Jury Statements

Two kinds of people select pieces for the New Glass Review: people who make things and people who don't. The first group includes artists, craftspeople, and designers (frequently all in one); the second group consists of museum people, critics, and writers (also frequently all in one). Jurors from these two groups often have decidedly different viewpoints – they come from different worlds.

Looking back over the years, it seems to me that the people who make things are more generous in their selections than those who don't. (The famous art critic Clement Greenberg was an exception. He wanted to include just about everything.) I know that I am a source of great frustration to my fellow permanent juror – Susanne Frantz, curator of 20th-century glass at The Corning Museum of Glass – because I want to include all sorts of intriguing delights that do not meet her curatorial standards. I know this to be true because she moans when I make my selections.

And this is probably as it should be. Museums in our era are about "significance" when it comes to contemporary work. The curators spend their lives reading, looking, and comparing to discover the truly significant. They have panoramic vision and magnificent memories. Nothing escapes them. (Susanne not only knows when my choice is insignificant, but she also knows that I chose a similar piece by the same person three years ago.)

Our co-juror David McFadden, chief curator at the American Craft Museum in New York City, also saw very few peaks from a very elevated plane. For both of these distinguished curators, collecting is a professional responsibility. They work for institutions whose function is to survive us all. They choose for posterity.

Lino Tagliapietra, the other visiting juror in 1998, had no trouble filling his quota of choices. He is so much a part of the contemporary glass scene, so immensely knowledgeable (on a firsthand basis) about who makes what, how, and where, that he epitomizes the present. With his perspective as a world-famous master of an ancient craft tradition, he might be expected to have a strong bias. It was not evident, however, as his selection demonstrates.

Lino teaches glassmaking, and I teach painting. We see people struggling to master ideas and techniques, just as we keep struggling to do. It makes us empathize with those who really try. I cannot speak for Lino, but when I looked at the candidates for inclusion in this year's Review, I was struck as never before by the high degree of technical competence, by the sheer amount of effort involved in so much of what flashed before us. Little of it may prove to be significant in historical terms, but we did see a great deal of good work. I find it very difficult to pass by anything made with care and knowledge by a gifted human being. But as New Glass Review jurors, we do it all the time.

For me, a retired glass museum person with bulging cupboards and enough clutter to make visits from grandchildren a high-risk delight, there is much to admire but little to desire. I look for the extraordinary glass by the anonymous maker, a piece that is not about self-identity or self-expression or political sensitivity, but so good that I wonder who could have made it. This is less about collecting on either a professional or a personal level than it is about interest.

There are pieces in this Review that delight and inspire, many of which I would just like to see and to hold. I no longer have any idea of how significant they may prove to be, but I can imagine the private pleasure they would give me. Hikari Ando's tazza Aki no Oiwai (2) is such a piece. Like a pastry in a window, it looks enriching. Blaise Campbell's Strange Fruit (10) suggests the futility of leg lifts to a mosaic-crusted yam with which I feel a strong personal identity. Some pieces are just so puzzling that they hold a siren-like allure. Giselle Courtney's Anemone (16) is such a piece for me. When it comes to curious charm, the beaded blonde in JoAnn Feher's Let Down Your Golden Hair (22) intrigues like the story it reflects. The search for significance in glass

Zwei Sorten von Menschen wählen die Arbeiten für die New Glass Review aus: Menschen, die Dinge machen und Menschen, die keine machen. Zur ersten Gruppe gehören Künstler, Kunsthändler und Designer (oft alles in einer Person); die zweite Gruppe besteht aus Museumsleuten, Kritikern und Autoren (oft auch alles in einer Person). Juroren aus diesen beiden Gruppen haben oft entschieden unterschiedliche Standpunkte – sie kommen aus unterschiedlichen Welten.

Wenn ich auf die Jahre zurückschau, kommt es mir so vor, als ob die Menschen, die Dinge machen, in ihrer Auswahl großzügiger sind als die, die das nicht tun. (Der berühmte Kunstkritiker Clement Greenberg war eine Ausnahme. Er wollte fast alles aufnehmen). Ich weiß, daß ich eine Quelle großer Frustration bin für meine Dauerjurorkollegin – Susanne Frantz, Kuratorin für Glas des 20. Jahrhunderts am Corning Museum of Glass – weil ich alle Arten kurioser Entzückungen aufnehmen möchte, die nicht mit ihren Standards als Kuratorin übereinstimmen. Ich weiß, daß das stimmt, weil sie stöhnt wenn ich meine Entscheidungen treffe.

Und das muß vielleicht so sein. Museen in unserer Epoche legen Wert auf „Bedeutung“ wenn es um zeitgenössische Kunst geht. Die Kuratoren verbringen ihr Leben damit, zu lesen, zu gucken und zu vergleichen, um das wahrhaft bedeutungsvolle zu entdecken. Sie haben einen Panoramablick und großartige Gedächtnisse. Nichts entgeht ihnen. (Susanne weiß nicht nur wann meine Wahl bedeutungslos ist, sondern sie weiß auch, daß ich ein ähnliches Stück von der gleichen Person vor drei Jahren gewählt habe.)

Unser Co-Juror David McFadden, leitender Kurator am American Craft Museum in New York City, sah von einer sehr erhöhten Ebene ebenfalls nur sehr wenige Spitzen. Für diese beiden ausgezeichneten Kuratoren ist Sammeln eine Berufsverantwortung. Sie arbeiten für Institutionen, deren Aufgabe es ist, uns alle zu überleben. Sie wählen für die Nachwelt aus.

Lino Tagliapietra, 1998 der andere Gastjuror, hatte keine Schwierigkeiten, seine Wahlquote zu erfüllen. Er ist so sehr Teil der zeitgenössischen Glasszene, so immens darin bewandert (aus erster Hand) wer was macht, wie und wo, daß er die Gegenwart verkörpert. Mit seiner Perspektive als weltberühmter Meister in einer alten Handwerkstradition könnte man meinen, sei er stark gefangen. Das war nicht ersichtlich, was auch seine Auswahl demonstriert.

Lino lehrt Glasmacher, und ich lehre Malerei. Wir sehen Leute sich abmühen, Ideen und Techniken zu meistern, genauso wie wir weiter darum ringen. Das befähigt uns in die einzufühlen, die es richtig versuchen. Ich kann nicht für Lino sprechen, aber als ich mir die Kandidaten für die diesjährige Review ansah, war ich wie noch nie beeindruckt von dem hohen Niveau der technischen Kompetenz, durch die reine Menge der Anstrengungen bei vielem was vor uns aufblitzte. Wenig davon mag unter historischen Gesichtspunkten von Bedeutung sein, aber wir haben eine Menge guter Arbeiten gesehen. Ich finde es schwierig, etwas beiseite zu legen, das mit Sorgfalt und Wissen von einem talentierten Menschen gemacht wurde. Aber als New Glass Review Juroren tun wir das die ganze Zeit.

Für mich als Glasmuseumsperson im Ruhestand mit Schränken, die zum bersten voll sind, und genug Wirrwarr, um den Besuch von Enkeln zu einem äußerst riskanten Vergnügen zu machen, gibt es viel zu bewundern aber wenig zu verlangen. Ich suche nach dem außergewöhnlichen Glas von einem anonymen Macher, ein Stück, bei dem es nicht um die eigene Identität oder Selbstdarstellung oder politisches Gespür geht, das aber so gut ist, daß ich mich frage, wer es gemacht haben könnte. Das hat wenig mit Sammeln, weder auf einer professionellen noch einer persönlichen Ebene zu tun, als mit Interesse.

Es gibt Stücke in dieser Review, die entzücken und inspirieren, viele davon würde ich gerne sehen und anfassen. Ich habe keine Idee mehr wie bedeutungsvoll sie sich erweisen könnten, aber ich kann mir das private Vergnügen vorstellen, das sie mir geben würden. Hikari Andos tends to denigrate humor, which is a shame. Wit can be as enduring as profundity – and a lot more accessible.

Yuko Kikuzato (38) is represented by a bowl encased in turtles made of concentric rings on a matrix of incised rings. How I wish it were in front of me so that I could experience the scale and texture, the color and translucency! Looking at all these slides without seeing the real thing is like choosing friends from passport photos. Once in a while, an old friend does turn up – such as Paul Marioni (47), whose iconography has a haunting consistency, but whose growth as an artist makes his work new.

The capacity of glass to share its molten motion with sea creatures has intrigued glassmakers throughout history. There are two extraordinary examples in this Review that would, I think, be a credit to any era. The first is by Yuko Mizuyoshi (55), who has managed to do a strange fish's portrait, inflate it with life, and set it in motion. The other is by Jaromír Rybák (74), whose sinister creature's skin pulses with vitality.

The imitation of life is probably responsible for as much banality in glass as in painting, but this should not deny the potential for brilliant performance. If anything characterizes this era, it is that everything is permissible – except the traditional. Creating images of aspects of the world around us is obviously innate in the human psyche. To limit or exclude this propensity because it was done in the past is to deny ourselves. Change is inevitable, but not exclusive.

tazza Aki no Oiwai (2) ist solch ein Stück. Es sieht verlockend wie eine Torte in einem Schaufenster aus. Blaise Campbells Strange Fruit (10) läßt an die Nutzlosigkeit von Gymnastikübungen einer mosaiküberzogenen Süßkartoffel denken, zu der ich einen starken persönlichen Bezug fühle. Einige Stücke sind einfach so verwirrend, daß sie einen Sirenen ähnlichen Reiz ausüben. Giselle Courtneys Anemone (16) ist für mich solch ein Stück. Wenn es um einen kuriosen Charme geht, fasziniert die mit Perlen verzierte Blondine in JoAnn Fehers Let Down Your Golden Hair (22) wie die Geschichte, die sie widerspiegelt. Die Suche nach Bedeutung in Glas tendiert dazu, Humor zu verunglimpfen, was eine Schande ist. Witz kann genauso fortduern wie Tiefe – und viel zugänglicher sein.

Yuko Kikuzato (38) ist mit einer Schale vertreten, die mit Schildkröten überzogen ist, bestehend aus konzentrischen Ringen auf einer Matrix aus eingeritzten Ringen. Wie sehr wünschte ich, sie vor mir zu haben, so daß ich die Größe und Textur, die Farbe und Durchsichtigkeit erfahren könnte! All diese Dias zu sehen, ohne den wirklichen Gegenstand, ist als ob man Freunde nach Paßphotos aussuchen würde. Hin und wieder taucht ein alter Freund auf – so wie Paul Marioni (47), dessen Ikonographie eine Beständigkeit hat, die nicht mehr aus dem Kopf geht, aber dessen Wachstum als Künstler seine Arbeit neu macht.

Die Kapazität von Glas, seine geschmolzene Bewegung mit Meereskreaturen zu teilen, hat Glasmacher durch die Geschichte hindurch gefesselt. Es gibt zwei außerordentliche Beispiele in dieser Review, die, so meine ich, ein Lob für jede Ära wären. Die erste stammt von Yuko Mizuyoshi (55), der es gelungen ist, ein seltsames Fischporträt zu machen, ihm Leben einzuhauchen und es in Bewegung zu setzen. Das andere stammt von Jaromír Rybák (74), dessen unheimliche Haut der Kreatur vor Vitalität pulsiert.

Die Imitation von Leben ist wahrscheinlich für soviel Banalität in Glas wie in der Malerei verantwortlich, aber das sollte nicht das Potential für eine brillante Ausführung bestreiten. Wenn etwas diese Ära charakterisiert, dann daß alles möglich ist – außer das traditionelle. Bilder von Aspekten der Welt, die uns umgibt, zu kreieren, ist offensichtlich der menschlichen Psyche angeboren. Diesen Reichtum einzuschränken oder auszuschließen weil es in der Vergangenheit gemacht wurde, heißt, uns selbst zu verneinen. Veränderung ist unvermeidlich, aber nicht ausschließlich.

I sympathize. I really do. As an undergraduate ceramics major, I remember being at a loss for ways to make my work different. I too succumbed to the temptation of "When in doubt, decorate it some more." My specialty was elaborate handles. Even after 18 years as a curator, one of my harshest critiques of an object is to think, "That looks like something that I would have made." In a spirit of empathy, I offer the following suggestions.

Ask yourself: Does the world need another glass hammer, knife, piece of fruit, chili pepper, pair of breasts, penis, or fish?

Things to avoid, at least for the next few years: seed pods, funny faces, scary faces, shrines, and ornate goblet stems with unrelated bowls.

Leave the meaningful words in block type to Jenny Holzer. Leave the scratchy calligraphy to Cy Twombly.

If you are thinking of adding wire, raffia, feathers, twigs, rusty pieces of metal, or gold leaf to your sculpture, think again.

If you are using high-fire enamel paints, make sure that the form you are painting on contributes something to the piece. If it is merely a canvas (probably a thick ovoid one), then why not use a real canvas?

If you are attempting some degree of realistic representation of nature, set for yourself the highest standard of achievement: the works of Rudolf and Leopold Blaschka.

If you love Diana Hobson's and Karla Trinkley's fragile-looking pâte de verre from the late 1970s and 1980s, don't copy them.

I ch bin wohlwollend. Wirklich, das bin ich. Ich erinnere mich, daß ich als Studentin mit dem Hauptfach Keramik nicht mehr ein noch aus wußte auf der Suche nach Wegen, meine Arbeit anders sein zu lassen. Auch ich erlag der Versuchung: „im Zweifelsfall ein bißchen mehr Dekoration“. Meine Spezialität waren sorgfältig ausgeführte Henkel. Aber nach 18 Jahren als Kuratorin ist meine harscheste Kritik an einem Objekt wenn ich denke, „das sieht aus wie etwas, was ich gemacht haben könnte.“ Im Sinn von Empathie biete ich folgende Überlegungen an.

Fragen Sie sich selbst: Braucht die Welt noch einen Hammer, ein Messer, ein Stück Obst, eine Chilischote, Brüste, einen Penis oder Fisch aus Glas?

Dinge, die man vermeiden sollte, wenigsten in den nächsten Jahren: Samenschoten, witzige Gesichter, erschreckende Gesichter, Schreine und überladene Kelchglasstile mit Schalen, die dazu nicht in Beziehung stehen.

Überlassen Sie die bedeutungsvollen Worte in Blockschrift Jenny Holzer. Überlassen Sie eine dahingekritzte Kalligraphie Cy Twombly.

Wenn Sie darüber nachdenken, Draht, Raffiabast, Federn, Zweige, rostige Metallstücke oder Blattgold ihrer Skulptur hinzufügen, überlegen Sie noch einmal.

Wenn Sie Emailfarben zum Einbrennen benutzen, vergewissern Sie sich, daß die Form auf die Sie malen, etwas zur Arbeit beizutragen hat. Wenn sie nichts weiter ist als eine Leinwand (wahrscheinlich eine dicke eiförmige), warum benutzen Sie dann keine richtige Leinwand?

If you made it before, do not make it again on a larger scale.

If you are going to plunder Murano, you had better be able to do it better – both in style and technique. Good luck.

If you hope that adding one more decorative element will change your sculpture from "a pile" into a unique expression of your own eccentric multifaceted personality and worldview, you are probably wrong.

And finally, the element that kills nine out of 10 sculptures – the foot or stand. If possible, avoid elevating your sculpture on anything that screams "THE BASE." Sometimes a base might seem to be the nice finishing touch that transforms an object from something mundane into something special. This is not true. Find another way for the piece to be stable. Setting it on a triangular base with three little ball feet is the supreme bore.

With these lofty commandments comes a caveat. There are multiple artists who contradict my prohibitions and produce excellent works. It is likely that their achievements have inspired the endless failed knock-offs. Perhaps it would be a good exercise for sculpture instructors to ask their students to incorporate the above taboos and still produce a successful work. You may be the next person to break these rules and prove me wrong. I hope so.

P.S. As always, I apologize to the established artists who entered exceptional work that was not accepted because it did not seem sufficiently "new." Please do not give up on New Glass Review. Your support is appreciated and valued. You do not need us, but we certainly need you.

Wenn Sie sich an einer Art realistischer Darstellung der Natur versuchen, setzen Sie sich selbst die höchsten Maßstäbe: die Arbeiten von Rudolf und Leopold Blaschka.

Wenn Sie Diana Hobsons und Karla Trinkleys fragil aussehendes Pâte de Verre aus den späten 70ern und 80er Jahren mögen, kopieren Sie es nicht.

Wenn Sie etwas schon einmal gemacht haben, wiederholen Sie es nicht in einem größeren Maßstab.

Wenn Sie sich daran machen, Murano zu plündern, sollten Sie in der Lage sein, es besser zu machen – sowohl vom Stil als auch von der Technik her. Viel Glück.

Wenn Sie hoffen, daß das Hinzufügen eines weiteren dekorativen Elements Ihre Skulptur von einem „Haufen“ zu einem einzigartigen Ausdruck ihrer eigenen exzentrischen vielschichtigen Persönlichkeit und Weltsicht werden läßt, liegen Sie wahrscheinlich falsch.

Und schließlich das Element, das neun von zehn Skulpturen umbringt – der Fuß oder Ständer. Wenn möglich, vermeiden Sie es, Ihre Skulptur auf irgend etwas zu heben, das schreit „DER SOCKEL“. Manchmal scheint ein Sockel den netten letzten Schliff zu geben, der ein Objekt von etwas Gewöhnlichem in etwas Besonderes verwandelt. Das ist nicht wahr. Finden Sie eine andere Lösung für die Arbeit, damit sie stabil ist. Sie auf einen dreieckigen Sockel mit drei kleinen runden Füßen zu stellen, ist oberlangweilig.

Zu diesen hochtrabenden Vorschriften gehört ein Einspruch. Es gibt eine Vielzahl von Künstlern, die meinen Verboten zuwider handeln und hervorragende Arbeiten produzieren. Es ist wahrscheinlich, daß ihre Leistungen die endlosen Fehlschläge inspiriert haben. Vielleicht wäre es eine gute Übung für Lehrende, ihre Studenten zu bitten, die oben genannten Tabus einzubauen und trotzdem eine erfolgreiche Arbeit zu produzieren. Sie könnten die nächste Person sein, die diese Regeln bricht und mir beweist, daß ich unrecht habe. Ich hoffe es.

P.S. Wie immer entschuldige ich mich bei den etablierten Künstlern, die exzellente Arbeiten eingereicht haben und nicht akzeptiert wurden sind, weil sie nicht ausreichend „neu“ schienen. Bitte geben Sie bei der New Glass Review nicht auf. Ihre Unterstützung wird geschätzt und ist es wert. Sie brauchen uns nicht, aber wir brauchen Sie ganz gewiß.

In a 1957 lecture, Marcel Duchamp said, "All in all, the creative act is not performed by the artist alone; the spectator brings the work in contact with the external world by deciphering and interpreting its inner qualifications and thus adds his contribution to the creative act." The responsibility of the viewer to participate in the completion of a creative work was felt with special clarity by the jurors for New Glass Review 19, in which my expectation and anticipation were greater than the reality of what was presented for review.

The scene in Corning was familiar to me as a repeat juror: two days in a darkened room with few sounds other than a chorus of carousel projectors clicking in rhythmic unity minute after minute, hour after hour. Participation as a viewer was unrelenting as we visited more than 2,300 works submitted by nearly 900 artists from around the world. Each run-through narrowed the field until the jurors faced the ultimate challenge: to make a final selection of no more than 25 works. At the conclusion of my final review, I found 15 works that met my criteria of "new." Some explanation was in order, both for myself and for the artists.

First, I considered what kinds of work were rejected. Most were, unfortunately, repeat performances by new performers. Due to their inherent qualities of color, fluidity, and transparency, a large number of works fell into the "4F" draft category – flowers, fruit, fish, and feathers. While lovely to look at and delightful to know, they were not new in any real sense. Works that sought theatrical effect through tritely artificial archetypal images – talismans, bones, and reliquaries – were likewise eliminated. Almost none of the works submitted considered the creative potential of function. And finally, a family of works were rejected simply because they were coy and cute.

Marcel Duchamp hat 1957 in einem Vortrag gesagt, „alles in allem wird der künstlerische Akt nicht vom Künstler allein geleistet; der Zuschauer bringt die Arbeit mit der Außenwelt durch Dechiffrierung und Interpretation ihrer inneren Qualifikation in Kontakt und leistet so seinen Beitrag zum künstlerischen Akt.“ Die Verantwortlichkeit des Betrachters, einen Beitrag zur Vervollständigung beizutragen, wurde mit besonderer Deutlichkeit von den Juroren für die New Glass Review 19 empfunden, an die meine Erwartung und Hoffnung größer waren als die Realität dessen, was schließlich gezeigt wurde.

Das Szenarium in Corning war mir Wiederholungsjuror vertraut: zwei Tage in einem verdunkelten Raum, kaum Geräusche außer dem Chor der Karussell-Diaprojektoren, die rhythmisch Minute für Minute, Stunde für Stunde klickten. Die Teilnahme als Betrachter war unerbittlich, weil wir mehr als 2.300 Arbeiten sahen, die von fast 900 Künstlern aus der ganzen Welt eingereicht worden waren. Jeder Durchlauf engte das Feld des Jurors ein, bis der sich der ultimativen Herausforderung gegenüberstellte: eine endgültige Auswahl von nicht mehr als 25 Arbeiten zu treffen. Als Endergebnis meiner Schlußdurchsicht fand ich 15 Arbeiten, die meinem Kriterium von „neu“ entsprachen. Ein paar Erklärungen sind zulässig, sowohl für mich selbst als auch für die Künstler.

Zuerst habe ich darüber nachgedacht, welche Arbeiten abgelehnt worden sind. Meistens waren es, leider, Wiederholungen durch neue Künstler. Gemäß ihrer wesentlichen Eigenschaften hinsichtlich Farbe, Flüssigkeit und Transparenz fiel eine große Zahl der Arbeiten in das Konzept der „4F“ Kategorien – Flora, Früchte, Fisch und Federn. Auch wenn es hübsch war, sie zu betrachten und wunderbar, sie zu kennen, waren sie nicht in einem wirklichen Sinn neu. Arbeiten, die versuchten,

What did remain as my final choices were works that intrigued, perplexed, and delighted me. These were works that embedded themselves in my memory, and which invited further investigation and extended contemplation. Four sculptural works rose above the assembled crowd. Ryosuke Kinoshita's Pane Report (40) was a haunting depiction of an aged and well-worn book, the contents of which will remain forever unknown and unreadable, written with words that have become as transparent as glass itself. Yukiyo Kobayashi's Twins (41) embodies time literally and figuratively as a hybrid species combining the ironic smiles of archaic sculpture with the worldly sophistication of Art Deco ornament. Julie Mihalisin and Philip Walling amplify the sensuous and tactile quality of wearable jewelry into large-scale wall sculptures in Variations on a Theme #1 (51). The most poignant works in the group must be the two glass wigs by Jack Wax (96), who so deliciously walks the fine line between pleasure and provocation, between history and memory, and between the miraculous and the mundane.

Works that courageously explored function ranged from the dramatic light-shattering Lobby Mural, Rockefeller Center by Peter Zsiba and Maura Smolover (100) to the intimate innuendos of Kazuko Mitsushima's Rings: Praying the Glaciers on the Earth Won't Melt (54), which contrasts slick geometric frames with jagged, entrapped chunks of raw glass, and the sincere and unaffected humor of the Zebra Roadkill necklace by Jennifer Kelting (37). What a treat it was for me to see glass jewelry renovated by generous doses of fresh creativity. Osamu Noda's Caldera series of cast plates (61) begged for a tactile confirmation of the delicious surface textures of his mysterious glass footprints, while Marianne Solberg's untitled bowl (89) soothed the eye with its evanescent, cloudlike imagery. The greatest of visual pleasure was provided by Takeshi Sano in his Soft Forms vessels (78), in which individual eccentricities in form were celebrated without abandoning the playful choreography of the set as a whole.

Few works presenting pictorial imagery ended up in my final selection. Among those few was Judy Jensen's Vessel (34), with its almost Byzantine lushness and power. Designs that exploited and reveled in color and pattern appealed to the decorative arts historian in me. Iwao Matsushima's Iridescent Mosaic and Lace Ribbon Bowl (50) was a charming salute to the history of the medium. Yoko Togashi's 16 Rooms (93) gave a fresh twist to familiar paperweight imagery. A jewel-like constellation of color, combined with interpenetrating forms, distinguished Masayuki Kanda's Tropical Island (35). Rich color and idiosyncratic patterns came to life in Hikari Ando's Aki no Oiwai (2), with a form that referenced high Victorian ornament and the art of cake decorating in a single exuberant gesture.

The works in my final selection, though few in number, were powerful in effect. These artists engaged my vision and thought. Through the medium of glass and by way of accomplished technical expertise, these works transported me into their world. In speaking of art, D. H. Lawrence reminded us that you cannot invent design, but you "recognise it, in the fourth dimension. That is, with your blood and your bones, as well as with your eyes." I cannot but agree.

einen theatralischen Effekt durch abgedroschene künstliche archetypische Bilder – Talismane, Knochen und Reliquarien – zu erzielen, wurden gleichermaßen ausgeschlossen. Fast keine der eingereichten Arbeiten zog das kreative Potential von Funktion in Betracht. Schlußendlich wurde eine ganze Gruppe von Arbeiten zurückgewiesen, einfach weil sie affektiert und niedlich waren.

Was in meiner Endauswahl übrig blieb, waren Arbeiten, die neugierig machten, mich verblüfften und entzückten. Es waren Arbeiten, die sich in meinem Gedächtnis verankerten und die zu einer weiteren Recherche und ausgedehnten Überlegungen einluden. Vier skulpturale Arbeiten ragten aus der sie umgebenden Menge. Ryosuke Kinoshitas Pane Report (40) war eine eindringliche Darstellung eines gealterten und abgenutzten Buches, dessen Inhalt für immer unbekannt und unlesbar bleibt, geschrieben mit Worten, die so transparent wie Glas geworden sind. Yukiyo Kobayashis Twins (41) verkörpert Zeit buchstäblich und figurativ als hybride Spezies, die das ironische Lächeln archaischer Skulpturen mit dem weltlichen kultivierten Anspruch des Art Deco Ornaments verbindet. Julie Mihalisin und Philip Walling erweitern die sinnlichen und taktilen Eigenschaften von tragbarem Schmuck hin zu großformatigen Wandskulpturen in Variations on a Theme #1 (51). Die ergreifendsten Arbeiten in der Gruppe sind wohl die beiden Glasperücken von Jack Wax (96), die so herrlich auf dem dünnen Grad zwischen Vergnügen und Provokation, zwischen Geschichte und Erinnerung und zwischen Wunderbarem und Weltlichem wandeln.

Arbeiten, die mutig die Funktion erforschen, reichen von der dramatischen Lichtinstallation Lobby Mural, Rockefeller Center von Peter Zsiba und Maura Smolover (100) bis zu den intimen Anspielungen in Kazuko Mitsushima's Rings: Praying the Glaciers on the Earth Won't Melt (54), die schlichte geometrische Rahmen mit kantigen, verführerischen Brocken aus grobem Glas kontrastieren und dem ernsten und ungekünstelten Humor der Zebra Roadkill Halskette von Jennifer Kelting (37). Was für ein Genuss war es für mich, durch generöse Dosen frischer Kreativität erneuerten Glasschmuck zu sehen. Osamu Nodas Caldera Serie von gegossenen Tellern (61) schrie geradezu nach einer taktilen Bestätigung der köstlichen Oberflächenstruktur seiner geheimnisvollen gläsernen Fußabdrücke, während Marianne Solbergs Schale ohne Titel (89) dem Auge durch ihre flüchtige, wolkenähnliche Bildsprache wohltat. Das größte visuelle Vergnügen lieferte Takeshi Sano mit seinen Soft Forms vessels (78), in denen eine individuelle Exzentrik der Form gefeiert wird, ohne die spielerische Choreographie des Ensembles als ganzes aufzugeben.

Wenige Arbeiten mit bildhaften Darstellungen kamen bis in meine Endauswahl. Unter den wenigen war Judy Jensen's Vessel (34), mit seiner fast byzantinischen Üppigkeit und Kraft. Entwürfe, die Farben und Muster ausnutzen und in ihnen schwelgten, sprachen den Historiker für Angewandte Kunst in mir an. Iwao Matsushima's Iridescent Mosaic and Lace Ribbon Bowl (50) war ein reizender Gruß an die Geschichte dieses Mediums. Yoko Tagashis 16 Rooms (93) verlieh der vertrauten Bilderwelt der Paperweights einen frischen Dreh. Eine Edelstein ähnliche Farbkonstellation, kombiniert mit sich gegenseitig durchdringenden Formen, zeichnete Masayuki Kandas Tropical Island (35) aus. Reiche Farben und ideosynkratische Muster werden in Hikari Andos Aki no Oiwai (2) lebendig, mit einer Form, die in einer einzigen überschwänglichen Geste in höchstem Maß auf das viktorianische Ornament und die Kunst einen Kuchen zu verzieren, verweist.

Die Arbeiten meiner Endauswahl, obwohl wenig an der Zahl, waren von der Wirkung her beeindruckend. Diese Künstler nahmen meine Vorstellungskraft und meine Gedanken in Anspruch. Durch das Medium Glas und durch vollendetes technisches Können nahmen mich diese Arbeiten mit in ihre Welt. In einem Zitat von D. H. Lawrence über Kunst erinnert er uns daran, daß man Entwürfe nicht erfinden kann, aber man kann „sie erkennen, in der vierten Dimension. Das heißt mit unserem Blut und unseren Knochen, ebenso wie mit unseren Augen.“ Dem kann ich nur zustimmen.

Being a New Glass Review juror for The Corning Museum of Glass was an important but nearly impossible task for me. In a very short period of time, I was exposed to vast talent and a wide variety of new works through which I had the opportunity to better understand current trends in the world of glassmaking. Suddenly, I had the overwhelming responsibility of deciding that some candidates were better than others.

As a glassblower myself, it is natural for me to constantly look for talented artists with new ideas, designs, or concepts for the glassblowing process. I was somewhat disappointed to find little such innovation among the more than 800 entrants. However, I discovered some new and interesting ideas in the areas of pâte de verre, casting, and slumping, perhaps because these areas require less sophisticated skills – skills that may take less time to master than others.

In order to achieve a high level of glassblowing skill, we need to have good teachers in good programs – combined with years of practice, of course. Students need to be attentive to learning basic techniques. Moreover, glassblowers must develop their own identities by creating original designs. This leads me to offer one suggestion for the New Glass Review. I would like to see comparisons between the works selected for the Review and those of other artists who are already recognized in their fields. I would hope that, through these comparisons, the younger artists might find inspiration.

It was a great honor to be a juror for the New Glass Review, and I appreciated the opportunity to recognize some new talent. It was a difficult task, but one that I enjoyed. I would like to extend my thanks to the staff of The Corning Museum of Glass for making the process smooth and memorable.

Juror für die New Glass Review des Corning Museum of Glass zu sein, war für mich eine wichtige aber fast unmögliche Aufgabe. Für eine sehr kurze Zeit war ich ungeheuren Talenten ausgesetzt und einem breiten Spektrum von neuen Arbeiten, durch die ich die Möglichkeit hatte, die gegenwärtigen Trends in der Welt des Glasmachens besser zu verstehen. Plötzlich hatte ich die überwältigende Verantwortung zu entscheiden, daß einige Kandidaten besser waren als andere.

Für mich als Glasbläser ist es natürlich, ständig nach talentierten Künstlern mit neuen Ideen, Entwürfen oder Konzepten beim Prozeß des Glasblasens Ausschau zu halten. Ich war irgendwie enttäuscht, wenige Innovationen dieser Art unter den mehr als 800 Bewerbern zu finden. Gleichwohl, ich habe einige neue und interessante Ideen in den Bereichen Pâte de Verre, Gießen und Absenken gefunden, vielleicht weil diese Bereiche nicht auf eine so ausgefeilte technische Fertigkeit angewiesen sind – Fertigkeiten, die weniger Zeit brauchen als andere, bis man sie beherrscht.

Um ein hohes Niveau beim Glasblasen zu erreichen, brauchen wir gute Lehrer mit guten Programmen – selbstverständlich kombiniert mit Jahren der Praxis. Studenten müssen beim Erlernen der Grundtechniken aufmerksam sein. Überdies müssen Glasbläser ihre eigene Identität entwickeln, indem sie originelle Entwürfe kreieren. Das bringt mich dazu, der New Glass Review einen Vorschlag zu unterbreiten. Ich würde gern einen Vergleich sehen zwischen den Arbeiten, die für die Review ausgewählt wurden, und denen von Künstlern, die bereits in ihrem Bereich anerkannt sind. Ich würde hoffen, daß durch diese Vergleiche jüngere Künstler Inspiration finden könnten.

Es war eine große Ehre, Juror für die New Glass Review zu sein, und ich habe die Möglichkeit geschätzt, neue Talente zu erkennen. Es war eine schwierige Aufgabe, aber eine, an der ich Spaß hatte. Ich möchte meinen Dank für das Team des Corning Museum of Glass aussprechen, das dafür gesorgt hat, daß der Vorgang glatt und denkwürdig verlief.

Note

In 1997, more than 6,000 copies of the New Glass Review 19 prospectus were mailed. Each entrant could submit a maximum of three slides. A total of 877 individuals and companies representing 43 countries submitted 2,390 slides. The 100 objects illustrated in this Review were selected by four jurors, whose initials follow the descriptions of the objects they chose.

All slides submitted to New Glass Review are retained in the Rakow Library of The Corning Museum of Glass, where they may be viewed by the public. Copies of slides published in any of the past Reviews may be purchased by special order from the Museum's Sales Department. Copies of New Glass Review 3 (1982), 13 (1992), 16 (1995), 17 (1996), and 18 (1997) are still available from the Sales Department, which can also supply all back issues of the Review in black-and-white microfiche.

The Corning Museum of Glass would like to thank all of the artists and designers who submitted their slides to New Glass Review for consideration. Special thanks are due to those who made this publication possible: Young Oak Bond, Louise Bush, Brandy Harold, Ernestine Kyles, Richard Price, Joan Romano, Jacolyn Saunders, and Violet Wilson.

Schlußbemerkung

1997 sind mehr als 6000 Einladungen für die New Glass Review 19 versandt worden. Jeder Teilnehmer konnte bis zu drei Dias einreichen. Insgesamt schickten 877 Einzelpersonen und Firmen aus 43 Ländern 2390 Dias. Die 100 Arbeiten, die in dieser Review abgebildet sind, wurden von vier Juroren ausgewählt, deren Initialen den ausgesuchten Objekten beigelegt sind.

Alle für die New Glass Review eingereichten Dias werden in der Rakow-Bibliothek des Corning Museums of Glass gesammelt, wo sie der Öffentlichkeit zur Ansicht zugänglich sind. Kopien von Dias, die in den vergangenen Reviews erschienen sind, können durch Sonderbestellung bei der Verkaufsabteilung des Museums erworben werden. Ausgaben der New Glass Review 3 (1982), 13 (1992), 16 (1995), 17 (1996) und 18 (1997) sind noch lieferbar. Alle alten Ausgaben der Review können auch auf Schwarzweiß-Mikrofiche geliefert werden.

Das Corning Museum of Glass möchte sich bei allen Künstlern und Designern bedanken, die ihre Dias zum Wettbewerb eingereicht haben. Some of the Best in Recent Glass

This is the third in the "Some of the Best . . ." series. Despite its presumptuous title, the portfolio of images was started as a sincere response to questions regarding the criteria for inclusion in the New Glass Review. Over the past 20-odd years, there have been continuing, but largely futile, attempts to define the qualities sought by the jurors. The adjectives "new" and "good" are obviously both infinitely broad and subject (as they should be) to personal interpretation. Consensus among the jurors is not sought and is seldom achieved. Therefore, it comes as no surprise that the individual choices are often controversial to the audience. The debate over selections is just one aspect of the Review that keeps it interesting (as well as maddening). "Some of the Best . . ." offers recent works that are new and good in the opinion of one of the two permanent jurors. The photographs were assembled throughout the year independently of the New Glass Review competition; however, they occasionally duplicate some of the jury's selections.

Just a few years ago, there was a craze for pâte de verre inspired by Karla Trinkley's and Diana Hobson's fragile, sugarlike vessels. In like manner, the Polish artist Anna Skibskra's flameworked webs have attracted a fair number of imitators. As was the case with the pâte de verre, the originals are deemed original for good reason and they leave Dies ist die dritte Folge in der Serie von „Some of the Best . . .“. Trotz des anmaßenden Titels war dieses „Portfolio“ an Bildern als ernsthafte Antwort auf Fragen, hinsichtlich der Kriterien für eine Aufnahme in die New Glass Review, gestartet worden. Im Lauf von mehr als 20 Jahren hat es kontinuierliche, aber größtenteils vergebliche Versuche gegeben, die Kriterien, die von den Juroren gesucht werden, zu definieren. Die Adjektive „neu“ und „gut“ sind ganz offensichtlich unendlich weit und Gegenstand (so wie es auch sein sollte) für eine persönliche Interpretation. Ein Konsens zwischen den Juroren wird nicht gesucht und selten erreicht. Deshalb ist es nicht überraschend, daß die individuellen Wahlen oft denen des Publikums widersprechen. Die Debatte über die Auswahl ist lediglich ein Aspekt der Review, die sie weiterhin interessant (aber auch zum Verrücktwerden) sein läßt. „Some of the Best . . .“ bietet jüngste Arbeiten, die nach Meinung eines der zwei ständigen Juroren neu und gut sind. Die Abbildungen werden das ganze Jahr hindurch unabhängig vom New Glass Review Wettbewerb gesammelt; gleichwohl tauchen sie gelegentlich auch in der Auswahl der Jury auf.

Vor nur wenigen Jahren war pâte de verre, inspiriert durch Karla Trinkleys und Diana Hobsons fragile, zuckerähnliche Gefäße der letzte Schrei. Ganz ähnlich haben auch die lampengearbeiteten „Spinnenthe followers in the dust. The William Traver Gallery in Seattle executed a coup by organizing a 1997 show of Skibska's work. This was not an easy task because her creations are almost impossible to transport and must therefore be constructed virtually on-site. These works display Skibska's redefinition of the potential of framework glass as sculpture worthy of serious consideration. The elongated cageworks, in particular, suggest phenomena as diverse as the eerie beauty of reptile and vegetal skeletons and falling snow.

Aside from the well-deserved Richard Marquis retrospective by the Seattle Art Museum, glass exhibitions at American museums over the past year were dominated by surveys. European museums are to be commended for more often taking the intelligent route of presenting solo artists. Bernard Dejonghe's show at the Musée d'Art Contemporain, netze" der polnischen Künstlerin Anna Skibska eine nette Anzahl von Imitatoren angezogen. Wie im Fall der pâte de verre erscheinen die Originale aus guten Gründen ursprünglich und lassen ihre Nachfolger im Staub hinter sich. Die William Traver Gallery in Seattle landete einen Coup als sie 1997 eine Ausstellung mit Skibska's Arbeiten organisierte. Das war keine leichte Aufgabe, weil ihre Kreationen fast unmöglich zu transportieren sind und deshalb praktisch vor Ort konstruiert werden mußten. Diese Arbeiten führen Skibska's Redefinition des Potentials von lampengearbeitetem Glas als Skulptur vor, die eine ernsthafte Auseinandersetzung verdient hat. Besonders die in die Länge gezogenen Käfigarbeiten verweisen auf Phänomene, die so unterschiedlich sind wie die schaurige Schönheit von Reptilien, Pflanzenskeletten und fallendem Schnee.

Abgesehen von der wohl verdienten Richard Marquis Retrospektive im Seattle Art Museum wurden die Glasausstellungen in den amerikanischen Museen in den letzten Jahren von Übersichtsausstellungen dominiert. Europäische Museen müssen dafür gelobt werden, daß sie viel öfter den intelligenten Weg eingeschlagen haben, einzelne Künstler vorzustellen. Bernard Dejonghe's Ausstellung im Musée d'Art Contemporain in Dunkerque war eine wunderbare, sparsame Installation, die über mehrere Galerien verstreut war. Dejonghe verletzt und opfert die Reinheit von massiven Glasblöcken durch Narben. Die Außenwände überzieht eine handgemeißelte Haut, die zu der Studie in extremem Kontrast beiträgt. Die folgende gleichzeitige Transparenz, Undurchsichtigkeit und Weiß, erhöht durch die unsichtbare Masse, ruft einen Effekt von Ruhe und Stille hervor – so als ob der Betrachter durch das reinste Wasser auf eine darüberliegende Eiskruste starren würde. Dejonghe arbeitet auch mit Ton, und seine Skulpturen existieren oft in dem interessanten physikalischen Zustand, in dem sich Glas und Keramik treffen.

Ein weiteres französisches Museum, das Carré d'Art – Musée d'Art Contemporain in Nîmes, hat Skulpturen von Giuseppe Penone aus Turin, Italien, gezeigt. Die Thematik der Landschaft, des menschlichen Eingriffs in die Natur und der zarten Balance zwischen den beiden stehen dauerhaft im Interesse des Künstlers, der mit der Arte Povera verbunden ist. Abgesägte Äste, die in Glas gegossenen sind, lehnen gegen die Wand oder sind in lebende Pflanzen und Zeichnungen von Laubwerk integriert. Gelegentlich werden die Arme zu gläsernen Fingerspitzen. Zersplittete Baumstümpfe umhüllen Bücher und Schößlinge. Die Glaselemente sind im Centre international de recherche sur le verre et les arts plastiques (C.I.R.V.A.) in Marseilles entstanden, in das Penone seit ungefähr 1986 zum Arbeiten kommt. Eine seiner frühen Arbeiten bezieht sich auf den Kreislauf von Wachstum, Erneuerung und Tod; sie bestand aus einer gebogenen Glasscheibe, die – wie ein riesiger Fingernagel – über einem Hügel von Lorbeerblättern lag.

Laura de Santillana aus Venedig wurde in dieses Portfolio schon bei früherer Gelegenheit aufgenommen. Als Designerin von Gefäßern gelingt ihr die schwierige Aufgabe, alten Formen ein frisches Aussehen zu Dunkerque, was a beautiful, spare installation scattered throughout several galleries. Dejonghe violates and scarifies the purity of massive glass blocks with seams of devitrification. The exterior walls are flayed by hand chiseling that adds to the study in extreme contrasts. The ensuing simultaneous transparency, opacity, and whiteness, lifted by invisible mass, provoke an effect of silence and stillness – as if the viewer were staring up through the purest water to an icy crust above. Dejonghe also works in clay, and his sculptures often exist in the interesting physical state where glass and ceramic meet.

Another French museum, the Carré d'Art – Musée d'Art Contemporain, Nîmes, showed sculptures by Giuseppe Penone of Turin, Italy. The themes of the landscape, human intervention in nature, and the tenuous balance between the two are continuing interests of this artist, who is associated with Arte Povera. Sawed tree branches cast into glass are leaned against the wall or integrated into living plants and drawings of foliage. At times, the limbs grow into glass fingertips. Split tree trunks enfold books and saplings. The glass elements were made at the International Center for Research in Glass and Art (C.I.R.V.A.) in Marseilles, which Penone began using around 1986. One of his earlier pieces pertained to the cycle of growth, shedding, and death; it consisted of a curved sheet of glass overlying – like a huge fingernail – a mound of laurel leaves.

Laura de Santillana of Venice was included in this portfolio on a previous occasion. As a designer of vessels, she manages the difficult task of imparting a fresh look to ancient forms. The pieces of the "Mountain" series have the quality of wet and worn stones, and they inspire the same sort of impulse to turn them over and over in the hands.

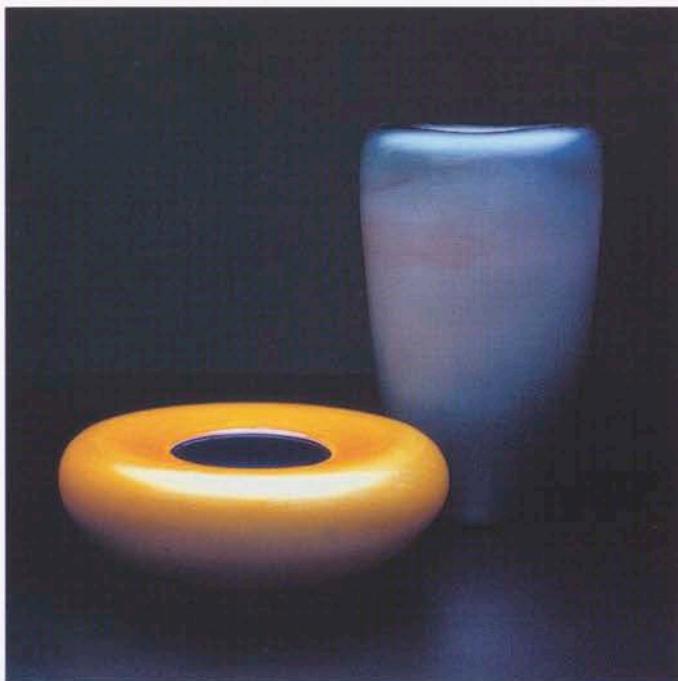

Anna Dickinson's sculptural vessels change in small increments. The work cannot be described as "improving" because it has always seemed perfect in design and execution. For Dickinson, fabricating the objects herself is inseparable from their essence, purpose, and value. The glass is blown, cut, sandblasted, and/or engraved, then electrogeben. Die Stücke aus der „Mountain“ Serie haben die Qualität von feuchten und abgenutzten Steinen und rufen den gleichen Impuls her vor mit dem man sie in der Hand ständig herumdreht.

Anna Dickinson's skulpturale Gefäße ändern sich in kleinen Zuwachsen. Die Arbeit kann man nicht mit „verbessert“ umschreiben, weil sie im Entwurf und in der Ausführung immer perfekt schien. Für Dickinson ist das eigenhändige Fertigen der Objekte von ihrer Substanz, ihrem Zweck und Wert nicht zu trennen. Das Glas ist geblasen, geschliffen, sandgestrahlt und/oder graviert, anschließend mit verschiedenen Metallen, einschließlich Silber und Kupfer, galvanisiert. Die Metallarbeit steht bewußt im Hintergrund und hat für gewöhnlich eine zurückhaltende Verarbeitung. Über die Dekoration hinaus bedeutet sie eine strukturelle Integration in die Architektur der Gefäße. Mit diesen Arbeiten bekennt sich Dickinson zum Einfluß durch afrikanische und lateinamerikanische Holzschnitzarbeiten, Korbwaren und Textilien ebenso wie durch die Keramik von Hans Coper und Lucie Rie.

Andere bemerkenswerte Skulpturen, die auf einer funktionalen Basis entstanden sind, sind die beiden im Auftrag entstandenen monumentalen Kronleuchter von Gaetano Pesce für den Eingangsbereich des Palais des Beaux-Arts in Lille, Frankreich. Locker an die traditionelle Form eines in Falten gelegten Kronleuchters angelehnt, sind die gigantischen, weich ausschwellenden Taschen aus unregelmäßigen Bullseye-Glass-Elementen zusammengesetzt. Sie sind in ein riesiges gewebtes Netzwerk aus Tauen und Stahl gebunden und darin aufgehängt. Die riesigen Skulpturen sind nicht nur dem Namen nach Kronleuchter. Besser gesagt, sie verströmen Licht aus innen liegenden flexiblen Beleuchtungskörpern und werden so zu vergrößernden Ankunfts signalen beim Eintritt in eine bedeutende Institution.

Die großen Möglichkeiten für naturalistische polychrome Skulpturen in Glas – besonders in pâte de verre – wurden Ende des 19. Jahrhunderts von dem Franzosen Henri Cros begründet. Die zarte Farbgebung, Modellierung und außerordentliche Kunstfertigkeit bei Cros' Arbeit kann formed with various metals, including silver and copper. The metalwork is understated and usually given a restrained finish. Beyond decoration, it suggests structural integration into the architecture of the vessels.

Through these works, Dickinson acknowledges the influences of African and Latin American wood carvings, basketry, and textiles, as well as the ceramics of Hans Coper and Lucie Rie.

Other notable sculptures built on a functional ground are Gaetano Pesce's two monumental chandeliers commissioned for the entrance to the Palais des Beaux-Arts in Lille, France. Loosely based on the traditional form of a draped chandelier, the giant, soft-looking bags are assembled from irregular elements of Bullseye glass. They are tied to and suspended from a woven network of rope and steel. The huge sculptures are not chandeliers in name only. Rather, they emit light from internal flexible fixtures and thus become amplified signals of approach to an institution of importance.

The great potential for naturalistic polychrome sculpture in glass – particularly pâte de verre – was established at the end of the 19th century by the Frenchman Henri Cros. The delicate coloring, modeling, and superb craftsmanship of Cros's work have yet to be matched in subsequent figural sculpture in glass. However, new sculptures by the American Nicholas Africano approach Cros's output in sensitivity. The fees immer noch mit späteren figuralen Glasskulpturen aufnehmen. Gleichwohl, neue Skulpturen des Amerikaners Nicholas Africano nähern sich Cros' Leistung hinsichtlich der Sensibilität. Die weiblichen Nackten und Halbnackten geben die wächserne Lichtdurchlässigkeit und subtile Farbgebung der Haut wider. Ihre entspannte Haltung und die verschleierte Kleidung vermitteln ein Gefühl von Realismus, zu dem eine träumerische Geisterhaftigkeit ein Gegengewicht bildet.

Die Ausstellung der Seattler Künstlerin Sherrie Markovitz in der Monique Knowlton Gallery, New York, Ende 1997 war das Warten von mehreren Jahren seit ihrer letzten Ausstellung wert. Sie zeigte die bis heute komplexesten und größten Beispiele der für sie typischen, schwer mit Perlen und Fundstücken bedeckten Tierköpfe. Eine Auseinandersetzung mit ethnischen Objekten (besonders auf Huichol Perlenarbeiten) und Volkskunst ist in allen Skulpturen von Markovitz erkennbar. Die jüngsten Entwicklungen schließen totemistische Babypuppen und – vielleicht besonders interessant – organische Formen ein, deren Oberfläche mit winzigen Glasperlen eher gestaltet als beladen ist. Der riesige Pink Buddha hängt von der Wand wie ein schwangerer Bauch oder eine bestickte Wolke.

Peter Ivy, ein junger Künstler, der erst vor zwei drei Jahren sein Studium abgeschlossen hat, nimmt irdische Wunder ins Blickfeld. Dabei male nudes and semi-nudes radiate the waxy translucency and subtle coloring of skin. Their relaxed postures and veiled costumes impart a sense of realism that is counterbalanced by dreamy ghostliness.

Seattle artist Sherrie Markovitz's exhibition at the Monique Knowlton Gallery, New York, at the end of 1997 was worth the wait of several years since her last show. It displayed the most complex and sizable examples to date of her signature animal heads heavily encrusted with beads and found objects. Responses to ethnic objects (particularly to Huichol beadwork) and folk art are obvious in all of Markovitz's sculpture. Recent developments include totemic baby dolls and – perhaps most interesting – the abstract organic forms surfaced, rather than loaded, with minute glass beads. The huge Pink Buddha hangs off the wall like a pregnant belly or an embroidered cloud.

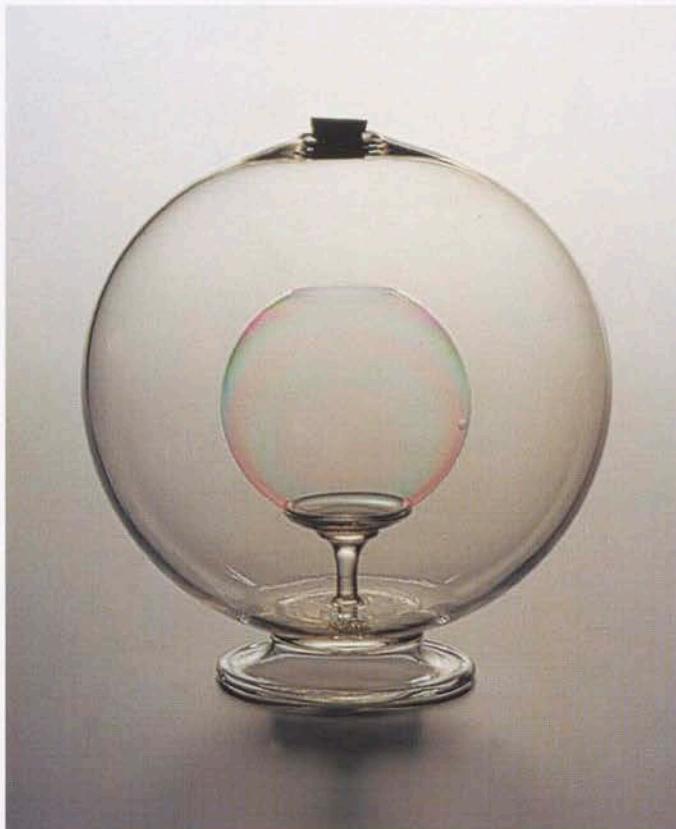

Peter Ivy, a young artist only two or three years out of undergraduate school, focuses on the wonders of the mundane. He does so by stripping an idea to essential simplicity and then slowing the viewer to a pace where the magic can be appreciated. In addition, Ivy's technical skills allow him to realize his ideas lightly and unobtrusively.

A person with any sense will marvel at the form and color of a soap bubble. However, how often do we really study one? How can we? We also admire the glass bubble for its ability to capture and preserve the breath forever. What a beautiful idea it is to force us to contemplate both volumes by placing the slight, fugitive one, supported only by air, inside the other. Protected by its glass counterpart, it may remain intact for hours or even days. Ivy is fascinated by inventions that are balanced between ambitious ingenuity and misguided foolishness. In his Night Light, the heat rising from a small bulb activates a paper fan that supports an insect and a ball of dust. As the fan slowly rotates, the shadentkleidet er eine Idee bis auf das wesentlich Einfache und bringt dann den Betrachter langsam auf den Weg, wo das Magische gewürdigt werden kann. Hinzu kommt, daß Ivens technische Fertigkeiten es ihm erlauben, seine Ideen leicht und unaufdringlich zu realisieren.

Eine Person mit Gespür wird die Form und Farbe einer Seifenblase bewundern. Trotzdem, wie oft betrachten wir wirklich eine? Wie können wir? Wir bewundern auch eine Glaskugel für ihre Gabe, den Atem für immer festzuhalten und zu konservieren. Was für eine wunderbare Idee ist es, uns zu zwingen über beide Volumina nachzudenken, indem man das leichte, flüchtige, nur von der Luft getragene, in das andere plaziert. Geschützt durch sein gläsernes Pendant, kann es für Stunden oder sogar Tage intakt bleiben. Ivy ist von Erfindungen fasziniert, die die Balance halten zwischen ehrgeizigem Einfallsreichtum und fehlgeleiteter Alberheit. In seinem Night Light aktiviert die Hitze, die aus einer kleinen Glühbirne aufsteigt, einen Papierfächer, auf dem ein Insekt und ein Staubknäuel plaziert sind. Indem der Fächer leicht rotiert, wandern die Schatten des Insekts und des Staubs durch den Raum. Bei einer anderen Arbeit ist eine Glaskugel mit Wasser und Staub gefüllt. Wenn man das Objekt dreht, steigt der Staub auf, bildet verschiedene Schichten und rotiert um ein weißes Haar, das im Zentrum des Glases befestigt ist. Es gibt keinen Grund, an Ivy zu zweifeln, wenn er behauptet, daß seine seltsamen Objekte „einen beruhigenden Effekt haben, der die Aufmerksamkeit ähnlich fesselt wie die Flamme einer Kerze“.

Autoren, die über Kunst und Kunsthandwerk schreiben, beziehen sich oft auf Kants Kritik der reinen Vernunft (1790), weil er viele Ideen deutlicher macht, mit denen wir heute noch kämpfen. Ivens spielerische Objekte verdeutlichen Kants Behauptung, daß „schöne Kunst möglicherweise nur das Produkt eines Genies ist“. Er beschreibt Genie als ows of the insect and dust travel around the room. In another work, a glass bubble is filled with water and dust. When the object is spun, the dust rises, stratifies, and revolves around a white hair fixed in the center of the glass. There is no reason to doubt Ivy when he states that his strange objects have "a calming effect that holds one's attention much like the flame of a candle."

Writers about art and craft often refer to Immanuel Kant's Critique of Judgment (1790) because he clarifies so many of the ideas with which we still struggle. Ivy's playful things bring to mind Kant's statement that "fine art is possible only as the product of genius." He describes genius as "a talent for producing something for which no determinate rule can be given, not a predisposition consisting of a skill for something that can be learned by following some rule or other; hence the foremost property of genius must be originality." Kant goes on to say that while a work may be nice, elegant, or graceful, if it does not have something called spirit, it is not art. Such spirit is an idea that prompts thought and imagination, and it cannot be completely described by any language other than a kind of poetry. For this viewer, it is the same spirit that represents the ultimate esthetic criteria for quality – and it is possessed by the objects included herein.

„ein Talent, etwas herzustellen, für das keine bestimmte Regel aufgestellt werden kann, nicht als Prädisposition in Form von Fertigkeit, die erlernt werden kann, indem man die eine oder andere Regel befolgt; folglich muß die allererste Eigenschaft eines Genies Originalität sein“. Kant führt weiter aus, daß obwohl eine Arbeit hübsch, elegant oder anmutig sein kann, sie nicht Kunst ist, wenn sie nicht etwas hat was Geist genannt wird. Diese Art Geist ist eine Idee, die Gedanken und Imagination hervorruft und die mit keiner Sprache vollständig beschrieben werden kann als mit einer Art Poesie. Für diesen Betrachter ist es der gleiche Geist, der die letztgültigen Kriterien für Qualität repräsentiert – und er ist erfüllt durch die Objekte, die hier aufgenommen sind.
