrytho, is contrasted with Hygd. She is a terror to all save her husband.

Famed for her virtue, her fate on the king's-seat
 Enjoyed in her lifetime, love did she hold with
 The ruler of heroes, the best, it is told me,
 65 Of all of the earthmen that oceans encompass,
 Of earl-kindreds endless; hence Offa was famous
 Far and widely, by gifts and by battles,
 Spear-valiant hero; the home of his fathers
 He governed with wisdom, whence Eomær did issue
 70 For help unto heroes, Heming's kinsman,
 Grandson of Garmund, great in encounters.

[1] For 'scawan' (1896), 'scaðan' has been proposed. Accepting this, we may render: He said the bright-armored warriors were going to their vessel, welcome, etc. (Cf. 1804.)

[2] R. suggests, 'Gewát him on naca,' and renders: The vessel set out, to drive on the sea, the Dane-country left. 'On' bears the alliteration; cf. 'on hafu' (2524). This has some advantages over the H.-So. reading; viz. (1) It adds nothing to the text; (2) it makes 'naca' the subject, and thus brings the passage into keeping with the context, where the poet has exhausted his vocabulary in detailing the actions of the vessel.—B.'s emendation (cf. P. and B. XII. 97) is violent.

[3] B. translates: Who for a long time, ready at the coast, had looked out into the distance eagerly for the dear men. This changes the syntax of 'léofra manna.'

[4] For 'wunað' (v. 1924) several eminent critics suggest 'wunade' (=remained). This makes the passage much clearer.

[5] Why should such a woman be described as an 'excellent' queen? C. suggests 'frécnu' = dangerous, bold.

[6] For 'an dæges' various readings have been offered. If 'and-éges' be accepted, the sentence will read: No hero ... dared look upon her, eye to eye. If 'án-dæges' be adopted, translate: Dared look upon her the whole day.

XXIX.

BEOWULF AND HIGELAC.

5	Then the brave one departed, his band along with him, Seeking the sea-shore, the sea-marches treading, The wide-stretching shores. The world-candle glimmered, The sun from the southward; they proceeded then onward, Early arriving where they heard that the troop-lord, Ongentheow's slayer, excellent, youthful Folk-prince and warrior was distributing jewels, Close in his castle. The coming of Beowulf Was announced in a message quickly to Higelac, 10 That the folk-troop's defender forth to the palace The linden-companion alive was advancing, Secure from the combat courtward a-going. The building was early inward made ready For the foot-going guests as the good one had ordered.	Beowulf and his party seek Higelac.
15	He sat by the man then who had lived through the struggle, Kinsman by kinsman, when the king of the people Had in lordly language saluted the dear one, In words that were formal. The daughter of Hæreth Coursed through the building, carrying mead-cups. ¹	Beowulf sits by his liegelord. Queen Hygd receives the heroes.
20	[68] She loved the retainers, tendered the beakers To the high-minded Geatmen. Higelac 'gan then Pleasantly plying his companion with questions In the high-towering palace. A curious interest Tormented his spirit, what meaning to see in 25 The Sea-Geats' adventures: "Beowulf worthy, How throve your journeying, when thou thoughtest suddenly Far o'er the salt-streams to seek an encounter, A battle at Heorot? Hast bettered for Hrothgar, The famous folk-leader, his far-published sorrows Any at all? In agony-billows I mused upon torture, distrusted the journey Of the beloved liegeman; I long time did pray thee By no means to seek out the murderous spirit, To suffer the South-Danes themselves to decide on ²	Higelac is greatly interested in Beowulf's adventures. Give an account of thy adventures, Beowulf dear.
35	Grappling with Grendel. To God I am thankful To be suffered to see thee safe from thy journey." Beowulf answered, bairn of old Ecgtheow: "'Tis hidden by no means, Higelac chieftain, From many of men, the meeting so famous, 40 What mournful moments of me and of Grendel Were passed in the place where he pressing affliction On the Victory-Scyldings scathefully brought,	My suspense has been great. Beowulf narrates his adventures.

	Anguish forever; that all I avengèd, So that any under heaven of the kinsmen of Grendel
45	Needeth not boast of that cry-in-the-morning, Who longest liveth of the loth-going kindred, ³ Encompassed by moorland. I came in my journey To the royal ring-hall, Hrothgar to greet there:	Grendel's kindred have no cause to boast.
50	Soon did the famous scion of Healfdene, When he understood fully the spirit that led me, Assign me a seat with the son of his bosom.	Hrothgar received me very cordially.
[69]	The troop was in joyance; mead-glee greater 'Neath arch of the ether not ever beheld I 'Mid hall-building holders. The highly-famed queen, Peace-tie of peoples, oft passed through the building, Cheered the young troopers; she oft tendered a hero A beautiful ring-band, ere she went to her sitting. Oft the daughter of Hrothgar in view of the courtiers To the earls at the end the ale-vessel carried,	The queen also showed up no little honor.
55	Whom Freaware I heard then hall-sitters title, When nail-adorned jewels she gave to the heroes: Gold-bedecked, youthful, to the glad son of Froda Her faith has been plighted; the friend of the Scyldings, The guard of the kingdom, hath given his sanction, ⁴ And counts it a vantage, for a part of the quarrels, A portion of hatred, to pay with the woman.	Hrothgar's lovely daughter.
60	⁵ Somewhere not rarely, when the ruler has fallen, The life-taking lance relaxeth its fury For a brief breathing-spell, though the bride be charming!	She is betrothed to Ingeld, in order to unite the Danes and Heathobards.

[1] 'Meodu-scencum' (1981) some would render 'with mead-pourers.' Translate then: The daughter of Hæreth went through the building accompanied by mead-pourers.

[2] See my note to 1599, supra, and B. in P. and B. XII. 97.

[3] For 'fenne,' supplied by Grdtvg., B. suggests 'fácne' (cf. Jul. 350). Accepting this, translate: Who longest lives of the hated race, steeped in treachery.

[4] See note to v. 1599 above.

[5] This is perhaps the least understood sentence in the poem, almost every word being open to dispute. (1) The 'nó' of our text is an emendation, and is rejected by many scholars. (2) 'Seldan' is by some taken as an adv. (= seldom), and by others as a noun (= page, companion). (3) 'Léodhryre,' some render 'fall of the people'; others, 'fall of the prince.' (4) 'Búgeð,' most scholars regard as the intrans. verb meaning 'bend, rest'; but one great scholar has translated it 'shall kill.' (5) 'Hwær,' Very recently, has been attacked, 'wære' being suggested. (6) As a corollary to the above, the same critic proposes to drop 'oft' out of the text.—t.B. suggests: Oft seldan wære after léodhryre: lýtle hwíle bongár búgeð, þéah séo brýd duge = often has a treaty been (thus) struck, after a prince had fallen: (but only) a short time is the spear (then) wont to rest, however excellent the bride may be.

XXX.

BEOWULF NARRATES HIS ADVENTURES TO HIGELAC.

	"It well may discomfit the prince of the Heathobards And each of the thanemen of earls that attend him, When he goes to the building escorting the woman, That a noble-born Daneman the knights should be feasting:
[70]	There gleam on his person the leavings of elders Hard and ring-bright, Heathobards' treasure, While they wielded their arms, till they misled to the battle Their own dear lives and beloved companions. He saith at the banquet who the collar beholdeth, An ancient ash-warrior who earlmen's destruction Clearly recalleth (cruel his spirit), Sadly beginneth sounding the youthful Thane-champion's spirit through the thoughts of his bosom, War-grief to waken, and this word-answer speaketh:
5	'Art thou able, my friend, to know when thou seest it The brand which thy father bare to the conflict In his latest adventure, 'neath visor of helmet, The dearly-loved iron, where Danemen did slay him, And brave-mooded Scyldings, on the fall of the heroes, (When vengeance was sleeping) the slaughter-place wielded? E'en now some man of the murderer's progeny Exulting in ornaments enters the building, Boasts of his blood-shedding, offbeareth the jewel	Ingeld is stirred up to break the truce.

	Which thou shouldst wholly hold in possession!'
25	So he urgeth and mindeth on every occasion With woe-bringing words, till waxeth the season When the woman's thane for the works of his father, The bill having bitten, blood-gory sleepeth, Fated to perish; the other one thenceward
30	'Scapeth alive, the land knoweth thoroughly. ¹ Then the oaths of the earlmen on each side are broken, When rancors unresting are raging in Ingeld And his wife-love waxeth less warm after sorrow. So the Heathobards' favor not faithful I reckon,
35	Their part in the treaty not true to the Danemen, Their friendship not fast. I further shall tell thee More about Grendel, that thou fully mayst hear, Ornament-giver, what afterward came from	Having made these preliminary statements, I will now tell thee of Grendel, the monster.
[71]	The hand-rush of heroes. When heaven's bright jewel O'er earthfields had glided, the stranger came raging, The horrible night-fiend, us for to visit, Where wholly unharmed the hall we were guarding. To Hondscio happened a hopeless contention, Death to the doomed one, dead he fell foremost,	Hondscio fell first
45	Girded war-champion; to him Grendel became then, To the vassal distinguished, a tooth-weaponed murderer, The well-beloved henchman's body all swallowed. Not the earlier off empty of hand did The bloody-toothed murderer, mindful of evils,
50	Wish to escape from the gold-giver's palace, But sturdy of strength he strove to outdo me, Hand-ready grappled. A glove was suspended Spacious and wondrous, in art-fetters fastened, Which was fashioned entirely by touch of the craftman
55	From the dragon's skin by the devil's devices: He down in its depths would do me unsadly One among many, deed-doer raging, Though sinless he saw me; not so could it happen When I in my anger upright did stand.
60	'Tis too long to recount how requital I furnished For every evil to the earlmen's destroyer; 'Twas there, my prince, that I proudly distinguished Thy land with my labors. He left and retreated, He lived his life a little while longer:	I reflected honor upon my people.
65	Yet his right-hand guarded his footstep in Heorot, And sad-mooded thence to the sea-bottom fell he, Mournful in mind. For the might-rush of battle The friend of the Scyldings, with gold that was plated, With ornaments many, much requited me,	King Hrothgar lavished gifts upon me.
70	When daylight had dawned, and down to the banquet We had sat us together. There was chanting and joyance: The age-stricken Scylding asked many questions And of old-times related; oft light-ringing harp-strings, Joy-telling wood, were touched by the brave one;
[72]	Now he uttered measures, mourning and truthful, Then the large-hearted land-king a legend of wonder Truthfully told us. Now troubled with years The age-hoary warrior afterward began to Mourn for the might that marked him in youth-days; His breast within boiled, when burdened with winters Much he remembered. From morning till night then We joyed us therein as etiquette suffered, Till the second night season came unto earth-folk. Then early thereafter, the mother of Grendel	The old king is sad over the loss of his youthful vigor.
75	Was ready for vengeance, wretched she journeyed; Her son had death ravished, the wrath of the Geatmen. The horrible woman avengèd her offspring, And with mighty mainstrength murdered a hero. There the spirit of Æschere, agèd adviser,	Grendel's mother.
80	Was ready to vanish; nor when morn had lightened Were they anywise suffered to consume him with fire, Folk of the Danemen, the death-weakened hero, Nor the belovèd liegeman to lay on the pyre; She the corpse had offcarried in the clutch of the foeman ²	Æschere falls a prey to her vengeance.
85	'Neath mountain-brook's flood. To Hrothgar 'twas saddest Of pains that ever had preyed on the chieftain; By the life of thee the land-prince then me ³ Besought very sadly, in sea-currents' eddies To display my prowess, to peril my safety,	She suffered not his body to be burned, but ate it.

100 Might-deeds accomplish; much did he promise.
 I found then the famous flood-current's cruel,
 Horrible depth-warder. A while unto us two [73] Hand was in common; the currents were seething
 With gore that was clotted, and Grendel's fierce mother's 105 Head I offhacked in the hall at the bottom
 With huge-reaching sword-edge, hardly I wrested
 My life from her clutches; not doomed was I then,
 But the warden of earlmen afterward gave me
 Jewels in quantity, kinsman of Healfdene. Jewels were freely bestowed upon me.

[1] For 'lifigende' (2063), a mere conjecture, 'wígende' has been suggested. The line would then read: Escapeth by fighting, knows the land thoroughly.

[2] For 'fæðmum,' Gr.'s conjecture, B. proposes 'færunga.' These three half-verses would then read: She bore off the corpse of her foe suddenly under the mountain-torrent.

[3] The phrase 'þíne lýfe' (2132) was long rendered 'with thy (presupposed) permission.' The verse would read: The land-prince then sadly besought me, with thy (presupposed) permission, etc.

XXXI.

GIFT-GIVING IS MUTUAL.

“So the beloved land-prince lived in decorum;
 I had missed no rewards, no meeds of my prowess,
 But he gave me jewels, regarding my wishes,
 Healfdene his bairn; I'll bring them to thee, then,
 5 Atheling of earlmen, offer them gladly.
 And still unto thee is all my affection:¹
 But few of my folk-kin find I surviving
 But thee, dear Higelac!” Bade he in then to carry²
 The boar-image, banner, battle-high helmet,
 10 Iron-gray armor, the excellent weapon,
 In song-measures said: “This suit-for-the-battle
 Hrothgar presented me, bade me expressly,
 Wise-mooded atheling, thereafter to tell thee³
 The whole of its history, said King Heregar owned it,
 15 Dane-prince for long; yet he wished not to give then
 [74] The mail to his son, though dearly he loved him,
 Hereward the hardy. Hold all in joyance!”
 I heard that there followed hard on the jewels
 Two braces of stallions of striking resemblance,
 20 Dappled and yellow; he granted him usance
 Of horses and treasures. So a kinsman should bear him,
 No web of treachery weave for another,
 Nor by cunning craftiness cause the destruction
 Of trusty companion. Most precious to Higelac,
 25 The bold one in battle, was the bairn of his sister,
 And each unto other mindful of favors.
 I am told that to Hygd he proffered the necklace,
 Wonder-gem rare that Wealhtheow gave him,
 The troop-leader's daughter, a trio of horses
 30 Slender and saddle-bright; soon did the jewel
 Embellish her bosom, when the beer-feast was over.
 So Ecgtheow's bairn brave did prove him,
 War-famous man, by deeds that were valiant,
 He lived in honor, beloved companions
 35 Slew not carousing; his mood was not cruel,
 But by hand-strength hugest of heroes then living
 The brave one retained the bountiful gift that
 The Lord had allowed him. Long was he wretched,
 So that sons of the Geatmen accounted him worthless,
 40 And the lord of the liegemen loth was to do him
 Mickle of honor, when mead-cups were passing;
 They fully believed him idle and sluggish,
 An indolent atheling: to the honor-blest man there
 Came requital for the cuts he had suffered.
 45 The folk-troop's defender bade fetch to the building
 The heirloom of Hrethel, embellished with gold,
 So the brave one enjoined it; there was jewel no richer
 In the form of a weapon 'mong Geats of that era;
 In Beowulf's keeping he placed it and gave him
 50 Seven of thousands, manor and lordship.
 Common to both was land 'mong the people,

All my gifts I lay at thy feet.

This armor I have

Estate and inherited rights and possessions,
 To the second one specially spacious dominions,
 To the one who was better. It afterward happened
 55 In days that followed, befell the battle-thanes,
 After Higelac's death, and when Heardred was murdered
 With weapons of warfare 'neath well-covered targets,
 When valiant battlemen in victor-band sought him,
 War-Scylfing heroes harassed the nephew
 60 Of Hereric in battle. To Beowulf's keeping Turned there in time extensive dominions:
 He fittingly ruled them a fifty of winters
 (He a man-ruler wise was, manor-ward old) till
 A certain one 'gan, on gloom-darkening nights, a 65 Dragon, to govern, who guarded a treasure,
 A high-rising stone-cliff, on heath that was grayish:
 A path 'neath it lay, unknown unto mortals.
 Some one of earthmen entered the mountain,
 The heathenish hoard laid hold of with ardor;

[1] This verse B. renders, 'Now serve I again thee alone as my gracious king.'

[2] For 'eafor' (2153), Kl. suggests 'ealdor.' Translate then: Bade the prince then to bear in the banner, battle-high helmet, etc. On the other hand, W. takes 'eaforhéafodsegn' as a compound, meaning 'helmet': He bade them bear in the helmet, battle-high helm, gray armor, etc.

[3] The H.-So. rendering (ærest = history, origin; 'eft' for 'est'), though liable to objection, is perhaps the best offered. 'That I should very early tell thee of his favor, kindness' sounds well; but 'his' is badly placed to limit 'ést.'—Perhaps, 'eft' with verbs of saying may have the force of Lat. prefix 're,' and the H.-So. reading mean, 'that I should its origin rehearse to thee.'

THE HOARD AND THE DRAGON.

* * * * *
 He sought of himself who sorely did harm him,
 But, for need very pressing, the servant of one of
 The sons of the heroes hate-blows evaded,
 5 Seeking for shelter and the sin-driven warrior
 Took refuge within there. He early looked in it,
 * * * * *
 * * * * *
 [76] * * * * * when the onset surprised him,
 10 He a gem-vessel saw there: many of suchlike
 Ancient ornaments in the earth-cave were lying,
 As in days of yore some one of men of Illustrious lineage, as a legacy monstrous,
 There had secreted them, careful and thoughtful,
 15 Dear-valued jewels. Death had offsnatched them,
 In the days of the past, and the one man moreover
 Of the flower of the folk who fared there the longest,
 Was fain to defer it, friend-mourning warder,
 A little longer to be left in enjoyment
 20 Of long-lasting treasure.¹ A barrow all-ready Stood on the plain the stream-currents nigh to,
 New by the ness-edge, unnethe of approaching:
 The keeper of rings carried within a
 25 ²Ponderous deal of the treasure of nobles,
 Of gold that was beaten, briefly he spake then:³
 "Hold thou, O Earth, now heroes no more may,
 The earnings of earlmen. Lo! erst in thy bosom
 Worthy men won them; war-death hath ravished,
 Perilous life-bale, all my warriors,
 30 Liegemen belovèd, who this life have forsaken,
 Who hall-pleasures saw. No sword-bearer have I,
 And no one to burnish the gold-plated vessel,
 The high-valued beaker: my heroes are vanished.
 The hardy helmet behung with gilding
 35 Shall be reaved of its riches: the ring-cleansers slumber
 Who were charged to have ready visors-for-battle,

[77]

And the burnie that bided in battle-encounter
 O'er breaking of war-shields the bite of the edges
 Moulds with the hero. The ring-twisted armor,
 40 Its lord being lifeless, no longer may journey
 Hanging by heroes; harp-joy is vanished,
 The rapture of glee-wood, no excellent falcon
 Swoops through the building, no swift-footed charger
 Grindeth the gravel. A grievous destruction
 45 No few of the world-folk widely hath scattered!"
 So, woful of spirit one after all
 Lamented mournfully, moaning in sadness
 By day and by night, till death with its billows
 Dashed on his spirit. Then the ancient dusk-scather
 50 Found the great treasure standing all open,
 He who flaming and fiery flies to the barrows,
 Naked war-dragon, nightly escapeth
 Encompassed with fire; men under heaven
 Widely beheld him. 'Tis said that he looks for⁴
 55 The hoard in the earth, where old he is guarding
 The heathenish treasure; he'll be nowise the better.
 So three-hundred winters the waster of peoples
 Held upon earth that excellent hoard-hall,
 Till the forementioned earlman angered him bitterly:
 60 The beat-plated beaker he bare to his chieftain
 And fullest remission for all his remissness
 Begged of his liegeland. Then the hoard⁵ was discovered,
 The treasure was taken, his petition was granted
 The lorn-mooded liegeman. His lord regarded 65 The old-work of earth-folk—'twas the earliest occasion.
 When the dragon awoke, the strife was renewed there;
 He snuffed 'long the stone then, stout-hearted found he
 The footprint of foeman; too far had he gone
 With cunning craftiness close to the head of 70 The fire-spewing dragon. So undoomed he may 'scape from Anguish and exile with ease who possesseth
 The favor of Heaven. The hoard-warden eagerly
 Searched o'er the ground then, would meet with the person
 That caused him sorrow while in slumber reclining:
 75 Gleaming and wild he oft went round the cavern,
 All of it outward; not any of earthmen
 Was seen in that desert.⁶ Yet he joyed in the battle,
 Rejoiced in the conflict: oft he turned to the barrow,
 Sought for the gem-cup;⁷ this he soon perceived then 80 That some man or other had discovered the gold,
 The famous folk-treasure. Not fain did the hoard-ward
 Wait until evening; then the ward of the barrow
 Was angry in spirit, the loathed one wished to Pay for the dear-valued drink-cup with fire.
 85 Then the day was done as the dragon would have it,
 He no longer would wait on the wall, but departed
 Fire-impelled, flaming. Fearful the start was
 To earls in the land, as it early thereafter
 To their giver-of-gold was grievously ended.

The fire-dragon

The dragon meets his match.

The hero plunders the dragon's den

[78]

The dragon perceives that some one has disturbed his treasure.

The dragon is infuriated.

[1] For 'long-gestréona,' B. suggests 'láengestréona,' and renders, Of fleeting treasures. S. accepts H.'s 'long-gestréona,' but renders, The treasure long in accumulating.

[2] For 'hard-fyrdne' (2246), B. first suggested 'hard-fyndne,' rendering: A heap of treasures ... so great that its equal would be hard to find. The same scholar suggests later 'hord-wynne dæl' = A deal of treasure-joy.

[3] Some read 'fec-word' (2247), and render: Banning words uttered.

[4] An earlier reading of H.'s gave the following meaning to this passage: He is said to inhabit a mound under the earth, where he, etc. The translation in the text is more authentic.

[5] The repetition of 'hord' in this passage has led some scholars to suggest new readings to avoid the second 'hord.' This, however, is not under the main stress, and, it seems to me, might easily be accepted.

[6] The reading of H.-So. is well defended in the notes to that volume. B. emends and renders: Nor was there any man in that desert who rejoiced in conflict, in battle-work. That is, the hoard-ward could not find any one who had disturbed his slumbers, for no warrior was there, t.B.'s emendation would give substantially the same translation.

[7] 'Sinc-fæt' (2301): this word both here and in v. 2232, t.B. renders 'treasure.'

XXXIII.

BRAVE THOUGH AGED.—REMINISCENCES.

	The stranger began then to vomit forth fire, To burn the great manor; the blaze then glimmered For anguish to earlmen, not anything living	The dragon spits fire.
[79]	5 The war of the worm widely was noticed, The feud of the foeman afar and anear, How the enemy injured the earls of the Geatmen, Harried with hatred: back he hied to the treasure, To the well-hidden cavern ere the coming of daylight.
	10 He had circled with fire the folk of those regions, With brand and burning; in the barrow he trusted, In the wall and his war-might: the weening deceived him. Then straight was the horror to Beowulf published,	Beowulf hears of the havoc wrought by the dragon.
	15 Early forsooth, that his own native homestead, ¹ The best of buildings, was burning and melting, Gift-seat of Geatmen. 'Twas a grief to the spirit Of the good-mooded hero, the greatest of sorrows: The wise one weened then that wielding his kingdom 'Gainst the ancient commandments, he had bitterly angered	He fears that Heaven is punishing him for some crime.
	20 The Lord everlasting: with lorn meditations His bosom welled inward, as was nowise his custom. The fire-spewing dragon fully had wasted The fastness of warriors, the water-land outward, The manor with fire. The folk-ruling hero, 25 Prince of the Weders, was planning to wreak him. The warmen's defender bade them to make him, Earlmen's atheling, an excellent war-shield Wholly of iron: fully he knew then That wood from the forest was helpless to aid him, 30 Shield against fire. The long-worthy ruler Must live the last of his limited earth-days, Of life in the world and the worm along with him, Though he long had been holding hoard-wealth in plenty. Then the ring-prince disdained to seek with a war-band,	He orders an iron shield to be made from him, wood is useless.
	35 With army extensive, the air-going ranger; He felt no fear of the foeman's assaults and He counted for little the might of the dragon, His power and prowess: for previously dared he A heap of hostility, hazarded dangers, 40 War-thane, when Hrothgar's palace he cleansed, Conquering combatant, clutched in the battle The kinsmen of Grendel, of kindred detested. ² 'Twas of hand-fights not least where Higelac was slaughtered, When the king of the Geatmen with clashings of battle, 45 Friend-lord of folks in Frisian dominions, Offspring of Hrethrel perished through sword-drink, With battle-swords beaten; thence Beowulf came then On self-help relying, swam through the waters; He bare on his arm, lone-going, thirty 50 Outfits of armor, when the ocean he mounted. The Hetwars by no means had need to be boastful Of their fighting afoot, who forward to meet him Carried their war-shields: not many returned from The brave-mooded battle-knight back to their homesteads.	He determines to fight alone.
[80]	55 Ecgtheow's bairn o'er the bight-courses swam then, Lone-goer lorn to his land-folk returning, Where Hygd to him tendered treasure and kingdom, Rings and dominion: her son she not trusted, To be able to keep the kingdom devised him 60 'Gainst alien races, on the death of King Higelac. Yet the sad ones succeeded not in persuading the atheling In any way ever, to act as a suzerain To Heardred, or promise to govern the kingdom; Yet with friendly counsel in the folk he sustained him, 65 Gracious, with honor, till he grew to be older, Wielded the Weders. Wide-fleeing outlaws, Ohthere's sons, sought him o'er the waters: They had stirred a revolt 'gainst the helm of the Scylfings, The best of the sea-kings, who in Swedish dominions 70 Distributed treasure, distinguished folk-leader.	Beowulf's early triumphs referred to
	'Twas the end of his earth-days; injury fatal ³ By swing of the sword he received as a greeting, Offspring of Higelac; Ongentheow's bairn	Higelac's death recalled.
[81]		Heardred's lack of capacity to rule.
		Beowulf's tact and delicacy recalled.
		Reference is here made to a visit which Beowulf receives from Eanmund and Eadgils, why they come is not known.

75 Later departed to visit his homestead,
When Heardred was dead; let Beowulf rule them,
Govern the Geatmen: good was that folk-king.

[1] 'Hám' (2326), the suggestion of B. is accepted by t.B. and other scholars.

[2] For 'láðan cynnes' (2355), t.B. suggests 'láðan cynne,' apposition to 'mægum.' From syntactical and other considerations, this is a most excellent emendation.

[3] Gr. read 'on feorme' (2386), rendering: He there at the banquet a fatal wound received by blows of the sword.

XXXIV.

BEOWULF SEEKS THE DRAGON.—BEOWULF'S REMINISCENCES.

He planned requital for the folk-leader's ruin
In days thereafter, to Eadgils the wretched
Becoming an enemy. Ohthere's son then Went with a war-troop o'er the wide-stretching currents
5 With warriors and weapons: with woe-journeys cold he After avenged him, the king's life he took.
So he came off uninjured from all of his battles,
Perilous fights, offspring of Ecgtheow,
From his deeds of daring, till that day most momentous
10 When he fate-driven fared to fight with the dragon.
With eleven companions the prince of the Geatmen
Went lowering with fury to look at the fire-drake:
Inquiring he'd found how the feud had arisen,
Hate to his heroes; the highly-famed gem-vessel
15 Was brought to his keeping through the hand of th' informer.
That in the throng was thirteenth of heroes,
That caused the beginning of conflict so bitter,
Captive and wretched, must sad-mooded thenceward
Point out the place: he passed then unwillingly
20 To the spot where he knew of the notable cavern,
The cave under earth, not far from the ocean,
The anger of eddies, which inward was full of Jewels and wares: a warden uncanny,
Warrior weaponed, wardered the treasure,
25 Old under earth; no easy possession
For any of earth-folk access to get to.
Then the battle-brave atheling sat on the naze-edge,
While the gold-friend of Geatmen gracious saluted
His fireside-companions: woe was his spirit,
30 Death-boding, wav'ring; Weird very near him,
Who must seize the old hero, his soul-treasure look for,
Dragging aloof his life from his body:
Not flesh-hidden long was the folk-leader's spirit.
Beowulf spake, Ecgtheow's son:
35 "I survived in my youth-days many a conflict,
Hours of onset: that all I remember.
I was seven-winters old when the jewel-prince took me,
High-lord of heroes, at the hands of my father,
Hrethel the hero-king had me in keeping,
40 Gave me treasure and feasting, our kinship remembered;
Not ever was I any less dear to him
Knight in the boroughs, than the bairns of his household,
Herebald and Hæthcyn and Higelac mine.
To the eldest unjustly by acts of a kinsman
45 Was murder-bed strewn, since him Hæthcyn from horn-bow
His sheltering chieftain shot with an arrow,
Erred in his aim and injured his kinsman,
One brother the other, with blood-sprinkled spear:
'Twas a feeless fight, finished in malice,
50 Sad to his spirit; the folk-prince however
Had to part from existence with vengeance untaken.
So to hoar-headed hero 'tis heavily crushing¹
To live to see his son as he rideth
Young on the gallows: then measures he chanteth,
55 A song of sorrow, when his son is hanging
For the raven's delight, and aged and hoary
He is unable to offer any assistance.
Every morning his offspring's departure

Beowulf has been preserved through many perils.

With eleven comrades, he seeks the dragon.

A guide leads the way, but very reluctantly.

Beowulf's retrospect.

Hrethel took me when I was seven. He treated me as a son.

One of the brothers accidentally kills another.

No fee could compound for such a calamity.

[A parallel case is supposed.]

60 Is constant recalled: he cares not to wait for
 The birth of an heir in his borough-enclosures,
 Since that one through death-pain the deeds hath experienced.
 He heart-grieved beholds in the house of his son the Wine-building wasted, the wind-lodging places
 Reaved of their roaring; the riders are sleeping,
 65 The knights in the grave; there's no sound of the harp-wood,
 Joy in the yards, as of yore were familiar.

[1] 'Gomelum ceorle' (2445).—H. takes these words as referring to Hrethel; but the translator here departs from his editor by understanding the poet to refer to a hypothetical old man, introduced as an illustration of a father's sorrow.

Hrethrel had certainly never seen a son of his ride on the gallows to feed the crows.

The passage beginning 'swá bið géomorlic' seems to be an effort to reach a full simile, 'as ... so.' 'As it is mournful for an old man, etc. ... so the defence of the Weders (2463) bore heart-sorrow, etc.' The verses 2451 to 2463½ would be parenthetical, the poet's feelings being so strong as to interrupt the simile. The punctuation of the fourth edition would be better—a comma after 'galgan' (2447). The translation may be indicated as follows: (Just) as it is sad for an old man to see his son ride young on the gallows when he himself is uttering mournful measures, a sorrowful song, while his son hangs for a comfort to the raven, and he, old and infirm, cannot render him any kelp—(he is constantly reminded, etc., 2451-2463)—so the defence of the Weders, etc.

XXXV.

REMINISCENCES (continued).—BEOWULF'S LAST BATTLE.

“He seeks then his chamber, singeth a woe-song
 One for the other; all too extensive
 Seemed homesteads and plains. So the helm of the Weders Mindful of Herebald heart-sorrow carried, Hrethel grieves for Herebald.
 5 Stirred with emotion, nowise was able
 To wreak his ruin on the ruthless destroyer:
 He was unable to follow the warrior with hatred,
 With deeds that were direful, though dear he not held him.
 [84] Then pressed by the pang this pain occasioned him,
 10 He gave up glee, God-light elected;
 He left to his sons, as the man that is rich does,
 His land and fortress, when from life he departed.
 Then was crime and hostility 'twixt Swedes and Geatmen, Strife between Swedes and Geats.
 15 O'er wide-stretching water warring was mutual,
 Burdensome hatred, when Hrethel had perished,
 And Ongentheow's offspring were active and valiant,
 Wished not to hold to peace oversea, but
 Round Hreosna-beorh often accomplished
 20 Cruellest massacre. This my kinsman avengèd,
 The feud and fury, as 'tis found on inquiry,
 Though one of them paid it with forfeit of life-joys,
 With price that was hard: the struggle became then Fatal to Hæthcyn, lord of the Geatmen. Hæthcyn's fall at Ravenswood.
 Then I heard that at morning one brother the other
 25 With edges of irons egged on to murder,
 Where Ongentheow maketh onset on Eofor:
 The helmet crashed, the hoary-haired Scylfing
 Sword-smitten fell, his hand then remembered
 Feud-hate sufficient, refused not the death-blow.
 30 The gems that he gave me, with jewel-bright sword I
 'Quited in contest, as occasion was offered:
 Land he allowed me, life-joy at homestead,
 Manor to live on. Little he needed
 From Gepids or Danes or in Sweden to look for 35 Trooper less true, with treasure to buy him;
 'Mong foot-soldiers ever in front I would hie me,
 Alone in the vanguard, and evermore gladly
 Warfare shall wage, while this weapon endureth
 That late and early often did serve me
 40 When I proved before heroes the slayer of Dæghrefn,
 Knight of the Hugmen: he by no means was suffered
 To the king of the Frisians to carry the jewels,
 The breast-decoration; but the banner-possessor Bowed in the battle, brave-mooded atheling. Beowulf refers to his having slain
Dæghrefn.
 [85] 45 No weapon was slayer, but war-grapple broke then
 The surge of his spirit, his body destroying.

		Now shall weapon's edge make war for the treasure, And hand and firm-sword." Beowulf spake then, Boast-words uttered—the latest occasion:
	50	"I braved in my youth-days battles unnumbered; Still am I willing the struggle to look for, Fame-deeds perform, folk-warden prudent, If the hateful despoiler forth from his cavern Seeketh me out!" Each of the heroes,	He boasts of his youthful prowess, and declares himself still fearless.
	55	Helm-bearers sturdy, he thereupon greeted Belovèd co-liegemen—his last salutation: "No brand would I bear, no blade for the dragon, Wist I a way my word-boast to 'compish ¹ Else with the monster, as with Grendel I did it;	His last salutations.
	60	But fire in the battle hot I expect there, Furious flame-burning: so I fixed on my body Target and war-mail. The ward of the barrow ² I'll not flee from a foot-length, the foeman uncanny. At the wall 'twill befall us as Fate decreeth,
	65	Each one's Creator. I am eager in spirit, With the wingèd war-hero to away with all boasting. Bide on the barrow with burnies protected, Earls in armor, which of us two may better Bear his disaster, when the battle is over.	Let Fate decide between us.
	70	'Tis no matter of yours, and man cannot do it, But me and me only, to measure his strength with The monster of malice, might-deeds to 'compish. I with prowess shall gain the gold, or the battle, Direful death-woe will drag off your ruler!"	Wait ye here till the battle is over.
[86]	75	The mighty champion rose by his shield then, Brave under helmet, in battle-mail went he 'Neath steep-rising stone-cliffs, the strength he relied on Of one man alone: no work for a coward. Then he saw by the wall who a great many battles Had lived through, most worthy, when foot-troops collided,

	85	The drake was so fiery. The prince of the Weders Caused then that words came from his bosom, So fierce was his fury; the firm-hearted shouted: His battle-clear voice came in resounding 'Neath the gray-colored stone. Stirred was his hatred,
	90	The hoard-ward distinguished the speech of a man; Time was no longer to look out for friendship. The breath of the monster issued forth first, Vapory war-sweat, out of the stone-cave: The earth re-echoed. The earl 'neath the barrow Lifted his shield, lord of the Geatmen,	Beowulf calls out under the stone arches.
	95	Tow'rd the terrible stranger: the ring-twisted creature's Heart was then ready to seek for a struggle. The excellent battle-king first brandished his weapon, The ancient heirloom, of edges unblunted, ³ To the death-planners twain was terror from other.	The terrible encounter.
	100	The lord of the troopers intrepidly stood then 'Gainst his high-rising shield, when the dragon coiled him Quickly together: in corslet he bided.	Beowulf brandishes his sword, and stands against his shield.
[87]	105	He went then in blazes, bended and striding, Hasting him forward. His life and body The targe well protected, for time-period shorter Than wish demanded for the well-renowned leader, Where he then for the first day was forced to be victor, Famous in battle, as Fate had not willed it.	The dragon coils himself.
	110	The lord of the Geatmen uplifted his hand then, Smiting the fire-drake with sword that was precious, That bright on the bone the blade-edge did weaken, Bit more feebly than his folk-leader needed, Burdened with bale-griefs. Then the barrow-protector, When the sword-blow had fallen, was fierce in his spirit, Flinging his fires, flamings of battle Gleamed then afar: the gold-friend of Weders	The dragon rages

The drake-cavern's bottom; he must live in some region
 Other than this, by the will of the dragon,
 125 As each one of earthmen existence must forfeit.
 'Twas early thereafter the excellent warriors
 Met with each other. Anew and afresh
 The hoard-ward took heart (gasps heaved then his bosom):
 Sorrow he suffered encircled with fire
 130 Who the people erst governed. His companions by no means
 Were banded about him, bairns of the princes,
 With valorous spirit, but they sped to the forest,
 Seeking for safety. The soul-deeps of one were Ruffled by care: kin-love can never

[88]

[1] The clause 2520(2)-2522(1), rendered by 'Wist I ... monster,' Gr., followed by S., translates substantially as follows: If I knew how else I might combat the boastful defiance of the monster. —The translation turns upon 'wiðgrípan,' a word not understood.

[2] B. emends and translates: I will not flee the space of a foot from the guard of the barrow, but there shall be to us a fight at the wall, as fate decrees, each one's Creator.

[3] The translation of this passage is based on 'unsláw' (2565), accepted by H.-So., in lieu of the long-standing 'ungléaw.' The former is taken as an adj. limiting 'sweord'; the latter as an adj. c. 'gúð-cyning': The good war-king, rash with edges, brandished his sword, his old relic. The latter gives a more rhetorical Anglo-Saxon (poetical) sentence.

WIGLAF THE TRUSTY.—BEOWULF IS DESERTED BY FRIENDS AND BY SWORD.

The son of Weohstan was Wiglaf entitled,
 Shield-warrior precious, prince of the Scyldings,
 Ælfhere's kinsman: he saw his dear liegeland
 Enduring the heat 'neath helmet and visor.
 5 Then he minded the holding that erst he had given him,
 The Wægmunding warriors' wealth-blessèd homestead,
 Each of the folk-rights his father had wielded;
 He was hot for the battle, his hand seized the target,
 The yellow-bark shield, he unsheathed his old weapon,
 10 Which was known among earthmen as the relic of Eanmund,
 Ohthere's offspring, whom, exiled and friendless,
 Weohstan did slay with sword-edge in battle,
 And carried his kinsman the clear-shining helmet,
 The ring-made burnie, the old giant-weapon
 15 That Onela gave him, his boon-fellow's armor,
 Ready war-trappings: he the feud did not mention,
 Though he'd fatally smitten the son of his brother.
 Many a half-year held he the treasures,
 The bill and the burnie, till his bairn became able,
 20 Like his father before him, fame-deeds to 'complish;
 Then he gave him 'mong Geatmen a goodly array of Weeds for his warfare; he went from life then
 Old on his journey. 'Twas the earliest time then
 That the youthful champion might charge in the battle
 25 Aiding his liegeland; his spirit was dauntless.
 Nor did kinsman's bequest quail at the battle:
 This the dragon discovered on their coming together.
 Wiglaf uttered many a right-saying,
 Said to his fellows, sad was his spirit:
 30 "I remember the time when, tasting the mead-cup,
 We promised in the hall the lord of us all
 Who gave us these ring-treasures, that this battle-equipment,
 Swords and helmets, we'd certainly quite him,
 Should need of such aid ever befall him:
 35 In the war-band he chose us for this journey spontaneously,
 Stirred us to glory and gave me these jewels,
 Since he held and esteemed us trust-worthy spearmen,
 Hardy helm-bearers, though this hero-achievement
 Our lord intended alone to accomplish,
 40 Ward of his people, for most of achievements,
 Doings audacious, he did among earth-folk.
 The day is now come when the ruler of earthmen
 Needeth the vigor of valiant heroes:
 Let us wend us towards him, the war-prince to succor,

Wiglaf remains true
 —the ideal Teutonic
 liegeman.

Wiglaf recalls
 Beowulf's generosity.

This is Wiglaf's first battle as liegeland of Beowulf.

Wiglaf appeals to the pride of the cowards.

How we have forfeited our liegeland's confidence!

Our lord is in sore need of us.

Through the bale-smoke he stalked then, Went under helmet to the help of his chieftain, Briefly discoursing: "Beowulf dear, Perform thou all fully, as thou formerly saidst, In thy youthful years, that while yet thou livedst Thou wouldst let thine honor not ever be lessened. Thy life thou shalt save, mighty in actions, Atheling undaunted, with all of thy vigor; I'll give thee assistance." The dragon came raging, Wild-mooded stranger, when these words had been uttered	Wiglaf reminds Beowulf of his youthful boasts.

The dragon advances on Beowulf again.
85	Soul-gore seething; sword-blood in waves boiled.

[1] The passage 'Brand ... burnie,' is much disputed. In the first place, some eminent critics assume a gap of at least two half-verses.—'Úrum' (2660), being a peculiar form, has been much discussed. 'Byrdu-scrúð' is also a crux. B. suggests 'býwdu-scrúð' = splendid vestments. Nor is 'bám' accepted by all, 'béon' being suggested. Whatever the individual words, the passage must mean, "I intend to share with him my equipments of defence."

[2] B. would render: Which, as I heard, excelled in stroke every sword that he carried to the strife, even the strongest (sword). For 'Ðonne' he reads 'Ðone,' rel. pr.

THE FATAL STRUGGLE.—BEOWULF'S LAST MOMENTS.

5	Then I heard that at need of the king of the people The upstanding earlman exhibited prowess, Vigor and courage, as suited his nature; ¹ He his head did not guard, but the high-minded liegeman's Hand was consumed, when he succored his kinsman, So he struck the strife-bringing strange-comer lower, Earl-thane in armor, that in went the weapon Gleaming and plated, that 'gan then the fire ² Later to lessen. The liegelord himself then Retained his consciousness, brandished his war-knife, Battle-sharp, bitter, that he bare on his armor: The Weder-lord cut the worm in the middle. They had felled the enemy (life drove out then ³ Puissant prowess), the pair had destroyed him, Land-chiefs related: so a liegeman should prove him,	Wiglaf defends Beowulf.

They had felled the enemy (life drove out then ³ Puissant prowess), the pair had destroyed him, Land-chiefs related: so a liegeman should prove him,	Beowulf draws his knife, and cuts the dragon.
15	Land-chiefs related: so a liegeman should prove him,

[92]	A thaneman when needed. To the prince 'twas the last of His era of conquest by his own great achievements, The latest of world-deeds. The wound then began Which the earth-dwelling dragon erstwhile had wrought him To burn and to swell. He soon then discovered That bitterest bale-woe in his bosom was raging, Poison within. The atheling advanced then, That along by the wall, he prudent of spirit Might sit on a settle; he saw the giant-work, How arches of stone strengthened with pillars The earth-hall eternal inward supported. Then the long-worthy liegeman laved with his hand the Far-famous chieftain, gory from sword-edge, Refreshing the face of his friend-lord and ruler, Sated with battle, unbinding his helmet. Beowulf answered, of his injury spake he, His wound that was fatal (he was fully aware He had lived his allotted life-days enjoying The pleasures of earth; then past was entirely His measure of days, death very near): "My son I would give now my battle-equipments, Had any of heirs been after me granted, Along of my body. This people I governed Fifty of winters: no king 'mong my neighbors Dared to encounter me with comrades-in-battle, Try me with terror. The time to me ordered I bided at home, mine own kept fitly, Sought me no snares, swore me not many Oaths in injustice. Joy over all this I'm able to have, though ill with my death-wounds; Hence the Ruler of Earthmen need not charge me With the killing of kinsmen, when cometh my life out Forth from my body. Fare thou with haste now To behold the hoard 'neath the hoar-grayish stone, Well-lovèd Wiglaf, now the worm is a-lying, Sore-wounded sleepeth, disseized of his treasure. Go thou in haste that treasures of old I, Gold-wealth may gaze on, together see lying The ether-bright jewels, be easier able, Having the heap of hoard-gems, to yield my Life and the land-folk whom long I have governed."	Beowulf's wound swells and burns. He sits down exhausted. Wiglaf bathes his lord's head. Beowulf regrets that he has no son. I can rejoice in a well-spent life. Bring me the hoard, Wiglaf, that my dying eyes may be refreshed by a sight of it.
[93]	55

[1] B. renders: He (W.) did not regard his (the dragon's) head (since Beowulf had struck it without effect), but struck the dragon a little lower down.—One crux is to find out whose head is meant; another is to bring out the antithesis between 'head' and 'hand.'

[2] 'Ðæt þæt fýr' (2702), S. emends to 'þá þæt fýr' = when the fire began to grow less intense afterward. This emendation relieves the passage of a plethora of conjunctive þæt's.

[3] For 'gefyldan' (2707), S. proposes 'gefyldē.' The passage would read: He felled the foe (life drove out strength), and they then both had destroyed him, chieftains related. This gives Beowulf the credit of having felled the dragon; then they combine to annihilate him.—For 'ellen' (2707), Kl. suggests 'e(a)llne.'—The reading 'life drove out strength' is very unsatisfactory and very peculiar. I would suggest as follows: Adopt S.'s emendation, remove H.'s parenthesis, read 'ferh-ellen wræc,' and translate: He felled the foe, drove out his life-strength (that is, made him hors de combat), and then they both, etc.

WIGLAF PLUNDERS THE DRAGON'S DEN.— BEOWULF'S DEATH.

5	Then heard I that Wihstan's son very quickly, These words being uttered, heeded his liegelord Wounded and war-sick, went in his armor, His well-woven ring-mail, 'neath the roof of the barrow. Then the trusty retainer treasure-gems many Victorious saw, when the seat he came near to, Gold-treasure sparkling spread on the bottom, Wonder on the wall, and the worm-creature's cavern, The ancient dawn-flier's, vessels a-standing, Cups of the ancients of cleansers bereavèd, Robbed of their ornaments: there were helmets in numbers, Old and rust-eaten, arm-bracelets many, Artfully woven. Wealth can easily, Gold on the sea-bottom, turn into vanity¹	Wiglaf fulfils his lord's behest. The dragon's den.

	15	Each one of earthmen, arm him who pleaseth! And he saw there lying an all-golden banner High o'er the hoard, of hand-wonders greatest, Linkèd with lacets: a light from it sparkled, That the floor of the cavern he was able to look on,
[94]	20	To examine the jewels. Sight of the dragon Not any was offered, but edge offcarried him. Then I heard that the hero the hoard-treasure plundered, The giant-work ancient reaved in the cavern, Bare on his bosom the beakers and platters, As himself would fain have it, and took off the standard,	The dragon is not there. Wiglaf bears the hoard away.
	25	The brightest of beacons; ² the bill had erst injured (Its edge was of iron), the old-ruler's weapon, Him who long had watched as ward of the jewels, Who fire-terror carried hot for the treasure, Rolling in battle, in middlemost darkness, Till murdered he perished. The messenger hastened, Not loth to return, hurried by jewels: Curiosity urged him if, excellent-mooded, Alive he should find the lord of the Weders
	30	Mortally wounded, at the place where he left him. 'Mid the jewels he found then the famous old chieftain, His liegelord belovèd, at his life's-end gory: He thereupon 'gan to lave him with water, Till the point of his word piercèd his breast-hoard.
	35	Beowulf spake (the gold-gems he noticed), The old one in sorrow: "For the jewels I look on Thanks do I utter for all to the Ruler, Wielder of Worship, with words of devotion, The Lord everlasting, that He let me such treasures	Beowulf is rejoiced to see the jewels.
	40	Gain for my people ere death overtook me. Since I've bartered the agèd life to me granted For treasure of jewels, attend ye henceforward The wants of the war-thanes; I can wait here no longer. The battle-famed bid ye to build them a grave-hill, Bright when I'm burned, at the brim-current's limit;
	45	As a memory-mark to the men I have governed, Aloft it shall tower on Whale's-Ness uprising, That earls of the ocean hereafter may call it Beowulf's barrow, those who barks ever-dashing From a distance shall drive o'er the darkness of waters."	He desires to be held in memory by his people.
[95]	50	The bold-mooded troop-lord took from his neck then The ring that was golden, gave to his liegeman, The youthful war-hero, his gold-flashing helmet, His collar and war-mail, bade him well to enjoy them: "Thou art latest left of the line of our kindred, Of Wægmondung people: Weird hath offcarried All of my kinsmen to the Creator's glory, Earls in their vigor: I shall after them fare."	The hero's last gift and last words.

[1] The word 'oferhígian' (2767) being vague and little understood, two quite distinct translations of this passage have arisen. One takes 'oferhígian' as meaning 'to exceed,' and, inserting 'hord' after 'gehwone,' renders: The treasure may easily, the gold in the ground, exceed in value every hoard of man, hide it who will. The other takes 'oferhígian' as meaning 'to render arrogant,' and, giving the sentence a moralizing tone, renders substantially as in the body of this work. (Cf. 28 13 et seq.)

[2] The passage beginning here is very much disputed. 'The bill of the old lord' is by some regarded as Beowulf's sword; by others, as that of the ancient possessor of the hoard. 'Ær gescód' (2778), translated in this work as verb and adverb, is by some regarded as a compound participial adj. = sheathed in brass.

XXXIX.

THE DEAD FOES.—WIGLAF'S BITTER TAUNTS.

	5	It had wofully chanced then the youthful retainer To behold on earth the most ardent-belovèd At his life-days' limit, lying there helpless. The slayer too lay there, of life all bereavèd, Horrible earth-drake, harassed with sorrow:	Wiglaf is sorely grieved to see his lord look so un-warlike.

		The round-twisted monster was permitted no longer To govern the ring-hoards, but edges of war-swords Mightily seized him, battle-sharp, sturdy Leavings of hammers, that still from his wounds The flier-from-farland fell to the earth Hard by his hoard-house, hopped he at midnight Not e'er through the air, nor exulting in jewels Suffered them to see him: but he sank then to earthward Through the hero-chief's handwork. I heard sure it throve then	The dragon has plundered his last hoard.
[96]	15	But few in the land of liegemen of valor, Though of every achievement bold he had proved him, To run 'gainst the breath of the venomous scather, Or the hall of the treasure to trouble with hand-blows, If he watching had found the ward of the hoard-hall On the barrow abiding. Beowulf's part of The treasure of jewels was paid for with death; Each of the twain had attained to the end of Life so unlasting. Not long was the time till The tardy-at-battle returned from the thicket, The timid truce-breakers ten all together, Who durst not before play with the lances In the prince of the people's pressing emergency; But blushing with shame, with shields they betook them, With arms and armor where the old one was lying: They gazed upon Wiglaf. He was sitting exhausted, Foot-going fighter, not far from the shoulders Of the lord of the people, would rouse him with water; No whit did it help him; though he hoped for it keenly, He was able on earth not at all in the leader Life to retain, and nowise to alter	Few warriors dared to face the monster.
	20	The will of the Wielder; the World-Ruler's power ¹ Would govern the actions of each one of heroes, As yet He is doing. From the young one forthwith then Could grim-worded greeting be got for him quickly Whose courage had failed him. Wiglaf discoursed then, Weohstan his son, sad-mooded hero, Looked on the hated: "He who soothness will utter Can say that the liegelord who gave you the jewels, The ornament-armor wherein ye are standing, When on ale-bench often he offered to hall-men Helmet and burnie, the prince to his liegemen, As best upon earth he was able to find him,—	The cowardly thanes come out of the thicket.
	25	That he wildly wasted his war-gear undoubtedly When battle o'ertook him. ² The troop-king no need had To glory in comrades; yet God permitted him, Victory-Wielder, with weapon unaided Himself to avenge, when vigor was needed. I life-protection but little was able To give him in battle, and I 'gan, notwithstanding, Helping my kinsman (my strength overtaking): He waxed the weaker when with weapon I smote on My mortal opponent, the fire less strongly Flamed from his bosom. Too few of protectors Came round the king at the critical moment.	They are ashamed of their desertion.
	30	Now must ornament-taking and weapon-bestowing, Home-joyance all, cease for your kindred, Food for the people; each of your warriors Must needs be bereaved of rights that he holdeth In landed possessions, when faraway nobles Shall learn of your leaving your lord so basely, The dastardly deed. Death is more pleasant To every earlman than infamous life is!"	Wiglaf is ready to excoriate them.
[97]	35		He begins to taunt them.
	40		Surely our lord wasted his armor on poltrons.
	45		He, however, got along without you
	50		With some aid, I could have saved our liegelord
	55		Gift-giving is over with your people: the ring-lord is dead.
	60		What is life without honor?

[1] For 'dædum rædan' (2859) B. suggests 'déað árædan,' and renders: The might (or judgment) of God would determine death for every man, as he still does.

[2] Some critics, H. himself in earlier editions, put the clause, 'When ... him' (A.-S. 'þá ... beget') with the following sentence; that is, they make it dependent upon 'þorfte' (2875) instead of upon 'forwurpe' (2873).

XL.

THE MESSENGER OF DEATH.

	Then he charged that the battle be announced at the hedge Up o'er the cliff-edge, where the earl-troopers bided The whole of the morning, mood-wretched sat them, Bearers of battle-shields, both things expecting, 5 The end of his lifetime and the coming again of The liegeland beloved. Little reserved he Of news that was known, who the ness-cliff did travel, But he truly discoursed to all that could hear him:	Wiglaf sends the news of Beowulf's death to liegemen near by.
[98]	10 "Now the free-giving friend-lord of the folk of the Weders, The folk-prince of Geatmen, is fast in his death-bed, By the deeds of the dragon in death-bed abideth; Along with him lieth his life-taking foeman Slain with knife-wounds: he was wholly unable To injure at all the ill-planning monster 15 With bite of his sword-edge. Wiglaf is sitting, Offspring of Wihstan, up over Beowulf, Earl o'er another whose end-day hath reached him, Head-watch holdeth o'er heroes unliving, ¹ For friend and for foeman. The folk now expecteth 20 A season of strife when the death of the folk-king To Frankmen and Frisians in far-lands is published. The war-hatred waxed warm 'gainst the Hugmen, When Higelac came with an army of vessels Faring to Friesland, where the Frankmen in battle 25 Humbled him and bravely with overmight 'complished That the mail-clad warrior must sink in the battle, Fell 'mid his folk-troop: no fret-gems presented The atheling to earlmen; aye was denied us Merewing's mercy. The men of the Swedelands 30 For truce or for truth trust I but little; But widely 'twas known that near Ravenswood Ongentheow Sundered Hæthcyn the Hrethling from life-joys, When for pride overweening the War-Scylfings first did Seek the Geatmen with savage intentions.	The messenger speaks.
	35 Early did Ohthere's age-laden father, Old and terrible, give blow in requital, Killing the sea-king, the queen-mother rescued, The old one his consort deprived of her gold, Onela's mother and Ohthere's also, 40 And then followed the feud-nursing foemen till hardly, Reaved of their ruler, they Ravenswood entered. Then with vast-numbered forces he assaulted the remnant, Weary with wounds, woe often promised The livelong night to the sad-hearted war-troop: 45 Said he at morning would kill them with edges of weapons, Some on the gallows for glee to the fowls. Aid came after to the anxious-in-spirit At dawn of the day, after Higelac's bugle And trumpet-sound heard they, when the good one proceeded 50 And faring followed the flower of the troopers.	Wiglaf sits by our dead lord.
		Higelac's death recalled.
		Hæthcyn's fall referred to.

[1] 'Hige-méðum' (2910) is glossed by H. as dat. plu. (= for the dead). S. proposes 'hige-méðe,' nom. sing. limiting Wigláf; i.e. W., mood-weary, holds head-watch o'er friend and foe.—B. suggests taking the word as dat. inst. plu. of an abstract noun in '-u.' The translation would be substantially the same as S.'s.

XLI.

THE MESSENGER'S RETROSPECT.

	"The blood-stained trace of Swedes and Geatmen, The death-rush of warmen, widely was noticed, How the folks with each other feud did awaken. The worthy one went then ¹ with well-beloved comrades, 5 Old and dejected to go to the fastness, Ongentheo earl upward then turned him; Of Higelac's battle he'd heard on inquiry, The exultant one's prowess, despaired of resistance, With earls of the ocean to be able to struggle, 10 'Gainst sea-going sailors to save the hoard-treasure, His wife and his children; he fled after thenceward Old 'neath the earth-wall. Then was offered pursuance To the braves of the Swedemen, the banner ² to Higelac.	The messenger continues, and refers to the feuds of Swedes and Geats.

15	They fared then forth o'er the field-of-protection, When the Hrethling heroes hedgeward had thronged them. Then with edges of irons was Ongentheow driven, The gray-haired to tarry, that the troop-ruler had to Suffer the power solely of Eofor:
20	Wulf then wildly with weapon assaulted him, Wonred his son, that for swinge of the edges The blood from his body burst out in currents, Forth 'neath his hair. He feared not however, Gray-headed Scylfing, but speedily quited The wasting wound-stroke with worse exchange,	Wulf wounds Ongentheow.
25	When the king of the thane-troop thither did turn him: The wise-mooded son of Wonred was powerless To give a return-blow to the age-hoary man, But his head-shielding helmet first hewed he to pieces, That flecked with gore perforce he did totter,	Ongentheow gives a stout blow in return.
30	Fell to the earth; not fey was he yet then, But up did he spring though an edge-wound had reached him. Then Higelac's vassal, valiant and dauntless, When his brother lay dead, made his broad-bladed weapon, Giant-sword ancient, defence of the giants,	Eofor smites Ongentheow fiercely.
35	Bound o'er the shield-wall; the folk-prince succumbed then, Shepherd of people, was pierced to the vitals. There were many attendants who bound up his kinsman, Carried him quickly when occasion was granted That the place of the slain they were suffered to manage.	Ongentheow is slain.
40	This pending, one hero plundered the other, His armor of iron from Ongentheow ravished, His hard-sword hilted and helmet together; The old one's equipments he carried to Higelac.	Eofor takes the old king's war-gear to Higelac.
45	He the jewels received, and rewards 'mid the troopers Graciously promised, and so did accomplish: The king of the Weders requited the war-rush, Hrethel's descendant, when home he repaired him, To Eofor and Wulf with wide-lavished treasures, To each of them granted a hundred of thousands	Higelac rewards the brothers.
50	In land and rings wrought out of wire: None upon mid-earth needed to twit him ³ With the gifts he gave them, when glory they conquered; And to Eofor then gave he his one only daughter, The honor of home, as an earnest of favor.	His gifts were beyond cavil. To Eofor he also gives his only daughter in marriage.
55	That's the feud and hatred—as ween I 'twill happen— The anger of earthmen, that earls of the Swedemen Will visit on us, when they hear that our leader Lifeless is lying, he who longtime protected His hoard and kingdom 'gainst hating assailers, Who on the fall of the heroes defended of yore
60	The deed-mighty Scyldings, ⁴ did for the troopers What best did avail them, and further moreover Hero-deeds 'complished. Now is haste most fitting, That the lord of liegemen we look upon yonder, And that one carry on journey to death-pyre Who ring-presents gave us. Not aught of it all Shall melt with the brave one—there's a mass of bright jewels, Gold beyond measure, grewsomely purchased And ending it all ornament-rings too	It is time for us to pay the last marks of respect to our lord.
65	Bought with his life; these fire shall devour, Flame shall cover, no earlman shall wear A jewel-memento, nor beautiful virgin Have on her neck rings to adorn her, But wretched in spirit bereavèd of gold-gems
70	She shall oft with others be exiled and banished, Since the leader of liegemen hath laughter forsaken, Mirth and merriment. Hence many a war-spear Cold from the morning shall be clutched in the fingers, Heaved in the hand, no harp-music's sound shall Waken the warriors, but the wan-coated raven Fain over fey ones freely shall gabble, Shall say to the eagle how he sped in the eating, When, the wolf his companion, he plundered the slain.” So the high-minded hero was rehearsing these stories
75	Loathsome to hear; he lied as to few of Weirds and of words. All the war-troop arose then, 'Neath the Eagle's Cape sadly betook them, Weeping and woful, the wonder to look at. They saw on the sand then soulless a-lying,	The warriors go sadly to look at Beowulf's lifeless body.

90	His slaughter-bed holding, him who rings had given them In days that were done; then the death-bringing moment Was come to the good one, that the king very warlike, Wielder of Weders, with wonder-death perished.
95	First they beheld there a creature more wondrous, The worm on the field, in front of them lying, The foeman before them: the fire-spewing dragon, Ghostly and grisly guest in his terrors, Was scorched in the fire; as he lay there he measured	They also see the dragon.
100	Fifty of feet; came forth in the night-time ⁵ To rejoice in the air, thereafter departing To visit his den; he in death was then fastened, He would joy in no other earth-hollowed caverns. There stood round about him beakers and vessels, Dishes were lying and dear-valued weapons,
105	With iron-rust eaten, as in earth's mighty bosom A thousand of winters there they had rested: That mighty bequest then with magic was guarded, Gold of the ancients, that earlman not any	The hoard was under a magic spell.
[103] 110	The ring-hall could touch, save Ruling-God only, Sooth-king of Vict'ries gave whom He wished to ⁶ (He is earth-folk's protector) to open the treasure, E'en to such among mortals as seemed to Him proper.	God alone could give access to it.

[1] For 'góða,' which seems a surprising epithet for a Geat to apply to the "terrible" Ongentheow, B. suggests 'gomela.' The passage would then stand: 'The old one went then,' etc.

[2] For 'segn Higeláce,' K., Th., and B. propose 'segn Higeláces,' meaning: Higelac's banner followed the Swedes (in pursuit).—S. suggests 'sæcc Higeláces,' and renders: Higelac's pursuit.—The H.-So. reading, as translated in our text, means that the banner of the enemy was captured and brought to Higelac as a trophy.

[3] The rendering given in this translation represents the king as being generous beyond the possibility of reproach; but some authorities construe 'him' (2996) as plu., and understand the passage to mean that no one reproached the two brothers with having received more reward than they were entitled to.

[4] The name 'Scyldingas' here (3006) has caused much discussion, and given rise to several theories, the most important of which are as follows: (1) After the downfall of Hrothgar's family, Beowulf was king of the Danes, or Scyldings. (2) For 'Scyldingas' read 'Scylfingas'—that is, after killing Eadgils, the Scylfing prince, Beowulf conquered his land, and held it in subjection. (3) M. considers 3006 a thoughtless repetition of 2053. (Cf. H.-So.)

[5] B. takes 'nihtes' and 'hwílum' (3045) as separate adverbial cases, and renders: Joy in the air had he of yore by night, etc. He thinks that the idea of vanished time ought to be expressed.

[6] The parenthesis is by some emended so as to read: (1) (He (i.e. God) is the hope of men); (2) (he is the hope of heroes). Gr.'s reading has no parenthesis, but says: ... could touch, unless God himself, true king of victories, gave to whom he would to open the treasure, the secret place of enchanters, etc. The last is rejected on many grounds.

XLII.

WIGLAF'S SAD STORY.—THE HOARD CARRIED OFF.

5	Then 'twas seen that the journey prospered him little Who wrongly within had the ornaments hidden ¹ Down 'neath the wall. The warden erst slaughtered Some few of the folk-troop: the feud then thereafter Was hotly avengèd. 'Tis a wonder where, ² When the strength-famous trooper has attained to the end of Life-days allotted, then no longer the man may Remain with his kinsmen where mead-cups are flowing. So to Beowulf happened when the ward of the barrow, Assaults, he sought for: himself had no knowledge How his leaving this life was likely to happen. So to doomsday, famous folk-leaders down did Call it with curses—who 'complished it there— That that man should be ever of ill-deeds convicted, Confined in foul-places, fastened in hell-bonds, Punished with plagues, who this place should e'er ravage. ³ He cared not for gold: rather the Wielder's Favor preferred he first to get sight of. ⁴ Wiglaf discoursed then, Wihstan his son:
[104] 15	"Oft many an earlman on one man's account must Sorrow endure, as to us it hath happened. The liegelord belovèd we could little prevail on,	Wiglaf addresses his comrades.

	Kingdom's keeper, counsel to follow, Not to go to the guardian of the gold-hoard, but let him
25	Lie where he long was, live in his dwelling Till the end of the world. Met we a destiny Hard to endure: the hoard has been looked at, Been gained very grimly; too grievous the fate that ⁵ The prince of the people pricked to come thither.
30	I was therein and all of it looked at, The building's equipments, since access was given me, Not kindly at all entrance permitted Within under earth-wall. Hastily seized I	He tells them of Beowulf's last moments.
35	And held in my hands a huge-weighting burden Of hoard-treasures costly, hither out bare them To my liegelord beloved: life was yet in him, And consciousness also; the old one discoursed then Much and mournfully, commanded to greet you, Bade that remembering the deeds of your friend-lord	Beowulf's dying request.
40	Ye build on the fire-hill of corpses a lofty Burial-barrow, broad and far-famous, As 'mid world-dwelling warriors he was widely most honored While he reveled in riches. Let us rouse us and hasten Again to see and seek for the treasure,
[105]	45 The wonder 'neath wall. The way I will show you, That close ye may look at ring-gems sufficient And gold in abundance. Let the bier with promptness Fully be fashioned, when forth we shall come, And lift we our lord, then, where long he shall tarry, 50 Well-beloved warrior, 'neath the Wielder's protection." Then the son of Wihstan bade orders be given, Mood-valiant man, to many of heroes, Holders of homesteads, that they hither from far,	Wiglaf charges them to build a funeral- pyre.
55	⁶ Leaders of liegemen, should look for the good one With wood for his pyre: "The flame shall now swallow (The wan fire shall wax ⁷) the warriors' leader Who the rain of the iron often abided, When, sturdily hurled, the storm of the arrows Leapt o'er linden-wall, the lance rendered service, 60 Furnished with feathers followed the arrow." Now the wise-mooded son of Wihstan did summon The best of the braves from the band of the ruler Seven together; 'neath the enemy's roof he Went with the seven; one of the heroes	He takes seven thanes, and enters the den.
65	Who fared at the front, a fire-blazing torch-light Bare in his hand. No lot then decided Who that hoard should havoc, when hero-earls saw it Lying in the cavern uncared-for entirely, Rusting to ruin: they rued then but little 70 That they hastily hence hauled out the treasure, The dear-valued jewels; the dragon eke pushed they, The worm o'er the wall, let the wave-currents take him, The waters enwind the ward of the treasures.	They push the dragon over the wall.
[106]	75 There wunden gold on a wain was uploaded, A mass unmeasured, the men-leader off then, The hero hoary, to Whale's-Ness was carried.	The hoard is laid on a wain.

[1] For 'gehýdde,' B. suggests 'gehýðde': the passage would stand as above except the change of 'hidden' (v. 2) to 'plundered.' The reference, however, would be to the thief, not to the dragon.

[2] The passage 'Wundur ... búan' (3063-3066), M. took to be a question asking whether it was strange that a man should die when his appointed time had come.—B. sees a corruption, and makes emendations introducing the idea that a brave man should not die from sickness or from old age, but should find death in the performance of some deed of daring.—S. sees an indirect question introduced by 'hwár' and dependent upon 'wundur': A secret is it when the hero is to die, etc.—Why may the two clauses not be parallel, and the whole passage an Old English cry of 'How wonderful is death!?'—S.'s is the best yet offered, if 'wundur' means 'mystery.'

[3] For 'strude' in H.-So., S. suggests 'stride.' This would require 'ravage' (v. 16) to be changed to 'tread.'

[4] 'He cared ... sight of' (17, 18), S. emends so as to read as follows: He (Beowulf) had not before seen the favor of the avaricious possessor.

[5] B. renders: That which drew the king thither (i.e. the treasure) was granted us, but in such a way that it overcomes us.

[6] 'Folc-ágende' (3114) B. takes as dat. sing. with 'gódum,' and refers it to Beowulf; that is, Should bring fire-wood to the place where the good folk-ruler lay.

[7] C. proposes to take 'weaxan' = L. 'vescor,' and translate devour. This gives a parallel to 'fretan' above. The parenthesis would be discarded and the passage read: Now shall the fire consume, the wan-flame devour, the prince of warriors, etc.

XLIII.

THE BURNING OF BEOWULF.

	The folk of the Geatmen got him then ready	Beowulf's pyre.
	A pile on the earth strong for the burning,
	Behung with helmets, hero-knights' targets,
	And bright-shining burnies, as he begged they should have them;

ADDENDA.

SEVERAL discrepancies and other oversights have been noticed in the H.-So. glossary. Of these a good part were avoided by Harrison and Sharp, the American editors of Beowulf, in their last edition, 1888. The rest will, I hope, be noticed in their fourth edition. As, however, this book may fall into the hands of some who have no copy of the American edition, it seems best to notice all the principal oversights of the German editors.

From hám (194).—Notes and glossary conflict; the latter not having been altered to suit the conclusions accepted in the former.

Þær gelyfan sceal dryhtnes dôme (440).—Under 'dóm' H. says 'the might of the Lord'; while under 'gelyfan' he says 'the judgment of the Lord.'

Eal bencpelu (486).—Under 'benc-þelu' H. says nom. plu.; while under 'eal' he says nom. sing.

Heatho-ræmas (519).—Under 'ætberan' H. translates 'to the Heathoremes'; while under 'Heatho-ræmas' he says 'Heathoræmas reaches Breca in the swimming-match with Beowulf.' Harrison and Sharp (3d edition, 1888) avoid the discrepancy.

Fáh féond-scaða (554).—Under 'féond-scaða' H. says 'a gleaming sea-monster'; under 'fáh' he says 'hostile.'

Onfeng hraðe inwit-þancum (749).—Under 'onfón' H. says 'he received the maliciously-disposed one'; under 'inwit-þanc' he says 'he grasped,' etc.

Níð-wundor séon (1366).—Under 'níð-wundor' H. calls this word itself nom. sing.; under 'séon' he translates it as accus. sing., understanding 'man' as subject of 'séon.' H. and S. (3d edition) make the correction.

Forgeaf hilde-bille (1521).—H., under the second word, calls it instr. dat.; while under 'forgifan' he makes it the dat. of indir. obj. H. and S. (3d edition) make the change.

Brád and brún-ecg (1547).—Under 'brád' H. says 'das breite Hüftmesser mit bronzener Klinge'; under 'brún-ecg' he says 'ihr breites Hüftmesser mit blitzender Klinge.'

Yðelíce (1557).—Under this word H. makes it modify 'ástód.' If this be right, the punctuation of the fifth edition is wrong. See H. and S., appendix.

Sélran gesóhte (1840).—Under 'sél' and 'gesécan' H. calls these two words accus. plu.; but this is clearly an error, as both are nom. plu., pred. nom. H. and S. correct under 'sél.'

Wið sylfne (1978).—Under 'wið' and 'gesittan' H. says 'wið = near, by'; under 'self' he says 'opposite.'

þéow (2225) is omitted from the glossary.

For duguðum (2502).—Under 'duguð' H. translates this phrase, 'in Tüchtigkeit'; under 'for,' by 'vor der edlen Kriegerschaar.'

þær (2574).—Under 'wealdan' H. translates þær by 'wo'; under 'mótan,' by 'da.' H. and S. suggest 'if' in both passages.

Wunde (2726).—Under 'wund' H. says 'dative,' and under 'wæl-bléate' he says 'accus.' It is without doubt accus., parallel with 'benne.'

Strengum gebæded (3118).—Under 'strengo' H. says 'Strengum' = mit Macht; under 'gebæded' he translates 'von den Sehnen.' H. and S. correct this discrepancy by rejecting the second reading.

Bronda be láfe (3162).—A recent emendation. The fourth edition had 'bronda betost.' In the fifth edition the editor neglects to change the glossary to suit the new emendation. See 'bewyrca.'

Creating the works from public domain print editions means that no one owns a United States copyright in these works, so the Foundation (and you!) can copy and distribute it in the United States without permission and without paying copyright royalties. Special rules, set forth in the General Terms of Use part of this license, apply to copying and distributing Project Gutenberg-tm electronic works to protect the PROJECT GUTENBERG-tm concept and trademark. Project Gutenberg is a registered trademark, and may not be used if you charge for the eBooks, unless you receive specific permission. If you do not charge anything for copies of this eBook, complying with the rules is very easy. You may use this eBook for nearly any purpose such as creation of derivative works, reports, performances and research. They may be modified and printed and given away--you may do practically ANYTHING with public domain eBooks. Redistribution is subject to the trademark license, especially commercial redistribution.

THE FULL PROJECT GUTENBERG LICENSE
PLEASE READ THIS BEFORE YOU DISTRIBUTE OR USE THIS WORK

To protect the Project Gutenberg-tm mission of promoting the free distribution of electronic works, by using or distributing this work (or any other work associated in any way with the phrase "Project Gutenberg"), you agree to comply with all the terms of the Full Project Gutenberg-tm License (available with this file or online at <http://gutenberg.net/license>).

Section 1. General Terms of Use and Redistributing Project Gutenberg-tm electronic works

1.A. By reading or using any part of this Project Gutenberg-tm electronic work, you indicate that you have read, understand, agree to and accept all the terms of this license and intellectual property (trademark/copyright) agreement. If you do not agree to abide by all the terms of this agreement, you must cease using and return or destroy all copies of Project Gutenberg-tm electronic works in your possession. If you paid a fee for obtaining a copy of or access to a Project Gutenberg-tm electronic work and you do not agree to be bound by the terms of this agreement, you may obtain a refund from the person or entity to whom you paid the fee as set forth in paragraph 1.E.8.

1.B. "Project Gutenberg" is a registered trademark. It may only be used on or associated in any way with an electronic work by people who agree to be bound by the terms of this agreement. There are a few things that you can do with most Project Gutenberg-tm electronic works even without complying with the full terms of this agreement. See paragraph 1.C below. There are a lot of things you can do with Project Gutenberg-tm electronic works if you follow the terms of this agreement and help preserve free future access to Project Gutenberg-tm electronic works. See paragraph 1.E below.

1.C. The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation ("the Foundation" or PGLAF), owns a compilation copyright in the collection of Project Gutenberg-tm electronic works. Nearly all the individual works in the collection are in the public domain in the United States. If an individual work is in the public domain in the United States and you are located in the United States, we do not claim a right to prevent you from copying, distributing, performing, displaying or creating derivative works based on the work as long as all references to Project Gutenberg are removed. Of course, we hope that you will support the Project Gutenberg-tm mission of promoting free access to electronic works by freely sharing Project Gutenberg-tm works in compliance with the terms of this agreement for keeping the Project Gutenberg-tm name associated with the work. You can easily comply with the terms of this agreement by keeping this work in the same format with its attached full Project Gutenberg-tm License when you share it without charge with others.

1.D. The copyright laws of the place where you are located also govern what you can do with this work. Copyright laws in most countries are in a constant state of change. If you are outside the United States, check the laws of your country in addition to the terms of this agreement before downloading, copying, displaying, performing, distributing or creating derivative works based on this work or any other Project Gutenberg-tm work. The Foundation makes no representations concerning the copyright status of any work in any country outside the United States.

1.E. Unless you have removed all references to Project Gutenberg:

1.E.1. The following sentence, with active links to, or other immediate access to, the full Project Gutenberg-tm License must appear prominently whenever any copy of a Project Gutenberg-tm work (any work on which the phrase "Project Gutenberg" appears, or with which the phrase "Project Gutenberg" is associated) is accessed, displayed, performed, viewed, copied or distributed:

This eBook is for the use of anyone anywhere at no cost and with almost no restrictions whatsoever. You may copy it, give it away or re-use it under the terms of the Project Gutenberg License included with this eBook or online at www.gutenberg.net

1.E.2. If an individual Project Gutenberg-tm electronic work is derived from the public domain (does not contain a notice indicating that it is posted with permission of the copyright holder), the work can be copied and distributed to anyone in the United States without paying any fees or charges. If you are redistributing or providing access to a work with the phrase "Project Gutenberg" associated with or appearing on the work, you must comply either with the requirements of paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 or obtain permission for the use of the work and the Project Gutenberg-tm trademark as set forth in paragraphs 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.3. If an individual Project Gutenberg-tm electronic work is posted with the permission of the copyright holder, your use and distribution must comply with both paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 and any additional terms imposed by the copyright holder. Additional terms will be linked to the Project Gutenberg-tm License for all works posted with the permission of the copyright holder found at the beginning of this work.

1.E.4. Do not unlink or detach or remove the full Project Gutenberg-tm License terms from this work, or any files containing a part of this work or any other work associated with Project Gutenberg-tm.

1.E.5. Do not copy, display, perform, distribute or redistribute this electronic work, or any part of this electronic work, without prominently displaying the sentence set forth in paragraph 1.E.1 with active links or immediate access to the full terms of the Project Gutenberg-tm License.

1.E.6. You may convert to and distribute this work in any binary, compressed, marked up, nonproprietary or proprietary form, including any word processing or hypertext form. However, if you provide access to or distribute copies of a Project Gutenberg-tm work in a format other than "Plain Vanilla ASCII" or other format used in the official version posted on the official Project Gutenberg-tm web site (www.gutenberg.net), you must, at no additional cost, fee or expense to the user, provide a copy, a means of exporting a copy, or a means of obtaining a copy upon request, of the work in its original "Plain Vanilla ASCII" or other form. Any alternate format must include the full Project Gutenberg-tm License as specified in paragraph 1.E.1.

1.E.7. Do not charge a fee for access to, viewing, displaying, performing, copying or distributing any Project Gutenberg-tm works unless you comply with paragraph 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.8. You may charge a reasonable fee for copies of or providing access to or distributing Project Gutenberg-tm electronic works provided that

- You pay a royalty fee of 20% of the gross profits you derive from the use of Project Gutenberg-tm works calculated using the method you already use to calculate your applicable taxes. The fee is owed to the owner of the Project Gutenberg-tm trademark, but he has agreed to donate royalties under this paragraph to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation. Royalty payments must be paid within 60 days following each date on which you prepare (or are legally required to prepare) your periodic tax returns. Royalty payments should be clearly marked as such and sent to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation at the address specified in Section 4, "Information about donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation."

- You provide a full refund of any money paid by a user who notifies you in writing (or by e-mail) within 30 days of receipt that s/he does not agree to the terms of the full Project Gutenberg-tm License. You must require such a user to return or destroy all copies of the works possessed in a physical medium and discontinue all use of and all access to other copies of Project Gutenberg-tm works.
- You provide, in accordance with paragraph 1.F.3, a full refund of any money paid for a work or a replacement copy, if a defect in the electronic work is discovered and reported to you within 90 days of receipt of the work.
- You comply with all other terms of this agreement for free distribution of Project Gutenberg-tm works.

1.E.9. If you wish to charge a fee or distribute a Project Gutenberg-tm electronic work or group of works on different terms than are set forth in this agreement, you must obtain permission in writing from both the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation and Michael Hart, the owner of the Project Gutenberg-tm trademark. Contact the Foundation as set forth in Section 3 below.

1.F.

1.F.1. Project Gutenberg volunteers and employees expend considerable effort to identify, do copyright research on, transcribe and proofread public domain works in creating the Project Gutenberg-tm collection. Despite these efforts, Project Gutenberg-tm electronic works, and the medium on which they may be stored, may contain "Defects," such as, but not limited to, incomplete, inaccurate or corrupt data, transcription errors, a copyright or other intellectual property infringement, a defective or damaged disk or other medium, a computer virus, or computer codes that damage or cannot be read by your equipment.

1.F.2. LIMITED WARRANTY, DISCLAIMER OF DAMAGES - Except for the "Right of Replacement or Refund" described in paragraph 1.F.3, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, the owner of the Project Gutenberg-tm trademark, and any other party distributing a Project Gutenberg-tm electronic work under this agreement, disclaim all liability to you for damages, costs and expenses, including legal fees. YOU AGREE THAT YOU HAVE NO REMEDIES FOR NEGLIGENCE, STRICT LIABILITY, BREACH OF WARRANTY OR BREACH OF CONTRACT EXCEPT THOSE PROVIDED IN PARAGRAPH F3. YOU AGREE THAT THE FOUNDATION, THE TRADEMARK OWNER, AND ANY DISTRIBUTOR UNDER THIS AGREEMENT WILL NOT BE LIABLE TO YOU FOR ACTUAL, DIRECT, INDIRECT, CONSEQUENTIAL, PUNITIVE OR INCIDENTAL DAMAGES EVEN IF YOU GIVE NOTICE OF THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH DAMAGE.

1.F.3. LIMITED RIGHT OF REPLACEMENT OR REFUND - If you discover a defect in this electronic work within 90 days of receiving it, you can receive a refund of the money (if any) you paid for it by sending a written explanation to the person you received the work from. If you received the work on a physical medium, you must return the medium with your written explanation. The person or entity that provided you with the defective work may elect to provide a replacement copy in lieu of a refund. If you received the work electronically, the person or entity providing it to you may choose to give you a second opportunity to receive the work electronically in lieu of a refund. If the second copy is also defective, you may demand a refund in writing without further opportunities to fix the problem.

1.F.4. Except for the limited right of replacement or refund set forth in paragraph 1.F.3, this work is provided to you 'AS-IS' WITH NO OTHER WARRANTIES OF ANY KIND, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY OR FITNESS FOR ANY PURPOSE.

1.F.5. Some states do not allow disclaimers of certain implied warranties or the exclusion or limitation of certain types of damages. If any disclaimer or limitation set forth in this agreement violates the law of the state applicable to this agreement, the agreement shall be interpreted to make the maximum disclaimer or limitation permitted by the applicable state law. The invalidity or unenforceability of any provision of this agreement shall not void the remaining provisions.

1.F.6. INDEMNITY - You agree to indemnify and hold the Foundation, the trademark owner, any agent or employee of the Foundation, anyone providing copies of Project Gutenberg-tm electronic works in accordance with this agreement, and any volunteers associated with the production, promotion and distribution of Project Gutenberg-tm electronic works, harmless from all liability, costs and expenses, including legal fees, that arise directly or indirectly from any of the following which you do or cause to occur: (a) distribution of this or any Project Gutenberg-tm work, (b) alteration, modification, or additions or deletions to any Project Gutenberg-tm work, and (c) any Defect you cause.

Section 2. Information about the Mission of Project Gutenberg-tm

Project Gutenberg-tm is synonymous with the free distribution of electronic works in formats readable by the widest variety of computers including obsolete, old, middle-aged and new computers. It exists because of the efforts of hundreds of volunteers and donations from people in all walks of life.

Volunteers and financial support to provide volunteers with the assistance they need, is critical to reaching Project Gutenberg-tm's goals and ensuring that the Project Gutenberg-tm collection will remain freely available for generations to come. In 2001, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation was created to provide a secure and permanent future for Project Gutenberg-tm and future generations. To learn more about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation and how your efforts and donations can help, see Sections 3 and 4 and the Foundation web page at <http://www.pgla.org>.

Section 3. Information about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation is a non profit 501(c)(3) educational corporation organized under the laws of the state of Mississippi and granted tax exempt status by the Internal Revenue Service. The Foundation's EIN or federal tax identification number is 64-6221541. Its 501(c)(3) letter is posted at <http://pglaf.org/fundraising>. Contributions to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation are tax deductible to the full extent permitted by U.S. federal laws and your state's laws.

The Foundation's principal office is located at 4557 Melan Dr. S. Fairbanks, AK, 99712., but its volunteers and employees are scattered throughout numerous locations. Its business office is located at 809 North 1500 West, Salt Lake City, UT 84116, (801) 596-1887, email business@pglaf.org. Email contact links and up to date contact information can be found at the Foundation's web site and official page at <http://pglaf.org>

Section 4. Information about Donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

Project Gutenberg-tm depends upon and cannot survive without wide spread public support and donations to carry out its mission of increasing the number of public domain and licensed works that can be freely distributed in machine readable form accessible by the widest array of equipment including outdated equipment. Many small donations ($1 to $5,000) are particularly important to maintaining tax exempt status with the IRS.

The Foundation is committed to complying with the laws regulating charities and charitable donations in all 50 states of the United States. Compliance requirements are not uniform and it takes a considerable effort, much paperwork and many fees to meet and keep up with these requirements. We do not solicit donations in locations where we have not received written confirmation of compliance. To SEND DONATIONS or determine the status of compliance for any particular state visit <http://pglaf.org>

While we cannot and do not solicit contributions from states where we have not met the solicitation requirements, we know of no prohibition against accepting unsolicited donations from donors in such states who approach us with offers to donate.

International donations are gratefully accepted, but we cannot make any statements concerning tax treatment of donations received from outside the United States. U.S. laws alone swamp our small staff.

Please check the Project Gutenberg Web pages for current donation methods and addresses. Donations are accepted in a number of other ways including including checks, online payments and credit card donations. To donate, please visit: <http://pglaf.org/donate>

Section 5. General Information About Project Gutenberg-tm electronic works.

Professor Michael S. Hart is the originator of the Project Gutenberg-tm concept of a library of electronic works that could be freely shared with anyone. For thirty years, he produced and distributed Project Gutenberg-tm eBooks with only a loose network of volunteer support.

Project Gutenberg-tm eBooks are often created from several printed editions, all of which are confirmed as Public Domain in the U.S. unless a copyright notice is included. Thus, we do not necessarily keep eBooks in compliance with any particular paper edition.
